HOW WET PARTY WILL WIN TOLD BY TAMMANY

Counts Up Noses and G. O. P. Is Scared.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—How the wet Democrats figure that a Democratic president friendly to the restoration of beer and light wines can be elected next year along with a congress committed to liberalization of the Volstead act, was explained to me today by one of Tammany's chief statisticians.

Tammany doesn't know whether Al Smith is going to be a candidate for president, for vice president, or for a third term as governor of New York, but is satisfied he will be on the ticket in one of these places, so that in any event New York will go Democratic. The only time Al ever was defeated was in the Harding landslide, when he ran 1,000,000 votes ahead of his ticket, and, if the time ever comes in a normal election when Al cannot carry his state Tammany will cease to believe in fairies.

How the Tiger Figures It.

Now, Tammany figures that with a "liberal ticket and liberal platform" the Democrats reasonably may be assured of carrying the following states next year:

States.	Electorate vote.	States.	Electorate vote.	States.	Electorate vote.
Alabama	12	Maryland	8	Rhode Island	5
Arkansas	9	Mass.	18	S. Carolina	9
Connecticut	7	Mississippi	10	Tennessee	12
Delaware	3	Missouri	18	Texas	20
Florida	6	New Hamp.	4	Virginia	12
Georgia	14	New Jersey	14	W. Virginia	8
Kentucky	13	New York	43	Total	269.
Louisiana	10	N. Carolina	12

As there are 531 votes in the electoral college, and 266 votes are required to elect, it will be noted that my Tammany friend figured out a victory by a majority of seven. He said he had been ultra-conservative in his reckoning and had not included Arizona, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, and Oklahoma, which are frequently, if not generally, carried by the Democrats, and which have an aggregate of twenty-three electoral votes.

Calls These States "Damp."

Nor, he said, did he include California, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, with 144 votes, although he felt certain that the Democrats could carry some of these states in the interest of beer and light wines.

The solid and traditionally dry south is put down as safe for the Democratic ticket, even if it were headed by Al Smith on a sopping wet platform. Tammany will not even concede Tennessee to the Republicans, though Harding carried it in 1920, breaking the solid south for the first time.

Oklahoma is the only regular Democratic state of which Tammany is in doubt. The Oklahomans, it is feared, might prefer a dry Republican to a wet Democrat. They don't stand without hitching like the folks in the solid south.

G. O. P. Fears This Forecast.

Some of the most important Republican leaders are fearful that there is more truth than poetry in this prognostication. What they really fear is that the Democrats are going to carry New York, Massachusetts, and New Jersey on a beer and light wine issue and they are not accustomed to calculating Republican victories in national elections without those states. Wilson won without them in 1916, but he had the solid south, on which the Republican can never count.

There are 173 votes in the southern and border states, and when the Republican leaders begin to concede New York, Massachusetts, and New Jersey, with 77, they are prepared to give the Democrats 250 electoral votes, which is only sixteen short of a majority, a margin too narrow for safety.

Insist Harding Is "In."

The dry Republicans do not partake of any of these fears. They think the Democrats and the wet Republicans are under the influence of the Al Smith brand of hokum. They insist that the country is overwhelmingly dry and that President Harding, by adopting an uncompromisingly pro-prohibition attitude, has insured his renomination and reelection.

The drys say it is preposterous for the Democrats to talk of carrying New Hampshire on a wet plank or Connecticut on any issue, the latter state never having gone Democratic except when the Republican party was split, and they predict great Republican inroads in the dry solid south if the Democrats go wet next year, even though the pill be given a state rights coating.

THE CHANGING WORLD

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Ten years ago our best American Atlantic liner was the poor old St. Paul.

Today the biggest and finest liner afloat flies the American flag.

Ten years ago American passengers sought passage on the luxurious British, German, French, and Dutch liners.

Today no ship afloat is more luxurious than our great Leviathan.

Ten years ago it was a source of keen humiliation to Americans to see how inferior American liners were to the foreign ones.

Today some of the finest Atlantic liners are American ships, and our steamship lines travel all trade routes.

GOLDEN CHAIN SUSPENDERS ARE PARIS FASHION

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, June 16.—[Tribune Radio.]—Golden chains as suspenders to hold up "undies" is the latest Paris fad.

Delicate chains of tiny links, like those attached to spectacles, now replace ribbons over the shoulder to support dainty chemises and combinations. The adoption of the chains is the result of the sudden abandoning of black lingerie by Parisiennes since somber hued robes have been discarded. Black straps over the shoulder were all right, but light ribbons soiled too quickly and so were discarded in favor of the precious metal chains.

When the under garments are changed, the chains are taken off and stitched on the clean lingerie.

BLAZE CAUSES $100,000 DAMAGE IN DEPT. STORE

Several hours after employes had left the Albert Lurie department store, 1816-24 Blue Island avenue, last night, fire broke out on the third floor toward the rear and quickly spread upward to the fourth floor, the loss being estimated at $100,000. The cause of the fire could not be determined.

The third and fourth floors of the building are given over to furniture and clothing. Both of these floors were practically burned out and a heavy water and smoke loss was suffered on the stock on the lower floors.

BRITISH LAUNCH GIANT SUBMARINE

Biggest in World; May Carry 13.5 Inch Gun.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 16.—[Tribune Radio.]—To the strains of "Rule Britannia," the X-1, claimed to be the largest submarine in the world, was launched at the Chatham shipyards today. The launching was strictly private, as the building of undersea fighters has been since their inception. All approaches to the dockyard were carefully guarded by police today.

Immediately after being launched, the X-1 was towed to an enclosed and guarded basin to be completed.

May Carry 13.5 Inch Gun.

As the utmost secrecy regarding the details of the craft has been maintained, no one knows exactly what form its armament will take. It is certain, however, that it is some 1,400 tons bigger than the largest German U-boat, an official statement announcing that its displacement was 3,600 tons.

The C-36, a recently completed British submarine, was only of 2,770 tons and the M-3, 1,950 tons.

What armament the new vessel is carrying is a matter of lively conjecture in naval circles, most experts inclining to credit the rumor that it will carry a 13.5 inch caliber gun, by far the most powerful in the world. The M class of British submarines carry 12 inch guns, these being the most powerful craft of their kind afloat.

Started During Conference.

If the X-1 is fitted with a 13.5 inch weapon a clash with the American government is expected, as it might be considered that a rifle of this size aboard a submarine contravenes the Washington naval agreement whereby Great Britain is bound not to equip any ship with a larger than an 8 inch gun except the two battleships now building.

As the X-1 was laid down during the Washington conference exactly ten days before the agreement was signed, it may be argued that the restrictions do not apply.

VIENNA, June 16.—A plot to assassinate Crown Prince Carol of Roumania by Magyar revolutionists in Transylvania was discovered at Bucharest today. The revolutionists also had planned to wipe out the entire dynasty, as well as prominent army officers. A score have been arrested.

VIENNA, June 16.—British intervention, backed up by the United States minister at Belgrade, Thursday at midnight, caused the little entente to revise its warlike ultimatum to Bulgaria and at least temporarily saved the Balkans from being plunged into war.

H. Percival Dodge, the American minister, joined Great Britain and Italy in demanding the Jugo-Slav government recall the mobilization order arranged for midnight and the plans for a Bulgarian occupation, it was learned.

H. PERCIVAL DODGE [(C) Harris & Ewing.]

Sir C. Alban Young, the British minister, called on Premier Pachitch and announced that if the ultimatum was delivered Great Britain and Italy would intervene. Similar warnings were delivered by the British ministers at Prague, Bucharest, and Athens, and as a result the council of ministers at Belgrade pulled the teeth of the ultimatum. The note finally delivered to Sofia was almost a nice invitation to a party.

Explains Change of Front.

The explanation of the little entente's change of front, which was made public, states that the action was postponed because Bulgaria demobilized over night.

The Jugo-Slav minister at Vienna has announced that the little entente expects to place a military control commission in Sofia to assure Bulgarian disarmament. The Bulgarian minister at Vienna asserted that the Sofia government would not accept such an arrangement under any circumstances.

Sofia dispatches stated that the Bulgarian cabinet decided today to recall King Ferdinand, who is at the family home at Coburg, Germany, but no final decision was taken.

May Appeal to League.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LAUSANNE, June 16. — The Jugo-Slav and Roumanian delegations to the Lausanne peace conference are keeping an anxious watch on the Balkan disturbances, with the intention of going across the lake to Geneva to lay their case before the league of nations at the first hint of bad behavior by Premier Zankoff's Bulgarian government. The Serbs frankly do not believe the official version of M. Stamboulisky's death, and, because of the Zankoff cabinet's political affiliations with the Belgrade government, they fear trouble.

BARE REPUBLIC PLOT

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOFIA, June 16.—An official newspaper today exposes the alleged discovery of the archives and minutes of the sittings of the late cabinet, revealing a plot by former Premier Alexander Stamboulisky and his ministers to overthrow the monarchy and erect a republic, with M. Stamboulisky as president.

There is no question that M. Stamboulisky often considered the advantages of a republic, having brought up the subject before the sobranje, but outside of the bald statement of the government the exposé is not proven.

Charges Abuse of Power.

The new government's propaganda charges M. Stamboulisky with insincerity, partiality, and abuse of his powers.

M. Stamboulisky's faults, weaknesses, and mistakes, of which he had many, were largely due to a lack of education, however. He told THE TRIBUNE correspondent three years ago that a man never amounted to anything until he came in contact with the soil. He had been a farmer. This contempt of all enterprise not agrarian was mainly responsible for his failure.

Honors Bogus, 3 "Decorated" Citizens Find

Medals and kisses on both cheeks, conveying the "gratitude of the government of France" to three officials of the American Protective League, brought the donor of both, E. F. Bolserman, to the court of United States Commissioner Glass yesterday on a charge of impersonating a representative of a foreign government.

VICTOR ELTING. [Tribune Photo.]

The recipients of the Medaille de la Reconnaisance Francaise," which only the most distinguished heroes may wear," as named in the charges were Victor Elting, prominent attorney and former president of the City club; Charles Daniel Frey, head of an advertising firm, and A. M. Briggs of New York, president of the Foster Advertising company.

Medals and the Accolade.

The presentation was described to Commissioner Glass:

"It was in the Blackstone hotel on the night of May 8. Many guests had been invited to attend the ceremony, in which the league was to receive recognition from France for its war work on the home sector. Evening clothes were worn by all.

"Speakers lauded the war efforts of the three prominent members. The organization of the league and its accomplishments were reviewed. The big moment arrived. 'Capt. Ellis Boisumeau' had been banqueted and toasted; now he was called upon to respond.

"The names of Lafayette and Pershing were linked with those of the three to be honored by the French republic. France would never forget the medals were only symbolic, but the sentiment attached to them would live forever. 'Capt. Boisumeau' was permitted the pleasure of conferring everlasting distinction upon those who deserved it. The medals were pinned on with due pomp—and kissing.

Then the Blow Falls.

"Mr. Elting was absent. His beribboned token would be mailed to him. It was. Only the osculation was lost to him.

"Later came the dénouement. 'Capt. Boisumeau' was a fraud. He was arrested. He is here, commissioner, he is here."

M. Antonin Barthelemy, the French consul, pleaded: 'It would embarrass his government if the trial went on. Better to forget and forgive.

Assistant District Attorney Swanson assented. Boiserman had been an American doughboy and had won medals and decorations for heroism; he had been wounded and gassed; this was only a boyish prank.

"Call the next case," directed Commissioner Glass.

Two Women Injured in Auto Collision

An automobile in which were two men and two women was struck by another car in Dempster street west of Evanston early this morning and turned over twice. The women were seriously injured and were taken to the Evanston hospital by the highway police. The other car sped away. In the wrecked car were Miss H. K. THWART NEGRO MOB; 2 KILLED; RAIDS SEQUEL

Colored Policemen Prove Heroes.

Two Negro "bad men" were shot and killed last night, one by a colored policeman and another by an investigator for the Committe of Fifteen, as a climax to an afternoon of feverish excitement in the "black belt" during which police raiding squads, armed with axes and sledge hammers, had battered down the doors of barricaded gambling dens and vice resorts.

In both shootings, which occurred within a half a block of each other near a colored amusement park at 32d street and Wabash avenue where hundreds of Negroes were milling about on the sidewalks and in the streets, quick action on the part of colored policemen averted threatened mob violence.

Killed by Investigator.

Charles P. Domm, 1825 West Adams street, a vice investigator in the employ of Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent of the Committee of Fifteen, shot and killed Fred Everett Perdue, colored, after the latter had knocked him down, moved towards his hip pocket and hurled a death threat at the prostrate man.

Domm, who carries a deputy sheriff's star, was passing 3126 South State street when he paused to listen to a quarrel between Perdue and Mrs. Grace Banks, a light skinned Negress whom the investigator thought was a white woman. Mrs. Banks, the wife of Ernest J. Banks, a Pullman porter now in Omaha, says she was quarreling with Perdue, a roomer at her home, over some keys. Domm says as he paused he saw Perdue grab the woman's arm and thought he was going to attack her.

Domm Leaves Scene.

Perdue turned, hurled an insulting remark at Domm, ordered him to "move on about his business" and, descending the steps, made a gesture at the investigator. A colored boy, running up to Domm, told him the woman was Perdue's wife. Domm then walked quickly away and turned over to Wabash avenue along 32d street.

As he reached the corner diagonally opposite the amusement park where hundreds of Negroes were congregated, an automobile drew up at the curb and Perdue and Mrs. Banks leaped out of it. With an oath, the Negro felled Domm with a blow in the mouth.

"I'll kill you!" he shouted and reached toward his pocket.

Fearing his assailant was going to draw a pistol, Domm, still lying on the ground, jerked out his own weapon and fired one shot. Perdue dropped with a bullet through the heart.

Crowd Quickly Gathers.

Negroes came running from all directions. The Banks woman clawed at the investigator and urged the crowd to attack him. Domm exhibited his star and backed away. The time was ripe for trouble. Probably many of those in the crowd had been caught or narrowly escaped being caught in the afternoon raids.

There were cries of "Stool pigeon," "Gambling spy," and "Get the deputy sheriff."

Sergt. William A. Middleton, colored, attached to the detective bureau but now on furlough, was a block away. With him were A. M. Fields, colored librarian in the state's attorney's office, and Roy E. Chestnut, a federal mail employé, also colored. They saw the crowd growing in size and ran to the scene.

Colored Policeman a Hero.

Several Negroes had struck Domm, and one was slashing at him with a knife when Middleton burst through the crowd. He passed one of his two guns to Chestnut and pulled back his coat to show his star.

"We're the law!" he shouted. "I'll put a bullet in the first man who makes a break!"

He backed Domm against a wall and stood in front of him, with his revolver leveled at the surging throng. The knife wielder made another pass at Domm, but Middleton struck the blow aside and the knife ripped the detective sergeant's coat. Two other colored policemen, John Scott and William Smith, ran to Middleton's assistance and aided in holding the crowd at bay until the patrol wagon from the Stanton avenue station arrived and took Domm to that station.

"Bad Man" Grows Defiant.

A short while later Detective Sergeants John O'Brien and Oscar Ridley, both colored, who had been sent to the vicinity of the amusement park to prevent further trouble and to disperse any crowds that might collect, saw several Negroes stop an automobile midway of the block. A score or more were crowded about the machine, believed to have been driven by a white man.

As O'Brien edged through the ring about the machine a giant Negro stopped him. O'Brien flashed his star.

"I don't care who you are!" the man shouted. "I'm traveling this beat tonight and I'm looking for a couple of these deputy sheriffs. I'm going to knock off a couple tonight."

"I'm a police officer," O'Brien repeated.

"And I'm traveling this beat," the other returned, drawing a razor.

Policeman Kills His Man.

O'Brien whipped out his gun. The man seized his right wrist and slashed at him with the razor. O'Brien jumped back and warned again. His assailant made another lunge, but collapsed in the middle of it. A bullet from O'Brien's gun pierced his heart.

Ridley had jerked out his gun and, fanning it from side to side, waded into the crowd and scattered the spectators, muttering ominously.

Domm was removed quickly from the Stanton avenue station and taken to the detective bureau, together with Mrs. Banks. There the latter attempted to attack Domm and threatened to "get him." Mr. Thrasher and Mrs. Domm reached the bureau later.

Thrasher Praises Domm.

"Domm is one of our most reliable investigators," Mr. Thrasher said. "He has been in our employ about five months. It was largely on his reports that Chief Collins closed the Radio inn and other black and tan resorts. He has been threatened a number of times because of his activities in the south side bad lands."

No marks of identification could be found on the man who was shot by O'Brien.

The shootings were prefaced by a series of raids through which Chief Collins hoped to bring a halt to what appeared to be attempts to reestablish "wide open" gambling on a large scale in the "black belt." More than fifty prisoners were taken.

"Policy Kings" Seized.

"Patsy" King and "Policy Sam" Young, a Negro, both of whom controlled the "policy game" in the days when gaming was countenanced in Chicago, were included in the day's haul, together with several wagon loads of paraphernalia.

In the old days "Patsy" King controlled the policy games in the loop, while Young ruled the south side territory. A few days ago Sergt. George O'Connor, head of the chief's gambling squad, learned that "Patsy" had returned from a long sojourn in Florida, formed an alliance with Young, and the two were operating as the "Springfield and Indiana Policy Syndicate," capitalized at $100,000, in rooms over Teenan Jones' saloon at 3445 South State street.

Lieut. Egan Leads Raid.

Accompanied by members of his squad and Lieut. John Egan and Detective Sergeants Michael McFadden, Fred Tapscott and James McCarthy from the bureau, O'Connor swooped down on the place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. As usual, the two lookouts at front and rear gave the warning and all doors were barricaded, but the policemen had armed themselves with sledge hammers and axes.

Six doors were smashed in and a portion of a wall was cut away before the policemen gained entrance. Time had been given sixty Negro gamblers to escape through secret doors over roofs, but the detectives seized King and Young and sixteen "sheet writers." They also seized $90, a printing press used to print policy slips, a drawing machine, and other gambling paraphernalia.

Dice Game Nets 22.

From there they aped to "Marsh" Golden's place at 111-115 West 35th street and took Golden, alias Montague, and twenty-two crap shooters into custody. The next stop was at 3840 South State street, a dice and poker joint conducted by Al Jean, a partner in the old palmy days of "Mushmouth" Johnson who ran a gambling place at 464 South State street. Card and dice tables became kindling wood under police axes and more prisoners were loaded into patrol wagons from the Stanton avenue station.

William Hughes, booked as keeper of a gambling place said to be owned by Frank Hawley on the second floor at 14 East 30th street, was fined $50 and costs by Municipal Judge John Richardson. Forty-five inmates of the place taken in a raid on Friday were fined $2 and costs each.

SHOTS FROM RUM AGENTS SCATTER BOOZE RUNNERS

Atlantic City, N. J., June 16.—A volley of shots, fired by United States coast guards with sawed off shotguns early today, sent scattering seaward a small fleet of power boats, manned, according to the federal officials, by rum smugglers. Captain Louis Smith, in charge of the government men, said he thought none of the shots had taken effect and that the occupants of the flotilla had not returned the fire of the coast guards.

Coast guards yesterday saw several launches leaving Absecon Inlet. By nightfall the boats had not returned and a detail of officials waited in a government boat. Suddenly a flash of lightning revealed the returning boats a few hundred feet distant. The government launch started in pursuit, and its occupants commenced firing.

Protests were filed today by citizens who declared that shots during the firing flew over the board walk, endangering promenaders.

New Registry Envelope to Be Issued by U. S.

A new and improved envelope, linen lined, of special color and embossed with a 12 cent stamp, will soon be placed on the market for use in sending registered mail matter. The announcement was made yesterday by Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder on information received from John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general at Washington.

M'GINNIS 'DEMON,' MYNA TESTIFIES; DEFENDS SISTER

'Don't Remember,' Haven from State's Traps.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Myna Pioch, under cross examination by Assistant State's Attorney William Rittenhouse, twisted up the corners of her memory as much as the lines of her mouth yesterday as she attempted to "remember" facts to back up her assertions that the man she killed was a "drunken fiend," given to beating his wife and threatening to kill her.

MISS MYNA PIOCH.

The blonde girl, on trial with her sister, Mrs. Anna McGinnis, and their youthful companions in loving and killing, Francis S. Nee and Charles I. Schade, for the murder of Michael McGinnis, is untutored in the art of subtle appeal. So she registered her mental discomfort by glaring at the jury. And she would snap out "I don't remember" whenever the prosecutor sought to follow up her generalities about the way "Mike beat Anna lots of times, till I had to mop up the blood."

Sister Has Nervous Moment.

"And you never heard or saw your sister do anything unlike a true and faithful wife, did you?"

As Myna hunched forward in her chair to answer, the widow, her plain gold wedding band glistening against her black, seemed to glance toward young Schade, two seats away.

"No," the witness answered, and Mrs. McGinnis halted the nervous twitching of her chin. "No, not so far as I know," Myna continued, and the widow shifted uneasily.

Asked how Mike treated his wife, Myna replied that he was fine when sober, but when drunk, a demon.

"He would threaten her life, sometimes once a month sometimes twice a week. He'd beat her up and give her a bloody nose. Yes, I've had to mop up the blood already."

Having declared the fireman had often struck her, Miss Pioch explained she remained in the McGinnis home in order to protect her sister.

"But you worked every day from seven in the morning until supper time," commented Prosecutor Rittenhouse.

Depicts Tragedy Night.

Myna told of the night of March 13, when she heard from her sister that "Mike wants to prove something," and how she had telephoned Francis Nee to accompany her for protection. The jury glanced over to the slim, white faced boy with the sloping chin, whom Myna intended to match, barehanded, against the city fireman. This same youth, her testimony brought out, escorted her within a block of the McGinnis home, gave her his revolver, and then "was persuaded not to meet the fireman."

The girl told of the argument between Mike and the sisters, who hesitated to submit to scrutiny by the "strange man." When she told McGinnis she was going home, because "Mother's waiting for me," she said he shouted, "Say, girl, it'll take an undertaker to get you out of this house."

Fatal Shots Are Fired.

"Then Mike rolled up his sleeves and rushed toward Anna and choked her."

"How long did he choke her, and how hard?" asked Prosecutor Rittenhouse.

"Why, I just don't know exactly how long or how hard, but he did."

"Then I screamed to the strange man, 'For God's sake, help her.' But he just laughed. So I began to holler 'murder.'

"Then he let go of Anna and rushed to me. He choked me so I couldn't scream, but I began to kick. I heard Anna fall off the chair and stumble into the bedroom for a revolver."

"Anna Fired First."

After several fumbles Myna remembered that "Anna fired the first shot, into McGinnis' leg. Then I fired into the ceiling." In hurried spurts of undertone she repeated her previous story of firing the next two shots, which killed McGinnis. Her eyes cut down through the bailiffs and attorneys to meet the pale, upturned face of her sister.

As she admitted her efforts at the time of her arrest to shield the two boys, Nee and Schade listened, but forgot to look. They sat like well regulated mechanisms, who move when the guiding finger of a bailiff punches them to leave the courtroom.

It is expected they will take the stand in their own defense Tuesday, following Mrs. McGinnis, who will testify Monday.

SOUTH SIDE RACE RIOT PREVENTED

Serious trouble was narrowly averted last night when Charles P. Domm, an investigator for the Committee of Fifteen, shot and killed a colored man who attacked him at 32d street and Wabash avenue. Angry Negroes were menacing Domm when Sergt. William Middleton (right) forced the crowd back and rescued him. Middleton was assisted by R. E. Chestnut (center), an employe of the mail service. COLLINS SHIFTS 2 CAPTAINS AND 5 LIEUTENANTS

Allman Sent to Hyde Park.

Two captains, five lieutenants, twelve sergeants, and seventeen patrolmen are included in a "shakeup" order issued last night by Chief of Police Collins, to become effective tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

CAPT. JAMES P. ALLMAN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Capt. James P. Allman goes from Englewood to Hyde Park, to succeed Capt. Patrick T. McAuley, who is ill in the Sacred Heart sanitarium. Capt. Michael Lee is shifted from Brighton Park to Englewood, and Lieut. William M. Murphy of the West Chicago avenue station is promoted to an acting captaincy at Brighton Park.

Doherty Goes to Marquette.

Lieut. James E. Doherty, now at the West North avenue station, will exchange places with Lieut. William J. Husar at Marquette station, while Lieut. Michael Delaney is transferred from Stanton avenue to Kensington, where residents of the neighborhood petitioned Chief Collins for his return.

Lieut. James E. Van Natta, whose indictment in the federal court on booze conspiracy charges was quashed and a second voted recently, goes from Englewood to Summerdale station. Patrolman Daniel J. Crowe of North Robey street is reassigned to the detective bureau.

Haymarket Veteran Quits.

Patrolman Henry Roche, veteran of the Haymarket riots, retired yesterday after completing thirty-eight years of continuous service on the force, thirty-three years of which he was assigned to the Cottage Grove avenue station. Five years ago he was transferred to the traffic division and has since been stationed in the loop. He is 68 years old, and has two sons, William and Joseph L. Roche.

NEW ZOO LAW TO GO ON BALLOT NEXT NOVEMBER

Cook county voters will be asked next November to approve a bill providing for a special tax of $500,000 annually for five years, to be used in constructing the McCormicy Zoölogical garden near Riverside, and $150,000 annually thereafter for its maintenance. The bill has passed both houses and presented to the governor, who is expected to sign it.

As soon as it is approved, steps will be taken to build the zoo at once, under the direction of the Chicago Zoölogical society, it was said yesterday by Commissioner Frank J. Wilson, chairman of the zoo committee of the county board which sponsors the plan.

STAMBOULISKY FIFTH GENOA CONFEREE TO MEET VIOLENT DEATH

BERLIN, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ex-Premier Stamboulisky of Bulgaria is the fifth statesman among those who participated in the Genoa conference of April, 1922, to meet a violent death, it is pointed out here. Three of the participants have been assassinated. These were: Premier Narutowics of Poland; Foreign Minister Walter Rathenau of Germany, and Vaclav Vorovsky, Russian soviet diplomatic agent (assassinated at Lausanne last month).

The fourth victim was ex-Premier Gounaris of Greece, executed last fall by the Greek revolutionists.

It is noted further that the delegates to Genoa of most of the western powers have since been dropped from office by their respective governments.

URGE SMALL TO SIGN CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S BILL

Eighty thousand Illinois clubwomen, Rotarians, and representatives of the Illinois Federation of Labor began a postal and telegraphic bombardment of Gov. Small yesterday urging him to sign the crippled children's bill, house bill 325, which passed the legislature last Friday.

The bill, introduced by Mrs. Lottie H. O'Neill, representative from the forty-first district, asks an appropriation of $500,000 to enable school directors and boards to establish classes and schools for crippled children. This provides $300 per child annually.

"It is fitting that Illinois should have a state law providing for crippled children," said Mrs. W. R. Cubbins, chairman of the orthopedic committee of the Chicago Woman's club. "State aid has been given to all other types of the helpless."

CITY AND COUNTY AIDS MAY GET A MONTH IN CAMP

The city council and the county board will be asked next week to permit municipal and county employés of suitable age to spend the month of August in military training at Camp Custer, it was announced yesterday. Full pay is to be given those who attend, if the plan carries, with the provision that the regular two weeks vacation period of employés is to be included as part of the month.

FISHERMEN, ATTENTION!

Regularly during the summer, the Chicago and North Western Ry. will issue Bulletins showing the best catches of Bass, Muskellunge, Pickerel, and Pike in the 7,000 Lakes Region of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, and other information of interest to every fisherman. Bulletin No. 1, showing early season catches of Muskies and Pike, has just been issued. Write C. A. Cairns, P. T. M., C. & N. W. Ry., 226 W. MERCURY KILLED MRS. LINDHOLM, EXPERT CHARGES

"Eighth Powder" Mystery Center at Trial.

The "corpus delicti" in the Lindholm poison murder case was established yesterday when Coroner's Physician Edward H. Hatton testified that Mrs. Emily Lindholm, wife of the dapper bank teller on trial as her slayer, met her death through mercury poisoning.

Examination of the vital organs revealed a number of traces of mercury, Dr. Hatton testified. It had been given in large doses, he said, adding that the death certificate statement that the woman had died from a gastric ulcer was incorrect.

Warren G. Lindholm sat at the defendant's table and listened without a show of emotion. It is charged he poisoned his pretty young wife so he could live in a north side "love nest with another woman."

Druggist Tells of Medicine.

Adolph Stodola, a Berwyn druggist, testified he filled prescriptions for Mrs. Lindholm at the time of her illness.

"What kind of medicine was used?" Prosecutor William McLaughlin asked.

"They were powders of a certain kind, absolutely harmless."

"Was any mercury used?"

"None whatsoever. The bottle that contained the mercury we had on hand in the store was kept locked in a safe so there was no chance for a mistake."

Powders Doctored, Theory.

The theory of the prosecution is that Lindholm "doctored" one or two of the powders by adding a small portion of mercury. Two witnesses testified that Mrs. Lindholm was gradually getting better as she took the powders, but when she took the eighth she became violently ill and showed symptoms of mercury poisoning. She died four days after this powder was given.

The state expects to rest its case on Monday. The case will not go to the jury before the middle of next week.

MOTHER OF 13 ON WAY FOR ANOTHER HARDING PARDON

Muskegon, Mich., June 16.—In an effort to appeal personally to President Harding in regard to her most recent arrest on a charge of violating the liquor laws, Mrs. Anna Hozier, mother of thirteen children, is today en route to Washington. She is accompanied by her 6 month old son, Warren Harding Hozier, whose expectant birth caused the President to pardon her while she was serving a sentence for violation of the prohibition laws eight months ago.

Arrested last week on a similar charge, Mrs. Hozier expressed confidence the President again would use his power of clemency in her behalf.

BUSCH TO STOP WRIT PROTECTION OF SHADY CAFES

Seeks to Dissolve All Injunctions.

Bright lights are to be dimmed, dim lights extinguished, and frivolity to be succeeded by gloom in cafés that were allowed to obtain injunctions during the previous administration under plans devised yesterday by Acting Corporation Counsel Frank M. Padden and Assistant Corporation Counsel Leonard J. Grossman.

LEONARD J. GROSSMAN. [Chambers Photo.]

Notices were served setting forth that the city will this week ask the various judges to dissolve injunctions that have restrained the police from closing the following places:

Bert Kelly's Stables, Rush street and Austin avenue.

The Erie café, North Clark and Erie streets.

The Derby café, 630 North Clark street.

Sam Goodman's café, 4816 South State street.

Normandie Hotel Hit.

Similar proceedings are to be instituted against the Normandie hotel, 500 North Clark street, which obtained a court order preventing the police passing upon the character of its guests, according to Mr. Grossman. In every similar injunction case the judge who issued the writ is to be petitioned to rescind the order.

Judge George F. Rush, on Attorney Grossman's showing yesterday, cancelled the injunction obtained a year ago by the Fiume café, 34th and State streets. Bartelstein's restaurant, a west side café where it was alleged several shooting matches have been staged, and Anderson's North Broadway restaurant also lost their court protection.

Entertainers Under Fire.

Legal maneuvers to delay hearing on the Entertainers' café injunction, were blocked by Grossman before Judge Ira Ryner on Friday. The café was given ten days to show cause why the injunction should not be dissolved.

It was explained by Mr. Grossman that only the places who sought and obtained injunctions are to feel the displeasure of the present corporation counsel. Well regulated places are not to be molested.

MOUNT "BURIAL WITNESS" FOUND; CASE REOPENED

Knows Four in Pier Band Traveler Asserts.

The Leighton Mount "hazing death" case of Northwestern university is to be reopened. One hundred or more witnesses — students, members of the board of directors and faculty of the university, President Walter Dill Scott, Dean Roy C. Flickinger, and others—all will have to undergo once more this week the ordeal of being called to the state's attorney's office for examination.

LEIGHTON MOUNT.

Some will be called as witnesses only to retell what they know. The majority of the students to be subpoenaed again are those who took part in the freshman-sophomore class rush of September, 1921, the student fighting during which or after which Mount disappeared.

"Saw Body Put in Pier."

The students will pass before the eyes of B. H. Rouw, traveling representative of a San Francisco collection house, who yesterday wired State's Attorney Crowe that he saw the body of Mount lowered through the Lake street pier in Evanston, under which the skeleton was found six weeks ago.

State's Attorney Crowe, after receiving the telegram from Rouw, who is in Clifton, Ariz., announced he would reopen the inquiry. He at once instructed Assistant Prosecutor Charles S. Wharton, who had charge of the previous investigation, to go to Clifton, and, "if Rouw's information warranted," bring the latter to Chicago.

Wharton started at 6:30 o'clock last night for the west. Before he left he stated that he placed considerable credence in Rouw's telegram.

"The wording of Rouw's telegram makes it the most interesting information yet received in the Mount case," Wharton said. "We received word more than a week ago that Rouw was in Evanston in 1921 and that he possessed some important information regarding the Mount mystery."

Rouw's telegram stated he "did not know I was sought as a witness in the Mount case until informed by local sheriff."

"I witnessed affair at Evanston in 1921," it continued. "Can identify at least four involved. Have good information and will assist all I can. If my presence is desired, wire transportation and expense fund at once by Western Union."

Stranger to Mount.

Rouw did not know Mount personally and never was a student at Northwestern. He said he happened to be in Evanston at the time of the class rush and is acquainted with a number of persons in Evanston. He would prefer not to give the name of his Evanston acquaintances, he added, as "some details" might have to be obtained through them and publicity at this time might injure the state's case.

Interviews with Rouw from various sources and correspondents, all received after he had telegraphed Mr. Crowe, appeared to indicate that he made some conflicting statements as to details, but that he stuck to the main statements in his telegram.

In one interview Rouw was quoted as saying he saw the students lowering Mount's body into a hole in the pier "just as the sun was setting." In another he was quoted as saying the time was late in the evening. In the former interview he stated he was driving along the lake in an automobile with another "salesman." The latter had him alone, "walking along the pier to get the lake breeze."

Main details in all the interviews, however, appeared to be substantially the same—that he did see some students with a body at the pier, at a distance of only forty or fifty paces, and that he is confident he can identify at least four of the hazing party.

Here Is Rouw's Story.

"I was walking along the pier in Evanston, getting the lake breeze late in the evening," says Rouw, in what appears to be his most reliable narrative. "I noticed a queer looking party ahead of me. I watched them idly for a while and then I was struck by the fact that they seemed to be carrying something heavy.

"I drew a little closer and saw it was a man's body. At first I paid little attention to the incident, believing it was probably a case of a party of celebrants carrying home a drunken companion.

"But soon I saw them stop. This interested me. I did not wish to seem to interfere; but I, too, stopped at a discreet distance.

"I saw them lower the body through a hole in the pier.

"Four of them lowered the body, while perhaps fifteen others stood around. They all looked and acted very scared — I'm sure they were frightened. All of them wore funny looking little college caps."

Accounts at this point differ somewhat, but it appears that, although the students noticed Rouw watching and warned him to "keep his mouth shut and not tell anybody what he had seen," he told the Evanston police of the incident.

"I went to the police station," he continued, "but a policeman there told me not to worry over what I had seen.

"'If we investigated every time the boys up at the university played a prank we'd have no time to protect the citizens and keep law and order in Evanston,' he told me with a smile.

"I didn't know, of course, that a man had been killed there," Rouw continued. "If I had I certainly would have protested more strongly to the police. But I had read of college pranks and hazing, blindfolding, and all that sort of thing, and I dismissed the matter from my mind."

"Can Identify Ringleaders."

Rouw stated he was so close to the hazing party when the body was lowered through the hole in the pier that he will have no difficulty in identifying at least four of the men—those who appeared to be the leaders.

"One had bright red hair," he said; "another was fat. I'm sure I would know these two and two others again. Not one of them appeared to be more than 20—if they were that."

Rouw stated later in the evening at a hotel in Clifton that he had received word from Assistant State's Attorney Wharton that the latter would arrive there Tuesday, and that the prosecutor had advised him not to discuss the case any further.

N. U. CELEBRATES 65TH ALUMNI DAY

Graduates of this year's Northwestern class and those of many former classes marched in a picturesque parade yesterday, in which the school purple abounded, as a part of the commencement week exercises. The oldest alumna present was Mrs. Mary Springer of Wilmette of the class of '69.

Old grads were as happy as the class of '23. Here is the class of '70 holding its own in the parade.

COBBLER, SLAIN BY NEPHEW, HAD LEFT HIM $150,000

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The estate of Gaetano Mastrota, a shoemaker who was killed in his little shop in Morris Park, Queens, Jan. 28 last, by his nephew, Albert Mastrota, is about to be a matter of contest in the surrogate's court. It developed today that the estate, principally in real property, is valued at $50,000 and that it is likely to be increased to from $150,000 to $200,000. Gaetano never let any one know he had much property and the valuation is a surprise. Albert had long been in his uncle's employ at low wages and, after the murder, it was discovered that Albert was named as the beneficiary and sole executor. He was convicted of first degree murder Friday night and it was expected that County Judge Humphreys will impose the death penalty on Monday.

Judge Boyer of Evanston Dinner Guest of Friends

Commemorating his twenty-fifth year as police magistrate and his forty-first wedding anniversary, Justice John F. Boyer was given a dinner in the library of the Plaza hotel, Evanston, last evening. Police Chief Leggett, Fire Chief Hopsetter, and other Evanston officials were present. William Levere, who presided, presented Judge Boyer with an engraved walking stick.

Charges Express Driver Filched His Furniture

Joseph Wagner, 3302 South Western avenue, hired a Dearborn Express company van to remove his goods and furniture after he had been evicted from his store. That was the last he saw of it, he charges, until he found part of the property in an old barn in Illinois street. Yesterday he obtained a John Doe warrant charging larceny against the driver.

HARD ATTACKS EDUCATION AS IS AND N. U. SMILES

His Talk Fails to Dampen Commencement Joys.

No academic attack on the value of modern education could dampen the spirits of the 3,000 Northwestern graduates who met yesterday on the campus in Evanston to celebrated that education on the university's sixty fifth alumni day.

"If one of the prime purposes of any educational system is to produce a population which can weigh evidence can discern the true from the false can avoid falling into absurd delusions, prejudices and passions, then the educational system of our country is one of the greatest failures of all time," said William Hard, author, journalist, and alumnus of the university

Rivalry Over Children.

"We have more children." "Yes, but our are prettier," were the totally disregardful answer of the graduates as the alumni processions halted long enough to let the class of 1906 compare notes with the class of 1916 as to the relative merits of future young wearers of the purple.

Floats piled high with scrambling offspring, with banners giving "vital statistics" on the number of co-ed marriages, the number of children, the number of old maids, and of eligible bachelors, could not be halted by oratorical pessimism.

The purple of their alma mater colored the procession, which gathered under class banners on the south campus from Mrs. Mary Springer of Wilmette, class of '69, and the oldest alumna present, to this year's graduating class, youthfully serious in cap and gown. Heading the column were Harold McKenzie and Mary Barthell, seniors. At the close of the parade prizes for picturesqueness were awarded by Gen. Nathan William MacChesney, master of ceremonies.

Hard in Pessimestic Vein.

When Mr. Hard spoke, following the alumni luncheon, he addressed an audience bent on making the most of the day when graybeards become young again.

"Our citizens as individuals and as groups today believe the most preposterously impossible things about one another and fill the national life with discords and violence utterly unfounded on truth and gravely destructive of that fraternal coöperation which alone can give us an abiding national strength," he declared.

"Our schools have given us much information, but they do not seem to have been successful in giving us the power of plain, trained common sense."

Northwestern shook its head wisely. Then it cheered the university with even greater enthusiasm than in former years.

Accept Mount Report.

Earlier in the morning the board of trustees had voted to accept President Walter Dill Scott's report on the Mount and Aubere cases. The board passed a resolution commending him and confirmed his appointment of Prof. Robert E. Wilson as dean of men, a new office, created to wipe out charges of hazing at the university.

Announcement that John C. Shaffer, editor and owner of the Chicago Evening Post, was the anonymous donor of the $100,000 professorship endowment which Prof. John Scott, the president's brother, will hold, also came from the board.

The Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, pastor of the Central Methodist church of Detroit and former president of the university, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Commencement exercises will be held in Patten gymnasium at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning when over 1,050 graduates will receive their diplomas.

Honorary degrees will be bestowed on William Smith Mason of Evanston, historian; Helen Scott Hay, Henry Rand Hatfield, dean of the school of commerce, University of California; Edward Curtis Franklin, president of the American Chemical society, and Dr. Norman Bridge of Los Angeles, physicist.

WOMAN LEADS IN BANDIT FORAYS; DRIVES THE CAR

Three Places Held Up and One Man Is Shot.

Led by a girl bandit who drove the large green car in which they rode and directed their movements, three holdup men robbed three stores in western suburbs and on the west side yesterday, stopped several pedestrians in Forest Park, and wounded one man during a revolver duel with one of their victims.

JOHN WATT.

A few minutes after the Forest Park police received reports that the trio had held up a number of pedestrians, the robber car sped up to the door of an Atlantic and Pacific tea store at Beloit avenue and Roosevelt road. The woman remained at the wheel while the three men entered, held up the clerk and took $55 from the cash register.

Less than ten minutes later the bandits appeared at another tea company store in Elmwood avenue in Oak Park, and escaped with $75 from the till.

Police Guard A. and P. Stores.

Believing that the band was bent on making a rapid cleanup of all the Atlantic and Pacific tea stores in that suburb, the Oak Park polic rushed a guard to every store and notified the clerks by phone to be on the look out.

The bandits did the unexpected, however, and next appeared at the drug store of Vincent Mensella, 724 North Cicero avenue. Mensella says he saw the woman point to the store and apparently give orders before the men entered and leveled their guns at him. The robbers emptied the cash register of $160 and grabbed a dozen pints of whisky from the prescription room.

Girl Ready with Revolver.

While the robbery was in progress, Mensella told the police, he looked through the window and saw the girl driver fingering a revolver which she evidently had kept on the seat beside her.

As the car sped away the druggist seized his own weapon and emptied it at the departing machine. He said he was sure several bullets struck the back of the car and possibly wounded some of the occupants. The bandits leaned out of the machine and fired back, one of their bullets striking John watt, 1528 North Laramie avenue, in the hand.

Flying squads set out to comb the boulevards in search of the green car, which, witnesses said, bore no license.

BANKERS FAIL FOR $11,000,000 ON N. Y. BOURSE

Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne Admit Collapse.

New York, June 16.—Wall street, in the midst of a many sided "cleanup campaign," directed primarily at bucket shops, was hit today by another failure—that of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, a member of the New York stock exchange and of the New York curb market.

Boasting a record of seventy years in the street, twenty-eight of them as members of the stock exchange, the supposedly powerful house, with strong German connections, was forced into a receivership with $11,000,000 liabilities. A statement of the firm, however, declared its assets were ample to meet its obligations, provided they were administered wisely, although it was admitted that a large portion of them were "slow" assets.

The failure was the first involving a stock exchange house in more than six months, although there have been a string of curb and consolidated exchange failures.

Stuck by Collapsing Marks.

Unlike most of the recent failures, there appeared no suspicion on the part of the authorities that Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne had engaged in the popular business of bucketing orders. Their failure, it was indicated, was due primarily to the falling market for German marks, in which they were the most extensive dealers in America.

Besides stock broking and dealing in the foreign exchange, the firm did a large international banking business, and it was this angle of the failure that appeared to give members great concern. It was admitted that a number of travelers abroad had put their funds into letters of credit issued by the company, and it was feared these travelers would find themselves embarrassed for funds and European banks no longer would honor the letters. Just how many such cases there were could not be ascertained.

Prosecutor Takes a Hand.

District Attorney Banton rushed three of his staff to the firm as soon as news of the filing of a bankruptcy petition reached him and they obtained assurances from M. S. Borland, the receiver, that he would make no stipulations with the firm that would prevent disclosure of their books for his scrutiny. The firm issued a statement declaring they would welcome such scrutiny, as they had nothing to conceal.

Another development in the tangled brokerage situation today was a statement by Mr. Banton charging that the stock exchange and the curb market had put no "teeth" in their recently adopted resolutions providing expulsion or suspension for any member who refused to disclose his records for examination in a civil or criminal action.

Useless Without "Teeth."

The "teeth," that were omitted, he said, was a provision for discipline of members who refused to waive immunity in so disclosing their records. He indicated hope that the two exchanges would rectify the omission.

The bucketing situation is expected to come to a head Monday when Edward M. Fuller, confessed bucketer, appears at a referee's hearing ready, the authorities hope, to tell all he knows about irregular operations in the street.

There have been reports that Fuller, hoping to gain leniency when he comes up for sentence Tuesday, would make a "clean breast," involving a ring of higher-ups who are reputed to control most of the city's bucket shops. Fuller was silent in his cell today as to how far he would go in his testimony.

His partner, William F. McGee, who also pleaded guilty of bucketing, has maintained a determined silence, declaring he pleaded guilty only to save innocent friends from further difficulty because of the case.

Carries This Firm Down.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 16.—Failure of A. W. Coote, Los Angeles stock broker and member of the Chicago board of trade, the Los Angeles stock exchange and the San Francisco stock exchange, was announced today at 2 o'clock. The failure was attributed to the financial difficulties of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne.

FLYNN GIVES BOND

FUNERALS DUE TO STOP WITH DRIVERS' STRIKE

With the breaking off yesterday of negotiations on a wage scale for chauffeurs employed by the Chicago Motor Liverymen's association, a partial stoppage of funerals in Chicago is expected tomorrow, Timothy F. Neary, secretary of local 727 of the teamsters', chauffeurs' and stablemen's union, announced last night.

"Since May 1 we have been negotiating with officials of the Chicago Motor Liverymen's association on a wage scale for the chauffeurs employed by them," asserted Neary. "We demanded an increased from $35 to $45 a week for chauffeurs who drive and wash their own cars, an increase from $35 to $42 a week for chauffeurs who only drive. The liverymen's association, however, says it will stand pat on its offer of $38 a week for both classes. This we have rejected."

Neary said the association has raised the rate of hire for their cars repeatedly, but the chauffeurs did not benefit thereby.

DESPONDENT, HE ENDS LIFE.

Despondent over the absence of his son, August Dieler, 4039 North Oakley avenue, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by inhaling gas.

Hoover O. K.'s Plan for "Meat for Health Week"

"I am glad to recommend any movement that makes for the elimination of national waste," asserts Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in a letter to R. C. Pollock, managing director of the National Live Stock and Meat board, endorsing the suggested meat for health week, June 25 to 30.

FLYNN PUTS UP LIBERTY BONDS FOR $25,000 BAIL

Coal Man Charges Plot of Rivals in Tax Case.

Bail was given yesterday by Mortimer B. Flynn and J. Roy Troutman, $40,000 in Liberty bonds being deposited in their behalf as the federal indictments against them were formally made public. Flynn's bond was set at $25,000 and Troutman's at $10,000, the excess $5,000 being left in the court's hands because they could not "make change."

Flynn, millionaire head of the coal company bearing his name, was named in two indictments charging false returns on his 1921 income tax. One count alleges that his personal gross income was $132,628, whereas he scheduled but $32,628, exactly $100,000 less than the government agents charge his company earned for him.

Padded Exemption Charged.

The second allegation was that for his company's return he deducted $478,056 as exemption where as he was legally entitled to deduct but $187,547. Troutman, secretary and auditor of the coal company, was charged with conspiracy in connectiton with the alleged evasions.

Arrangements for the surrender were made by Attorney Harry Blossat with U. S. Marshal Robert Levy. Flynn and Troutman were accompanied by several friends who passed the sheaf of Liberty bonds across the counter to E. A. Feldott, assistant U. S. district attorney in the office of Robert Jamar, clerk of the U. S. District court. Judge Adam Cliffe came in and attached his signature to the documents.

Blames It to Coal Fight.

"I convinced the state grand jury I was clean in my dealings with the board of education," Flynn said. "I expect no trouble convincing a federal jury that I was honest in my payment of taxes. It's because I would never join the coal dealers' association that I am here. They have fought me bitterly and I fought them back. Now they wish to make me out a tax dodger.

"It's silly. Competent and reputable auditing firms went over my books and the income tax schedule was based on their reports. That will be proved in good time."

While neither Flynn nor Attorney Blossat would discuss the next move of Flynn, it was intimated they would go to Washington in an endeavor to have the highest revenue officials pass on the sufficiency of the tax payments.

ASSEMBLY TAKES A SHORT STEP TO ECONOMY GOAL

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—This legislature, which adjourns next Tuesday, has set one important precedent. It has made some progress toward right thinking on expenditures. It has attempted for the first time in more than forty years, according to reliable senators and representatives, to look at appropriations from the viewpoint of the taxpayers.

Perhaps the progress in that direction has not been as much as many would like, but the point is that progress has been made. It has trimmed the requests of Gov. Small and his subordinates for money to spend. These cuts are between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, which means from 6 to 9 per cent.

It is said that this is the first time in two score of years that the senate and the conference committee has not boosted the omnibus appropriations. Two years ago the conference committee in the night added several million to the omnibus. Then Gov. Small claimed credit from one end of the state to the other for vetoing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Monument of Economy.

He posed as a saver of money by cutting out some of the appropriations which his controlled legislature had inserted into the bill. The omnibus then was handled with a boldness and daring that was reckless.

To illustrate: Senator Essington [Rep., La Salle] stood on the floor of the senate and told his colleagues that he refused to vote for a bill which he had been prevented from knowing anything about. Senator Glenn [Rep., Jackson] left the senate in disgust before the vote was taken. Yet both these senators are recorded as having voted for the bill.

This year the system is changed. The omnibus bill has been printed and placed on the desks of the members of both houses where, under the rules, it must rest for three legislative days before it is considered. Every legislator may therefore know what is in the bill before he is called on to vote next Tuesday.

"Cheating the Assembly."

The reform has accomplished results already. The omnibus bill, as presented by Gov. Small to the house, called for the appropriation of $18,890,647. But that was cheating the legislature, in its opinion.

This bill contained only $2,617,280 in reappropriations for permanent improvements. The house decided that that figure should be $3,047,088, and the senate agreed with that judgment, the senate's figure being $3,019,361. By leaving out necessary reappropriations the governor's subordinates made the omnibus appear smaller than it really should have been.

Eliminating these items of reappropriation for permanent improvements, the governor asked an omnibus bill totaling $16,273,367. That is what the governor and subordinates asked to be permitted to spend.

Committee Trims the Bill.

The house sent the bill to its appropriations committee. There Chairman Smejkal and his committeemen trimmed the bill. When the house had finished with it, the total was only $15,715,621. Then it went to the senate and to its appropriations committee. There Chairman Wright and his associates decided on further reductions. When the senate finished the bill the total was $14,367,529.

Then the bill went to the conference committee of both houses. They deciates decided on further reductions. pute. They also made it a rule that no item would be boosted above the largest amount fixed by either house, nor below the lowest amount fixed by either house.

The governor's aids clamored to get before the committee. It was necessary to station a guard at the door to keep the hungry officeholders outside. When the conference committee had finished the total was $14,688,010.

Too Much Secrecy Yet.

There is still one serious defect in the legislative proceedure, the secrecy of the conference committee. There is no reason why the public should not know the arguments and motives which move the conference committee to trim here and add there to the appropriations.

There is also opportunity to improve the attitude of the governor's subordinates. On a few occasions, when they have been heard to discuss their alleged pleas for money with legislators, the reporter has been given the impression that the administrative official was giving orders to the legislator instead of making a request.

Publicity of the remarks of the administrative officials would probably modify their attitude. But as long as the meetings of the conference committee are secret it will be impracticable to ascertain the arguments of the administrative officials.

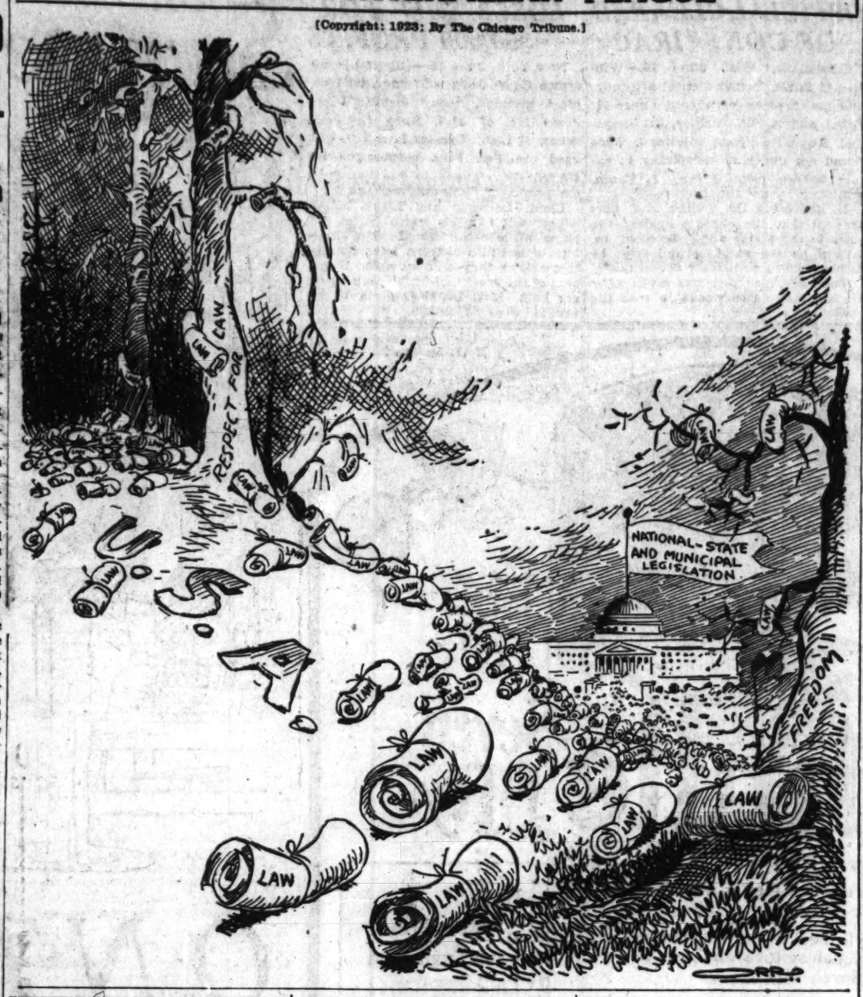
Two Plum Jobs Dropped.

During the consideration of the state officers' salaries appropriation in the senate last night Senator Swift of Lake county succeeded in detaching two of Small's main country supporters from the payroll. George B. Shaw of Dixon, superintendent of department reports in the department of finance, was the first to suffer, the vote being 18 to 9 to strike his entire salary of $3,600 from the bill.

In presenting the amendment Sen. Swift charged that Shaw is the editor of the Dixon Telegraph, that he only spends about a day a month in Springfield.

Sen. Swift next attacked Charles B. Townsend of Aurora, assistant director of labor, calling attention to Townsend having spent two months at Waukegan during the trial of Gov. Small. The senate struck Townsend's salary from the bill.

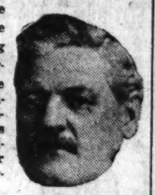
ANOTHER CATERPILLAR PLAGUE



BUSINESS TO TAX SELF UNDER NEW BILL, DEVER SAYS

Merchant Body Will Fix Levy on Industry.

License fees to be assessed against all local industries except public utilities, under the Chicago license bill now awaiting Gov. Small's signature, will be fixed by a commission of representative business men, Mayor William E. Dever promised yesterday.



MAYOR DEVER. [Wallinger Photo.]

The bill, which was limited in application to Chicago only by a senate amendment, empowers the city council to levy a maximum $1,000 tax on all businesses and is the direct result of the refusal of manufacturers and storekeepers to pay an income tax levied by city ordinance. The law is to be effective for three years only.

"Business men of Chicago, through commissioners to be appointed by me from their ranks, will 'write their own tickets' on the levy against the varied industries which will be taxed if the governor signs the bill," declared Mayor Dever.

Not Intended as Burden.

"The bill is not designed to be an additional burden to already over-taxed businesses, but to forestall the far heavier drain on their resources if the impending deficit in the city's finances is not wiped out."

In considering the present budget the council, according to the mayor, assumed that at least 95 per cent of the yearly tax levy would be collected. Since the passage of the budget it has become apparent that less than 87 per cent of the levy is forthcoming, thereby creating a deficit variously estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

"Two solutions were presented and both rejected for the plan to license businesses," continued the mayor. "Wholesale reductions in the city's pay rolls and consequent slowing up if not abandonment of many necessary activities were offered in some quarters, while others suggested an increase in taxes, admittedly too high now."

Many Industries Hit.

Fees as low as $25 each for small stores will be suggested to the rate fixing commission, while net income and pay roll figures will be the basis of assessment on larger stores and factories, it is said. Packing plants, automobile sales agencies and factories, grain elevators, ice factories, detective agencies, junk yards, lumber yards, groceries, meat markets, ice cream parlors, and pool halls are among the businesses to be hit by the new levy.

Should the bill receive the governor's signature, it is probable, the mayor declared, that no supplemental budget will be necessary this year, unless emergencies arise before July 1 which require the replenishment of certain contingent funds depleted under the Thompson regime.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Samuel S. Yedor, 7659 South Halsted street, states that he is not the Samuel Yedor mentioned in THE TRIBUNE last Wednesday, who, after eloping with Mildred Shomo, had fired five shots at her father, and then fled.

Mrs. Robert T. Mack, secretary of the Chicago Woman's aid states that the City-Wide Play festival was sponsored by that organization and not the board of education as stated recently in THE TRIBUNE.

GIRL ENDED LIFE AS SWEETHEART DIED, IS BELIEF

A suicide following a blighted high school romance was revealed yesterday, it is believed, by the Oak Park police, with the finding by Coroner's Chemist William D. McNally of a large quantity of cyanide of sodium in the vital organs of 18 year old Mary Rygg, daughter of Anton Rygg, a jeweler, living at 532 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park.

Miss Rygg was found dead in bed by an older sister on June 10. It was at first supposed that a goiter from which she suffered had proved fatal.

Members of the family then recalled that Mary had appeared despondent since attending three days before, the funeral of her sweetheart, Raymond Merell, 20 years old, of 417 South Taylor street, Oak Park, a victim of heart disease.

CHICAGO WOMAN HEADS OVERSEAS SERVICE LEAGUE

Louise Wells of Chicago was unanimously re-elected president of the Women's Overseas Service league at the close of the annual convention at the Drake hotel yesterday. Other officers are Helen Courtenay, Indianapolis, recording secretary; Dorothy P. Smith, Chicago, corresponding secretary, and Elizabeth F. Martin, Chicago, treasurer.

San Francisco was chosen as the convention city for 1924.

The work being done among 500 disabled overseas women in California hospitals was explained by Mrs. Eugene B. Sturgis of San Francisco, who made a plea for a resolution, which was adopted, calling for funds with which to carry on the rehabilitation work among these veterans. A resolution authorizing the sending of a letter to the War Department, urging construction of a home and hospital for the exclusive use of disabled overseas women, was also adopted.

ELKS TO HONOR PAST HIGH RULER AND GOV. PARKER

A banquet and reception for John M. Parker, governor of Louisiana and a member of New Orleans Elks' lodge, and Col. John P. Sullivan, Past Grand Exalted Ruler of the Order, will be given in the banquet room of the Elks' clubhouse, 174 West Washington street, on next Tuesday at 7 p. m. Gov. Parker is returning to New Orleans from Boston, where he addressed the Elks at their Flag day celebration.

Many of Chicago's leaders will be at the speakers' table. The Elks band will furnish a musical program. Mayor Dever and his cabinet have been invited to participate.

"Have you seen that Velie Motor?"
—that's the word that's going 'round among automobile men
For the Velie-built motor is the livest topic of conversation in automobile circles today. Not all these comments are favorable to Velie—competitors discount this motor, naturally.
They have to, in their own interest, discount the merits of an engine that is at least two years ahead in design, while there is no immediate prospect of anything in its price class to compete with it.
Bear in mind two things: This is the motor whose automatic lubrication system, force-feeding oil even to the piston pins, is adapted from the airplane and has been featured previously only on a few of the most expensive cars.
And this is the engine that is delivering to thousands of Velie owners from 20 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.
There must be some reason for the tremendous increase in Velie popularity.
If you want the real facts about motors and car value in the medium-priced field, talk with a Velie 58 owner. He knows.
Then come in and see for yourself.

RUHR BEGS FOR U. S. AID; FRENCH CUT OFF FOOD

Seizure of Rail Lines Stops Supplies.

DORTMUND, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—The French today occupied Dortmund's central railway station, giving them control of the rail lines leading from the coal mines in the heart of the Ruhr.

Food Supplies Cut Off.

BERLIN, June 16.—The following telegram, signed by Herr Gildmeester, director of children's relief at Dortmund, was received here today:

"By the occupation of the station at the city of Dortmund, Bochum is without milk and the most necessary foodstuffs. Is there any help possible from the United States or England?"

Five German mining directors were found guilty of refusing to deliver coal to the occupational authorities by a French court martial at Werden today, according to messages received here, and were given sentences of five years imprisonment each and ordered to pay fines aggregating 1,421,000,000,000 marks (about $14,210,000).

HUNGER TO GROW

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

DUSSELDORF, June 16.—By the latest seizure of railways by the French, the Germans are left with but one single line leading from the Ruhr into unoccupied territory.

From a station just north of Gelsenkirchen on the northern edge of the Ruhr this line runs through Bismarck to Dorsten, where there is a connection wtih Munster. Food arriving at Gelsenkirchen must be distributed by motor transport. Food entering the Ruhr from any other point must come in wagons or motor trucks. There is a shortage of these already. If all were concentrated on hauling foodstuffs it is doubtful whether they could bring in a sufficient supply.

As the Ruhr normally imports 70 per cent of its food, a shortage has existed for several weeks. It has been impossible to buy meat in Essen.

Beat today costs 18,000 marks a pound, or as much as the daily dole from the government received by the tens of thousands of passive resisters. Coal is selling at 65,000 marks per hundred pounds.

These prices are due partially to scarcity and partially to the depreciation of the mark. That food will become more scarce is as certain as that the mark will go lower. And adding to the misery of the populace is the cold, rainy weather—the worst summer within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

Riot at Brandenburg.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, June 16.—As an inevitable consequence of the limitless price increases, new riots occurred today at Brandenburg, near Berlin. Food and shoe shops were plundered. Martial law was proclaimed and military reinforcements sent from Potsdam.

In an effort to solve the riddle of how to live despite the hectic fluctuations of the mark, the workers now demand that their representatives be granted seats in a statistical office, which would define daily a new minimum standard of living on which minimum wages and pensions shall be based.

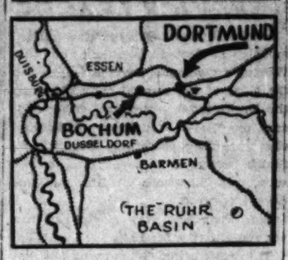
Bomb Kills French Soldier.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, June 16.—Partial derailment of the Mayence-Paris express yesterday by the explosion of a bomb placed on the tracks caused the death of one French soldier in addition to the injury of several passengers, it was learned today.

Bandits Steal $11,000 Florida Company Pay Roll

Trilby, Fla., June 16.—Three masked bandits in an automobile held up Elwood Wilson, manager of the Cummer Cypress company at Lacoochee today and escaped with $11,000, the company's pay roll.

RUHR HUNGRY



The French troops seized the main railways out of Dortmund yesterday, thus severing the last important connections in the Ruhr. An appeal from Bochum says milk and food supplies have been cut off and asks American or British help.

YANKEES IN SOUP AND FISH AT NOON SHOCK PARISIANS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, June 16.—The spectacle of a party of six Americans—three women and three men—lunching on an outnight Montmartre party, which lasted fashionable restaurant in the Bois de Boulogne, this afternoon in full evening dress shocked the fashionable dejeuner crowd.

Investigation revealed that the party was merely continuing its wild all night Montmartre party which lasted through early morning until the last resort closed about 10 o'clock, after which the revellers took an automobile spin to brace up. The fresh air gave them an appetite, so they decided to lunch without changing their clothes.

The spectacle of women without hats, with elaborate but disarranged coiffures, resplendent with jewels and with made up cheeks and large eyes, and men in evening coats, stiff shirts, pumps, and high hats, caused a great scandal, which tonight is the main topic of conversation.

British and French Sign Turk Monopoly Contract

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LAUSANNE, June 16.—British and French interests headed by Leslie Urquhart this evening signed a contract with a Turkish group giving them a practical monopoly on the import and export trade with Turkey. The plans for this contract were announced by THE TRIBUNE several days ago.

The agreement parallels the Chester concessions, both in aims and the business to be handled, and, according to all allied sources, outshadows the American concessions. The accord is called the creation of a "Corporation for the Economic Development of Turkey, Ltd.," which, with the exception of "certain reciprocal privileges, will have an exclusive monopoly on all exports and imports of Anatolia."

EX-KAISER SEES SELF BACK ON GERMAN THRONE

Bares Dream in Speech to Students.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, June 16.—For the first time in four years the former kaiser's authoritative opinions on numerous present day topics were made public today through Herman Wiehe, a young German student, reporting an interview granted to him and fellow students at his Doorn, Holland, residence.

"I do not understand how the German people could so quietly accept my resignation after all I did for Germany," the former kaiser told the students. "If I did not know for certain that monarchism is awakening every hour in Germany, I would be unable to stand the thought of ever meeting my grandfather again.

"I know the German people will return to a monarchy and give up all the ways of those who govern them today.

Socialists Lack Experience.

"The Socialists and present day politicians have not enough experience, though they have been trying to do their best. The junkers have learned lately the necessity of the quality of service which we gave and are learning how little Germany would have accomplished without the Hohenzollerns. The greatest heroism was shown by the Germans during the war, and history will prove that the German offensive of 1819 was one of the greatest of feats."

The former kaiser still believes the only reason he was dethroned was because he was right and he fondly dreams of the day he will return to Germany.

"Welcome To True Followers."

The dining room where he received the students was decorated with a carved sign reading:

"Welcome to all those who are the kaiser's true followers."

During the day the former kaiser discussed literature and various subjects with the students. Returning to politics, he said:

"I know the day will come when Germany's youth will turn from the men who cast the greatest heroes aside as old and useless furniture."

The new kaiserin was present at a show given by the students, which was a miracle play called "The Death of the Dane." The former kaiser himself did not attend because the performance coincided with the anniversary of the death of the old kaiser, the founder of the German empire, and the former kaiser did not want the world to think he was seeking pleasure on that date.

FORMER BADGER OFFICIAL CLEARED OF CONSPIRACY

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—Winfred C. Zabel, former district attorney, and his three co-defendants, Oscar H. Nebel and A. W. Richter, attorneys, and Russell Shipley, salesman, were found not guilty of conspiracy to extort $50,000 from Arthur J. Baum, stationery merchant, here today.

In delivering the verdict, the court ordered that the charges against the men brought in an indictment returned by the recent grand jury, be dismissed and no further action taken.

The court's verdict was given after he had taken two weeks to read the evidence.

MRS. LOCKLEAR LOSES SUIT FOR $50,000 PROFITS

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Tierney, on technical grounds, today dismissed the complaint of Mrs. Ruby Locklear, widow of Lieut. Ormear Locklear, who sued the Fox Film corporation for $50,000 she claimed is due her from the profits of "The Skywayman."

Lieut. Locklear and Lieut. Milton Elliott fell to their death in an airplane while being filmed. The directors of the film concern later notified the widows they had set aside 10 per cent of the profits, of which each would get half. Mrs. Locklear declared the profits were $1,000,000.

PUNT NEWMARK AND BOYLE; BOTH FORFEIT BONDS

State Starts Its Sleuths After Fugitives.

Bonds of Ben Newmark and Michael J. Boyle, fugitives from justice in the alleged Small jury fixing, were ordered forfeited yesterday. The Aetna Casualty and Surety company, which signed the bonds, $2,000 for each man, was ordered to produce them in court or to pay over the bail money.

BEN NEWMARK. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Newmark and Boyle are both under sentences of $100 fine and six months in jail for contempt of court for refusal to answer questions by the grand jury investigating the Small jury bribing charges. They have eluded the deputies who were ordered to seize them when they failed to appear to begin serving their sentences.

Orders Bonds Forfeited.

Judge Claire C. Edwards ordered the bonds forfeited and the writs for the bonding company issued on a motion by State's Attorney A. V. Smith, when the latter reported that Boyle and Newmark apparently had fled to avoid serving in jail. The state's attorney at the same time announced he has operatives seeking the two men and no effort will be spared to bring them in.

Particular effort to locate the two men will be made before June 25, the state's attorney added, for they are wanted on that date as witnesses in the trial of J. B. Field, Eddie Courtney and Eddie Kaufman on charges of conspiring to bribe the jury which acquitted Gov. Small.

Field was a juror in the Small case. Kaufman and Courtney are alleged Chicago gunmen sent to Waukegan before and during the trial to arrange the alleged details of the bribery.

Judge Hopkins to Preside.

Judge Jacob Hopkins of the Criminal court of Cook county will sit in the first of the jury fixing trials involving Field-Courtney-Kaufman, it was announced. Judge Hopkins has agreed to preside, and Prosecutor Smith stated he is acceptable to both sides.

Hopkins will be the third judge to sit in the Small jury fixing scandal. Judge Edwards, who sat in the Small trial, was sitting when the grand jury opened its investigation. When he asked to be relieved, Judge R. K. Welsh of Rockford was brought in. Since Judge Welsh is to resign on July 1, Judge Hopkins has been asked to come into it.

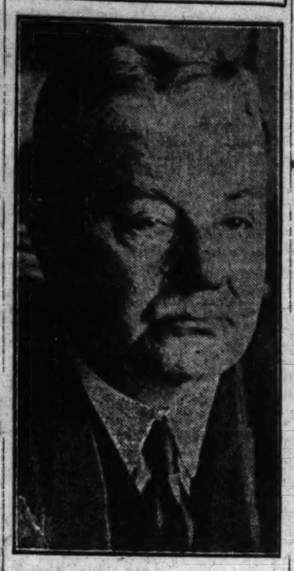
Field Taken to Rockford.

William J. Riley, former saloonkeeper of Antioch, who has confessed that he took money from Kaufman and Courtney to bribe Field, was removed yesterday to Rockford. He has been in custody and under constant guard since his arrest several months ago. Riley confessed he spent $650 of $1,000 given him by Courtney and Kaufman to bribe field, and gave Field the remaining $350.

State's Attorney Smith went into court to demand the bonds of Boyle and Newmark be forfeited after Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom of Lake county stated he had learned in Chicago that Newmark and Boyle "have gone fishing and will not be back until October."

The sheriff told the prosecutor he learned this in McGovern's saloon at 68th and Halsted streets, where Boyle made his headquarters.

Small Case Judge



Jacob H. Hopkins, picked to preside at jury bribery trial in Waukegan.

NAB SLICKER ON TRAIL OF WOMAN WORTH $60,000

U. S. Sleuths Arrest Him on Way to Dinner.

Johann Bauder, declared to be an internationally known swindler, who was deported from the United States in 1910, was arrested yesterday afternoon by agents of the department of justice as he was about to keep a dinner engagement with a woman possessing property worth approxately $60,000. In his possession were found quit claim papers which, it is believed, were to be used in transferring the woman's property to himself. They were complete except for the signature. The name of the woman was not divulged.

Johann Bauder.

Bauder said he was head of the International Distributing company, with offices in the Lytton building, and lived at 4700 Sheridan road. He was arrested by Special Agents Jacob Spolanski and Walter G. Walker of the bureau of investigation, Department of Justice.

Swiss Also After Him.

The prisoner will be arraigned before United States Commissioner James R. Glass on Monday morning on a charge of being in the excluded class of immigrants because of his deportation in 1910 after attempting to enter the country with a woman not his wife. Both he and the woman were deported, but Bauder immediately returned to the United States.

In February, 1914, the government of Switzerland, of which Bauder is a native, requested that extradition proceedings be recognized in connection with a charge against him of having sold fake stocks totaling 600,000 francs. Names of two American companies which he used were the Austin Manhattan Consolidated Mining company and the International Commonwealth Securities association.

Served Five Years in Prison.

The extradition proceedings were defeated, but Bauder was returned to Switzerland by the immigration authorities. He was found guilty in Basel, Switzerland, on the fake stock charge and served five years in prison. He was released in May, 1920, and came to the United States, organizing the Chicago company.

LAW MAKING AND LAW BREAKING.

The resignation of Robert E. Tod, immigration commissioner at New York, is worth something more than a footnote in that great volume on democracy entitled the United States.

Mr. Tod, it seems, has been trying to enforce the immigration law and he is tired of the job. But he has tired not because of a conflict with the lawless, like a prosecuting attorney, but because of a conflict with the reputed law abiding, even, and in fact especially, the representatives of law and legality.

In other words, Mr. Tod has been up against political pull. Repeatedly he has complained of pressure brought to induce him to shut his eyes that unfit immigrants might slip into the country, or that unfit aliens subject to deportation might remain. A recent case is said to be that of one Sammy Goldman, mental defective, in whose behalf appeals went up to Washington from influential New Yorkers, including no less an individual than Gov. Smith. Last year Mr. Tod publicly complained of threats to punish him for not breaking the law—and the threats were those of congressmen under pressure from clients or constituents.

Thus we have the legislator writing laws for us with his right hand and canceling them for his political profit with the left.

This reduces law to something worse than nothing. It is to create a government the exact opposite of that which we had supposed it was our birthright to possess, a government of laws and not of men. Politics and private pull creates a government of men and not of laws.

And this evil, against which Mr. Tod, to his own credit as man and citizen, rebels, is going to be an increasing evil in this republic unless there be a more alert intelligence of citizenship, a stronger loyalty to duty among our representatives both legislative and executive. To both we must appeal first of all for a check upon the multiplying of laws and regulations.

Already the evil threatens the integrity of our whole structure of ordered liberty. Our congress and our forty-eight legislatures pour forth session by session a torrent of new laws, and under this flood respect for laws and ability to enforce them are being smothered. As cheap money drives out good money, so bad laws are destroying good, by making equal and efficient enforcement a physical if not a political impossibility. When law enforcement officers cannot find time or means to enforce all laws equally upon all they must choose what to enforce and they will choose whom to prosecute. It is not otherwise and it cannot be otherwise.

It is futile to scold about the growing disrespect of law while laws grow beyond the possibility of enforcement. And there is a special irony in the fact that the very citizens who most vociferously complain of disrespect for law, lawlessness, evasion or nonenforcement are they who are most active to procure enactments which have least chance of enforcement. The reformer who wants to impose his code and standards of private conduct upon others, who has least respect for the limitations upon law which our principles of liberty have imposed, who has least respect for the practical limits of administration, who is most ardent for each extension of government regulation in private business and private life, is he who preaches most against the predicament he is at work to create.

We think extension of regulation into the field of private judgment and private conscience, and the mere multiplication of laws of all kinds are making a government of laws impossible and a government of men—that is, of unjust and highly personal discrimination—a disastrous certainty. We think these twin evils are breaking down official integrity and civic responsibility by making honest and equal enforcement of the laws not merely politically and morally difficult but physically impossible.

Mr. Tod's predicament will soon be not the exception but the rule, if it is not already so. He was charged with enforcement of a good law; but the performance of a plain duty became intolerable because we have broken down the vigor of all law and created a situation in which discrimination is invited and equality made impossible.

REAL ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

A recent editorial suggestion by THE TRIBUNE that foot paths and bicycle paths should be added to the highway improvements in this state has met with such general approval from pedestrians and cyclists that we are convinced it is worth repeating and emphasizing.

Many persons who find it necessary occasionally to walk along a country highway from farm to farm, others who would like to walk if they could do so in comfort and safety, and wheelmen who prefer their own power to a gasoline engine, have written to approve the idea. To us it seems practical and progressive.

Country roads nowadays, especially within a radius of twenty-five miles or so from large centers of population, are so crowded with motorists on Sundays, holidays, and pleasant evenings that a bicycle rider or pedestrian is in very real danger of injury or death. Yet such persons should have as much right to locomotion as any others. The man who drives an automobile should not be for that reason any more privileged than the man who prefers to walk or ride a bicycle. Privileges should be equal. They can be if the authorities charged with road building or improvement will supplement the roads with paths for pedestrians and bicycles.

GARY'S CHANCE FOR FAME.

A recent assertion by E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, that substitution of the eight hour day for the present twelve hour system would wreck the industry, is effectively discounted by a report of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company just made public. This concern, while a much smaller organization than the United States Steel corporation, is nevertheless an efficient and prosperous producer of steel. The very fact that it is a smaller concern than the corporation, and can still operate on the eight hour basis with profit, adds to the weight of its testimony against the larger organization.

Speaking of its eight hour system, a letter by a director of the Colorado company says: "We have lost nothing either in producing cost or in output by reason of the change." Labor costs increased from 1 to 1½ per cent. Production per man hour is now greater than it was on the twelve hour shift. "It is obvious, therefore, that our change from a twelve to an eight hour day was practical and has been successful."

In view of such testimony, when Mr. Gary says, "I would like to see the eight hour day in general effect throughout the industry, but we do not intend to wreck the industry, and that is what would happen if we adopted it," he is confessing that he and his great organization are inferior in ability, in progressiveness, and in humanity to their small competitor, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. He may admit that if he wishes, but the public will not agree with him, except perhaps on the last point.

The public is convinced that what one comparatively small steel concern can accomplish, the great leader of all the steel industry in this country can accomplish. When the United States Steel corporation discovered that it was producing steel in its Gary mills nearly 20 per cent cheaper than in its Pittsburgh mills a few years ago, it promptly improved the latter to a point where they could produce about on a par with the Calumet district. It can and should do as much in this matter of the twelve hour day.

The twelve hour day is a misfortune and a menace to the workers involved, and a liability to the community in which they live, and indirectly to the nation. It smothers family life, community life, and general progress. It is inhuman and unintelligent, both for the individual and for society. It will be eliminated because it is wrong. Mr. Gary can do it if the Colorado company could do it. He can build himself no greater monument than to do so. If he fails, the duty will be imposed upon his successor, and with it the honor.

MR. FORD HAS AN IDEA.

Henry Ford is reported to have said that he will not head any third party movement for President. The story runs that Mr. Ford will be a fourth party candidate. Let whoever wants to run as third party candidate. Mr. Ford will make it four on the theory that in such an election no candidate can get a majority of the electoral college, the election will be up to the house of representatives and there'll be the biggest confusion the country ever knew politically.

We'll say for the authenticity of this story merely that it reads as if it did come direct from the skipper of the peace ship Oscar II. Another of Mr. Ford's brain cells may be working, although we want some proof that he knows that there is provision for election by the house of representatives in case the electoral college cannot elect.

Mr. Ford's idea is to make war on all the politicians and smash them, with all their organizations and everything appertaining unto them. That, we presume, is the reason for running as a fourth party man. The third party would marshal the citizens who at heart were politicians but who pretended to rebel against the two old parties. With three parties in the field everything would be ready for Armageddon and Ford would pounce on the whole system.

The more this plan is examined the more we are convinced a Ford brain cell turned it out. If the plain people surged up around Henry he would be elected and the revolution would have been accomplished at the polls. If no one got a majority of the electoral college and if the house of representatives were not able to elect, the whole political system would go bust.

Then Mr. Ford might be able to take over Muscle Shoals, sink the navy, turn the army out to grass and start printing fiat money. The statesman who sailed in the Oscar II "to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas" would find nothing to stop him in this other undertaking.

In the meanwhile, he's making page 1 again, and gosh, how he dreads it.

PLANNING MODERN DEFENSE.

A dispatch from Washington announces that "after two years of quiet but effective work the general staff of the army has perfected plans which in the event of a sudden emergency confronting the United States will enable the American army to take the field in the defense of the country with every detail of mobilization, concentration, equipment, supply, and even the campaign itself mapped out." We are told "the mere pressing of an electric button will place the huge machine in action."

We read this with some reserve. It sounds too much like a famous French phrase of 1870. We have no doubt the general staff has accomplished a long advance over the deplorable planless condition we faced in April, 1917. Plans for mobilization were not existent then; plans for equipment and supply, plans for higher organization and operations, were lacking and all had to be created under pressure of actual war and at an intolerable expenditure not merely of money but of life. The responsibility for that lay partly with congress and President Wilson, but also largely with the army. Responsibility for sound plans and efficient results lies today not merely with congress, which has to supply funds and approve a program and policy, but also largely with the army. A great many of the most serious failures in the late war were not the fault of any civilian but of the military bureaucrat and Bourbon who had forgotten nothing and learned nothing. Our ordnance was a fiasco because of Bourbonism in the army and our higher organization in the field had to be directed by the science and experience of foreigners.

We believe invaluable lessons were learned by able and open minded men of the army, and this has enabled them to modernize our defense establishment in plan at least. But it is said also that with the war ended and the army returned to America reactionary influences have been able to block reform in some directions and to restore methods which ought to have been discarded. To what extent this is true we cannot say, but if the plans announced are to be realised the Bourbon influence must be checked in the regular army and the way kept open for initiative and the progress which is impossible without it. With peace routine and politics, personal wire pulling and bureaucratic stagnation tend to reappear. The army is chiefly responsible for defending itself and the country from this reaction. It cannot pass responsibility on to congress.

As for congress and the civilian public, they have their own responsibilities. The weakness of both is to read that splendid plans have been made for defense and think that is the end of the matter. Scientific plans are essential to prompt and efficient defense, but they are worthless unless they are carried out. Plans on paper do not win battles. Men well disciplined, trained, equipped, supplied, and commanded win battles. If the general staff has defeated the reactionaries and devised sound modern plans and methods we have taken a long step toward efficient national defense, but we have planned it, not obtained it.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Honeysuckle and elders blossom. Wild grape clusters are formed. Peony buds open their green covers and the garden is green and tall. New nests in old trees have next year's nest builders. The sun which blazed its way north now shows its setting only as a lighting of candles through the outspread leaves of oak.

With the late dark comes the June beetle, the ancient scarab, to bump against the screen, old symbol of fertility and of the resurrection which is full spread under the cover of night. Another or the same beetle which at night bumped against the sweating forehead of a grain grower in the Nile who paid taxes to Pharaoh and homage to the scarab? Another or the same, it is a beetle against the screen. Another or the same thrush which sang ten years ago to the twilight candles when the honeysuckle was in bloom? Another or the same, it is a thrush singing in the twilight when the honeysuckle is in bloom.

A VACATION AT UNCLE SAM'S EXPENSE.

Last year the Sixth Corps area, which includes Chicago, was the only one to secure the full quota for the civilian military training camp at Camp Custer. This year up to date we are farthest behind in registration, only one-third of our quota being enrolled.

The lateness of the spring, which has postponed making of summer vacation plans, and the increase of employment are ascribed as two of the special reasons for this tardiness, which is not characteristic of the middle west, but we are confident enrollment will be speeded up as patriotic agencies realize the need.

A month at Camp Custer will be an experience of lifelong value to any American youth, to say nothing of what it offers in the way of a vacation with plenty of well organized sports, interesting activities, and the championship of the best type of young Americans. That is a proposition that ought to be easy to sell to red blooded youth of Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. Thirty-eight hundred is the allotment for this camp. Reserve officers and employers are especially urged to select likely candidates by direct appeal.

Editorial of the Day

NARCOTIC FAKERY AT GENEVA.

[Drug and Chemical Markets.]

Settlement of the world-wide opium problem cannot be made without the full cooperation of every civilised nation in whose territory the growth of the opium poppy is carried on. For Great Britain and France to interject a series of "ifs and buts" in the consideration of the American opium plan recently presented before the league of nations opium commission at Geneva means only one thing. In their own minds the delegates of these nations are against any drastic restrictions in opium production and also opposed to cutting off the supply of nonmedical opium from the natives of their colonies. To solve a combined moral and political problem of the opium type is impossible if insincerity lurks behind the high sounding phrases of the delegates of great nations attending the meeting of an international commission.

The only method which can effectively stamp out drug addiction all over the world is to reduce opium production to the exact needs for scientific and medicinal purposes. Laws piled upon laws without this control at the source have been and will continue to be ineffective. In America, manufacturers and distributors of narcotics have been overwhelmed with all types of laws, forms, and restrictions, both state and national, and still the reform associations say that drug addiction is on the increase. Federal and local authorities have also made statements to Drug and Chemical Markets indicating that well over 90 per cent of all narcotics seized in and near New York City in original packages have been of foreign manufacture. This seems to point the finger of accusation directly at Europe.

The ease with which morphine, diacetylmorphine, and cocaine can be smuggled into the United States and out of the countries of Europe, owing to their small bulk and ready concealment, and the enormous profits in the traffic, make the combating of drug addiction in the United States doubly difficult. The American plan placed before the commission in Geneva is undoubtedly the only method of permanently and effectively combating the evil. The refusal of other big nations to cooperate—and it is nothing less than this in reality—owing to selfish motives, indicates that they place government revenues and political expediency above moral considerations. Their delegates agree quite suavely with the American plan until the test comes, the actual restriction of opium production, and they then demonstrate their insincerity by quibbling and splitting hairs. And these are the same nations of Europe that have sent envoy after envoy to the United States to make us realize that it is the "moral obligation" of America to join the league of nations.

MERITS OF COD LIVER OIL.

COD LIVER OIL is again coming into its own. That it has as much food value as any other fat, no one has ever denied. The fats are very effective sources of heat and energy. In fact, unit for unit of weight, the fats are twice as rich in calories as are the starches or the proteids.

Furthermore, they can be used to a limited extent to repair fatty tissues, and the fatty tissues are of some service in the body.

There are laboratory methods for distinguishing between the fats of different animals. There are those who claim that when a man eats fat and, in consequence, some fat is stored away in his fatty tissues, the newly stored fat retains some of the chemical peculiarities of the animal from which it came.

For instance, if he eats goose fat, the fat he stores will respond to tests for goose fat. Tests made by feeding certain fats to lower animals, slaying them, and then making tests on their fat, have proved this point to the satisfaction of many.

Then, let us say that it is proven that cod liver oil is rich in energy, calories and that it has a limited power to repair waste.

What are the newer points?

First, McCollum thinks cod liver oil contains a fourth vitamin, one that is akin to the fat soluble growth principle, but still, somewhat different from it.

Second, close study indicates that there is a something in cod liver oil which is almost a specific in the cure and prevention of rickets. This something ranks second only to unadulterated open air sunshine in preventing and curing rickets.

Third, there appears to be some substance in cod liver oil which kills the tubercle bacillus.

Drs. Campbell and Kiefer grew tubercle bacilli from different sources on the ordinary culture media for this bacillus. They got good cultures and used these to produce tuberculosis in lower animals.

They then made culture media the same way, except that they added some cod liver oil to the culture media. On this mixture tubercle bacilli grew very poorly. The bacilli which grew were not characteristic in shape nor size, nor would they produce tuberculosis when injected into guinea pigs.

Other oils added to culture media did not have the same effect.

Efforts to discover whether the effects of the cod liver oil were due to bile contained in it, or to the grease, or to other ingredients are under way.

Nothing in the report is to be construed as proof that a specific for consumption has been found. Killing tubercle bacilli in a test tube is one thing. Killing them in the lungs is another.

But, plainly, cod liver oil is coming into a day of prosperity.

HIGH ALTITUDES.

Mrs. M. W. H. writes: We move to Wyoming in a few weeks and I am writing to know what to do for ourselves in becoming acclimated, especially the children, as the altitude there is over seven thousand feet above sea level. I know we shall experience some sickness. What can I do to make the children more comfortable? Is it ever dangerous?

I have a nervous heart. It always beats some faster than normal. Will the high altitude affect me in any way? Am I going to escape hay fever?

REPLY.

Do nothing. The children will never know the difference.

If your heart is organicaly sound, neither will you.

Whether you will be better off as regards hay fever is a gamble. All depends on what pollen causes the disease and whether the pollen abounds in the section to which you go.

Probably you have investigated neither point. Just gambling.

THUMB SUCKING.

Mrs. W. N. S. writes: Several months ago I read in your column a sensible method of controlling thumb sucking. It was a mixture of quinine and some sticking substance which could be put on the child's thumb without causing soreness.

Could you republish this information?

REPLY.

You can get it at drug stores.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope for leaflet.

Thumb sucking children require character training as well as thumb stalls and bitter varnishes.

YOUR WISH HAS COME TRUE.

Chicago, June 12.—[Friend of the People.]—I live on West 23d street and right across from my home is a vacant lot. Recently some person has started to use this lot as a dumping ground for all kinds of trash and refuse. I wish the practice could be stopped and the place cleaned up. C. G.

Refuse complained of is temporary storage of street sweepings at the corner mentioned. Instructions were issued to the sweeper to find some other locations for the deposit of street sweepings, pending their removal by the wagon.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

MANY CHANGES OF NAME.

Chicago, June 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When I was a young girl I had trouble with my father and he ordered me to leave home and not to use his name.

1. Would marrying under a different name, under these circumstances, be considered legal?

2. If I wanted to remarry, would I first have to get a divorce from my present husband?

3. Could my husband make any trouble for me because I married him under the assumed name? R. P.

1 and 2. Yes.
3. No.

NEIGHBORHOOD TO BE PAVED.

Chicago, June 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Owning property on Marmosa avenue, I am interested to know when paving will begin on that street. Also on Mansfield and Austin avenues.

W. G. F.

We have proceedings started for paving with asphalt, Austin avenue between Diversey and Wrightwood avenues, Mansfield and Marmora avenues between Grand and Diversey avenues, and Mason avenue between Dickens and Wrightwood avenues. It is doubtful if these assessments will be confirmed in time to make the improvements this year.

Austin avenue between Wrightwood and Grand avenues was paved with asphalt last year.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,

BORROWING TROUBLE.

Chicago, June 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have recently bought the furniture and leasehold of a rooming house on North La Salle street, and still owe a lot of money on it, which is covered by a mortgage.

1. Should the city decide to widen the street as has been proposed, and condemn the building or part of it, what protection does my lease give me?

2. Could I be held to all of the mortgage?

3. Could I claim damages for loss of any kind?

4. How much time would I be allowed if I was notified to vacate? L. D.

1. The city would have power to condemn your interest as lessee, but you would be entitled to payment for the value of that interest.

2. Yes, as far as appears from the facts stated.

3. See 1.

4. Take the matter up with the board of local improvements.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

GREAT LOSS OF STATE PAPERS.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Some time ago it was charged, and afterwards demonstrated, that the records of the Buell Court-Martial were abstracted from the War Department. Within a few days it has been discovered that all the archives in the War Department pertaining to the secret history of the rebellion have been stolen. When this was done, or by whom, is not known. The late Secretary Stanton, during his administration of the War Office, filed away a large number of private letters and telegrams, the existence of which was known to two or three persons besides himself.

THE FARMERS' MOVEMENT.

The Farmers' "Declaration of Independence."

Resolutions of Farmers' Meetings in McDonough and Fulton Counties, Ill.

Fourth of July, 1873—The Farmers' Declaration of Independence.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a class of people, suffering from long-continued systems of oppression and abuse, to rouse themselves from an apathetic indifference to their own interests, which has become habitual; to assume among their fellow-citizens that equal station, and demand from the government they support those equal rights, to which the laws of nature and of Nature's God entitles them; a decent respect for the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes that impel them to a course so necessary to their own protection.

Senator Pomeroy's trial for bribery and corruption was to have begun at Topeka yesterday, but has been postponed until next fall.

The Common Council has indefinitely postponed consideration of the ordinance allowing saloons to be opened on Sunday after midday.

Naval—

American warships Wednesday, after a bombardment of an hour and a half, destroyed the forts and batteries at Caimanera, in Guantanamo Bay. The new fortifications at Cardenas were also bombarded Wednesday.

The warships under Admiral Sampson bombarded the forts of Santiago de Cuba again yesterday. The gunners found the range much better than on former occasions and the execution wrought was serious. El Morro was spared owing to the presence of Lieutenant Hobson and his companions, but all the other defenses were probably rendered useless. The loss of life on the Spanish side was considerable.

It was again announced at Madrid yesterday the Spanish reserve squadron had sailed from Cadiz.

The President has decided to send a second expedition of 6,000 men from Tampa early next week to reinforce General Shafter.

SPECIAL CABLE BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT, M. J. WHIGHAM.

Camp McCalla, Guantanamo Harbor, June 15, via Port Antonio, June 16.—The marines under Huntington have blazed the way for the capture of Guantanamo.

All the preliminary steps have been taken, and when the troops come they will have a clear field right up to the city's fortifications.

While the danger of a massacre of the marines appears to be past, there is the greatest anxiety for the appearance of the soldiers.

The contemplated bombardment of Guantanamo has just been countermanded and will not take place until the troops are on hand in sufficient force to capture and hold the city.

REPUBLICANS all over the country will be gratified by the renomination of the Hon. R. G. Cousins as candidate for Congress in the Fifth Iowa District. Mr. Cousins has proved himself an able and eloquent Representative and has reflected honor upon his district and his State.

THE passage of the Hawaiian annexation resolution in the House shows that the sugar trust is not the power in legislation it has presumed itself to be. It remains now to be seen what its influence is in the Senate. The votes of Senator Thurston of Nebraska and White of California will be looked at with especial interest.

THANKS TO MAYOR DEVER, IT WILL NOT BE NECESSARY.

Chicago, June 12.—I am not a car man—my skirts are in the way—but if the rebel car men that are asking for better wages are bolsheviks, well, so am I, because I am with them.

If "Fair Play" and his kind would use their common sense once in a while and look at the car men unselfishly or would have to stand up under what they stand up under every day, believe me they would play a different tune.

Just imagine yourself tied to the motorman's chair for even four hours at a stretch, chasing sleepy teams off the track, watching the streets for those that want to ride, always on the alert for careless motorists or pedestrians who will walk in front of cars. Or again be a conductor during rush hour, everybody pushing, shoving, swearing at each other, the service, etc., and taking it all out on the conductor, in between times, make change and watch for those that try to slip past without paying or with last week's transfer. "Fair Play," you'd demand $1 an hour or quit. Any one that will stand up under all this and still be satisfied with everything as it is is either a dumbbell or a darn fool, and there is little difference between the two.

I'm with you, rebel car men; walk out and I'll hike to work with a smile on my lips, but mind you don't go back until you get what you're after, or I'll quit puffing myself up with pride for the spunk of Chicago's car men.

A YOUNG WORKER.

LET H. C. L. COMMITTEE ACT OR QUIT.

Chicago, June 6.—In this morning's issue of THE TRIBUNE I notice a statement by the new secretary of the H. C. L. committee declaring the "retail cost to the housewife on ice" should be 35 to 40 cents per hundred. So far I have paid 60 cents per hundred this season.

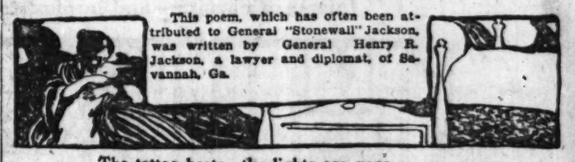
Would you, Mr. Editor, explain if the H. C. L. committee has power to enforce the law, or is this information simply disseminated to more bitterly impress our women folk of our helplessness in such difficulties (and, at that, we rarely get fair weight)? This committee seems to more than myself, a sinecure, rarely hearing of a prosecution or enforcement, and the delinquencies are numerous enough.

If the H. C. L. committee was inaugurated to enforce law, and has the power, well, let us hear from it. If not, close it up and save the salaries. They reported last week that "sodas" had returned to 15 cents. Consoling. We poor people can't afford "sodas." Give us cheap ice that our children may have good food. MRS. MARY HACKETT.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

MY WIFE AND CHILD.

BY GENERAL HENRY B. JACKSON.



This poem, which has often been attributed to General "Stonewall" Jackson, was written by General Henry R. Jackson, a lawyer and diplomat, of Savannah, Ga.

The tattoo beats—the lights are gone,
The camp around in slumber lies;

The night with solemn pace moves on,
The shadows thicken o'er the skies;
But sleep my weary eyes hath flown,
And sad, uneasy thoughts arise.

I think of thee, O darling one,
Whose love my early life hath blest—
Of thee and him—our baby son—
Who slumbers on thy gentle breast.
God of the tender, frail, and lone,
O, guard the tender sleeper's rest!

And hover gently, hover near
To her whose watchful eye is wet—
To mother, wife—the doubly dear,
In whose young heart have freshly met
Two streams of love so deep and clear,
And clear her drooping spirits yet.

Now, while she kneels before Thy throne,
O, teach her, Ruler of the skies,
That, while by Thy behest alone
Earth's mightiest powers fall or rise,
No tear is wept to Thee unknown,
No hair is lost, no sparrow dies!

That Thou canst stay the ruthless hands
Of dark disease, and soothe its pain;
That only by Thy stern commands
The battle's lost, the soldier's slain—
That from the distant sea or land
Thou bring'st the wanderer home again.

And when upon her pillow lone
Her tear-wet cheek is sadly pressed,
May happier visions beam upon
The brightening current of her breast,
No frowning look or angry tone
Disturb the Sabbath of her rest.

Whatever fate those forms may show,
Loved with a passion almost wild—
By day—by night—in joy or woe—
By fears oppressed, or hopes beguiled,
From every danger, every foe,
O God, protect my wife and child!

FATHER, 2 SONS INJURED AS AUTO HITS STREET CAR

Captive Bolts on Cycle; Policeman Is Hurt.

Morris Pincus of 1300 Hastings street and his son, Joseph, 7 years old, were probably fatally hurt yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding struck the front end of a 16th street car at Throop street. Louis, 5 years old, another son, had several ribs fractured. Passengers and the crew of the car aided in taking Pincus and his sons from the wrecked automobile.

An attempted escape by John Futula of 2100 West Harrison street, while riding under arrest on a stolen motorcycle, resulted in a burst of speed and a crash against a fire plug in which Sergt. John Lachie of the West North avenue station, riding in the side car, was severely injured. Futula and Anton Horysba, 1883 Fullerton avenue, had been arrested after they had ridden away on a motorcycle belonging to Michael Portl, 1031 North Sacramento boulevard. A dozen shots were fired before they were halted.

Two Nuns Injured.

Two nuns, Sister Josephat, and Sister Emanuella, both teachers in the Holy Family Academy at 1446 West Division street, were probably fatally injured in Milwaukee when a small closed car in which they were driving was demolished in a collision with a motor truck.

Miss Agnes Johnson, 19 years old, sustained possible fatal injuries when struck by a taxicab as she alighted from a street car at 63rd and La Salle streets.

Three youths, killed when the automobile in which they rode was struck by a Crawford avenue car at George street on May 22, lost their lives because of the rough and broken condition of the pavement at that point, a coroner's jury decided. It recommended that the city street department take immediate steps to repair the street. Those killed were Harold Wesley, Joseph Zimpeck, and Tassimer Poldolski.

Exonerated in Calhoun Case.

Mrs. Anna Wentsel, 641 East 67th street, and Robert Hollenbeck, 7043 Winchester avenue, charged with involuntary manslaughter after the automobile in which they were riding ran over William J. Calhoun, 6322 Vernon avenue, a prominent south side realty dealer, were exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Having told the policeman who arrested him for violation of the boulevard stop ordinance that he would "waste his time" by appearing in court, Paul C. Dodge, wealthy bond broker at 10 South La Salle street, ignored the arrest slip and failed to appear. Judge Henry M. Walker issued a warrant and Dodge was fined $37 and costs.

STATE WORKERS IN AUSTRIA MAY CALL BIG STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA June 16.—All state employés of Austria today threatened a general strike for more pay. The strike is aimed directly at the league of nations' plan to reconstruct Austria. About 170,000 employés, including railways, posts, customs and police employés, demanded a lump increase of 2,000,000,000,000 crowns annually. Chancellor Seipel said he could only grant one-tenth of that amount. The full amount would increase the monthly deficit to 300,000,000,000 crowns, which is made up from the allied loans, to 500,000,000,000 crowns monthly.

Two ministers of the German party Vice Chancellor Frank and Minister of Commerce Schurff, offered their resignations to Chancellor Seipel today. Acceptance of the resignations would mean the fall of the Seipel government, because the German party is an essential part of Chancellor Seipel's coalition and supports the state employés' demands. The employés are getting $20 monthly higher than American employés.

Chancellor Seipel, after refusing their demands today, agreed to negotiate further because the effect the strike would have on the Austrian loan.

DR. COOLEY SUES FOR ALIENATION; DIVORCE SEQUEL

His wife's alleged escapades with another man were recited yesterday by Dr. Vernon P. Cooley, 2052 Lane court, wealthy dentist, in a suit for $100,000 damages against Albert B. Sinclair, sales manager of James B. Day & Co., varnish manufacturers.

Dr. Cooley's attorney, William F. Ader, said the suit was for alienating the affections of Mrs. Margaret E. Cooley, who recently was granted a divorce on charges of infidelity. According to Ader, Sinclair and Mrs. Cooley were too friendly even while she lived with her husband.

During the divorce trial Dr. Cooley remained silent concerning the charges involving Sinclair and Mrs. Cooley and relied on allegations of cruelty to rebut statements of Mrs. Cooley, who testified her husband occupied the boudoir of Mrs. Anna Klein, 831 Sheridan road, the latter being clad in a pink silk sleeping robe.

LAYS HIGH SUGAR COST TO HOARDS IN WAREHOUSES

Release of sugar now held in Chicago warehouses by speculators would enable retailers to sell the commodity at less than 9 cents a pound, declared Joseph Rushkewicz, secretary of the council high cost of living committee yesterday, pleading for a more rigid housewives' boycott of sugar.

The boycott and publication of the speculators' names, Mr. Rushkewicz believes, will hammer down prevailing price of 10 and 11 cents a pound. Compilation of the list of sugar hoarders has been made difficult, he says, by their flight from one office to another.

"These men are afraid to have their names made public or of being discovered," Mr. Rushkewicz said. "It is their manipulations which have caused the high price of sugar."

PERFUMER HELD FOR ATTEMPT TO BRIBE U. S. AGENT

Charges of having attempted to bribe a deputy collector of internal revenue to induce him to give an incorrect report of the amount of alcohol on hand were preferred yesterday against W. D. Van Briggle, head of the W. D. Van Briggle Perfume company, 2848 West Van Buren street. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner James R. Glass, who held him to the grand jury in bonds of $2,000.

Van Briggle was arrested on May 31 by agents under Col. A. E. Earnshaw, chief of the special intelligence unit bureau of internal revenues, as he was said to have been in the act of passing $500 to Carl Hajle, deputy collector of internal revenue. A large quantity of alcohol is used in his business as a perfume manufacturer.

DEPUTIES FAIL TO FIND MISSING GRAFT WITNESS

Harry J. Brinkman, missing witness in the school board conspiracy trial, was not found yesterday when process servers from the sheriff's office went to his home at 7319 South Union avenue. They learned that he had been gone for more than a week. Brinkman is a paint salesman and formerly was bookkeeper for the Hiawatha Phonograph company, of which Patrick H. Moynihan was president.

Brinkman is wanted by the state in connection with the contract for phonographs entered into by the Davis-Severinghaus school board, under which it is claimed the company netted about $300,000. Coroner Oscar Wolff, former secretary of this company, is expected to be a witness for the state tomorrow.

U. S. WILL BLOCK TURKISH TARIFF ON RELIEF GOODS

Hughes Won't Permit Duty Clause in Treaty.

The United States will not permit Turkey to levy heavy import duties on supplies shipped from America to Turkey by the near east relief, according to Secretary of State Hughes. Following the publication of a dispatch in THE TRIBUNE from Lausanne on June 7, stating that the Turks had included a clause in the treaty being negotiated between the United States and Turkey providing that a tax of from 10 to 50 per cent be collected on all relief supplies entering the latter country, Wyllys W. Baird, head of the near east relief in Chicago, wrote Mr. Hughes requesting additional information. He received the following reply from Mr. Hughes:

"Sir: The department has received your telegram of June 7 and also a telegram of the same date, by reference from the White House, relating to a report which you state appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the effect that under the new American treaty with Turkey customs duties ranging from 10 to 50 per cent will be collected by the Turkish government on food and other supplies sent to Turkey for relief purposes.

"In reply I beg to inform you that no new treaty with Turkey has as yet been concluded and that in the negotiations for a treaty of amity and commerce with Turkey, which are now in progress, no provision such as that to which you refer has been discussed nor will any provision of this nature be considered.

"According to the information before the department relief supplies are now being entered into Turkish territory free of duty.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

$1,200,000,000 EACH YEAR NEEDED BY ROADS, IS CLAIM

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—The railroads will require about $1,200,000,000 a year for additional facilities to handle their business, basing the estimate on the present cost of labor, material, and equipment, George G. Boardman, secretary of the western railways committee on public relations, said in an address today before the National Association of Retail Secretaries. He gave figures to show the increase in efficiency of management since the roads returned to private operation after government control.

Three years ago, he said, the roads were turned back to their owners with more than 2,000,000 employés, or 277,000 more than before the government took over operation of the lines. Thus far this year, he added, the roads had operated with 200,000 employés less than at the close of federal operation, thus releasing these 200,000 workers to other fields. The average wage paid in 1919, during government control, was $1,419, and the average wage this year is at the rate of $1,664.

ST. LOUIS COUPLE SLAIN; SUSPECT TRIES AT SUICIDE

St. Louis, Mo., June 16.—[United Press.]—Seid Allaway, 30, a confectionery store proprietor, and his wife, were found slain in their rooms above the store here today.

Both had been shot to death. Hammie Shane, 25, Allaway's cousin, and a roomer in the home, was held for questioning. Police said that when they arrived Shane, with blood on his clothing, was found in a dark room adjoining that in which the bodies lay.

Authorities said Shane arrested, pleaded with them to kill him then and tried to commit suicide in jail. He was removed to a hospital under guard. He told officers that Mrs. Allaway summoned him in the night and told him her husband had been killed, and then, while he was in the room, she was mysteriously shot.

Two pistols, still warm, were found in the house. Shane is from Hayti, Mo.

RICH AND POOR ATTEND BURIAL OF DANIEL RYAN

Public Officials Escort to Hearse.

Rich and poor, politician and humble voter, met yesterday at 6647 Stewart avenue to pay their last tribute to Daniel Ryan, county commissioner and former president of the county board, who died Wednesday.

DANIEL RYAN.

Outside the house a double line of policemen, two hundred strong, stood on guard, springing to the salute as the coffin was carried while the Chicago Marine band played "Nearer My God, to Thee." As the funeral procession moved off the police fell in at the front, headed by a squad of mounted police.

Officials in Procession.

Among those who marched behind the hearse were the members of the county board, County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, County Treasurer Patrick J. Carr, former Sheriff John Traeger, Martin J. O'Brien, A. W. Mueller, Judge Henry Horner, Judge Francis Borelli, Judge Thomas Lynch, and former Judge John P. McGoorty.

The pallbearers were John Lawler, Charles Healy, James A. Donovan, Dr. W. D. Byrne, M. W. Cagney, William Herbert, Thomas Flynn, and T. R. Mernony.

Mayor Joins Mourners.

Mayor Dever and other city officials joined the mourners at St. Bernard's church, 66th street and Stewart avenue, where funeral mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. F. Ryan.

Following the service, the body, accompanied by members of the family and immediate friends, was taken to Mount Olivet for burial.

Resolutions eulogizing Mr. Ryan were passed by the county board, meanwhile the County court remained closed.

Diamond Attorneys File Exceptions for New Trial

Valparaiso, Ind. June 16.—Attorneys for Harry Diamond, Gary, Ind., man recently convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Nettie Diamond, today filed a bill of exceptions to the jury instructions given by Judge H. H. Loring, preparatory to a motion for a new trial. Diamond's execution has been set for October 12.

He Must Pay $25,000 if He Wants His Letters

New York, June 16.—Supreme Court Justice Young today denied a motion to dismiss the suit of Miss Elizabeth Thorne of Yonkers to compel William L. Saunders, wealthy Yonkers manufacturer, to go through with an alleged contract to pay her $25,000 for the return of letters he had written her.

JOHN M'PARLAND, TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION HEAD, DIES

International Chief Was World Known.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—John McParland, president of the International Typographical union and well known in trade union circles throughout the English speaking world, died at 5:20 o'clock this morning at St. Vincent's hospital here of heart trouble.

Mr. McParland's home was in New York, where he enjoyed the friendship of many men of note. He was a native of Australia, but was a citizen of the United States and had worked at the printing trade in England as well as in this country and his native land, and had visited many countries, having once traveled around the world.

Ill Since May 2.

After a conference of the Allied Printing Trades council in New York City last April McParland, though greatly fatigued by overwork and much travel, visited Binghamton, N. Y., on business. He became ill there May 2, and was removed to Indianapolis May 9. His ailment was diagnosed as influenza and bronchitis.

For nearly two weeks Mr. McParland had been almost constantly in a comatose condition. His son, John McParland Jr. of Grand Rapids, Mich., and W. B. Brittain of New York, former secretary to Mr. McParland, arrived here last week, but were denied the privilege of talking with him.

Mr. McParland was elected president of the typographical union in May, 1920, and was reëlected in 1922.

Howard to Act as Chief.

Charles P. Howard, first vice president of the international union, whose home is in Detroit, will become acting president.

Mr. McParland was prominent in trade union circles of two hemispheres. He was born in Talbot, Australia, Jan. 6, 1868, and became a member of the typographical union at New Castle, New South Wales, in 1886. He arrived in America in 1888 and deposited his Australian traveling card with Typographical union No. 6. In 1891 he located in Chicago, where he remained twelve years.

He became a citizen of the United States in 1898. He was the first president of the Illinois State Typographical union, serving for two terms.

SMOKE SCREENS NO AID IN FROSTS, U.S. SAVANTS FIND

Washington, D. C., June 16.—The United States weather bureau in conjunction with the chemical warfare service has just completed experiments which are regarded as proving the question as to whether smoke screens are of value in protecting against frost.

The results obtained, the official report says, "strengthen the conclusion that the retardation of nocturnal radiation by the smoke cloud plays an insignificant part in frost protection."

This means, officials explained, that the amount of protection afforded by smoke screens in so small as to make it doubtful whether the expense necessary to produce the smoke is justified.

Cheating Undertakers Betray Themselves

Never will the swindling undertaker name you a price for a burial casket until you have answered his questions: "How much cash have you on hand?" "How much life insurance will you collect?" "How much money can you borrow?"

Not the value of his goods and services, but your answers to these questions determine the price and profit he will demand. Let him learn that you are "good for" a $200.00 casket and he will not show you anything at a lower price. Don't answer his questions till he has answered yours. Get his prices and insist upon being shown his goods before you tell him how much you can afford to spend.

Beware the undertaker who demands this information before he will show you a casket or quote you a price! No matter how highly he may have been recommended to you, the chances are he is a plain cheat and crook. For there is no better name for those extortionists who daily are selling burial caskets at profits of from 200 to 300 per cent, charging as high as $200.00 for what costs them only $65.00.

You can make no bigger mistake than to pay a deposit to one of these curbstone funeral directors before you have investigated and compared Skeeles-Biddle money-saving prices. The smallest saving reported by any one of our clients in the past six months was 50 per cent; others tell us that our prices for caskets of every grade, ranging from $25.00 to $750.00 are from one-half to two-thirds less than others ask.

No charge is made for removals to either of our establishments and the use of either of our two beautiful chapels costs you nothing. We use only the finest of funeral vehicles—Pierce-Arrow cars exclusively—and provide the services of a lady attendant gratis, if desired. Not one cent is added to the cost of auto service to any cemetery because of the distance between your home and our establishments.

ENOUGH VOTES IN NEW CONGRESS TO PASS BONUS BILL

Harding Is Expected to Approve Measure.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Although it will be late in coming, there now seems to be no doubt on the part of any one in official Washington that a soldiers' bonus bill will be enacted into law by the next congress.

The thorns and rocks in the path of the adjusted compensation measure for the men of America who risked their lives in Europe appear to be almost entirely cleared away.

Friends of the President, who stood by him in his veto of the bill passed last year, now are saying there will be no executive obstacle next year, and even if there should be, that the incoming congress would pass the measure, notwithstanding a veto, by much more than the required two-thirds majority.

Some Bonus Sure to Pass.

Already bills are being prepared by old and new members. All those bills will be assembled into one measure, which finally will get consideration of the senate and house, and, in the opinion of political leaders of both parties the new bill will be enacted.

With a national election approaching in 1924, with the American Legion and other soldier and sailor organizations even more active than ever on behalf of compensation to the service men and with a new congress elected with an apparent majority of members favoring the soldiers petition for adequate consideration at the hands of their government, there seems little chance indeed that the bonus measure will again fail.

The adjusted compensation bill passed both houses of congress in 1922 and was vetoed by the President. The house passed the bill over the President's veto by a very considerable vote, while the senate by a narrow margin sustained the veto.

Senate Situation Changed.

In the next congress the situation is going to be changed. In the senate, according to the latest estimates, there will be at a minimum seventy senators who will vote for the bonus bill, even over a presidential veto—more than the necessary two-thirds to pass a bill, notwithstanding the veto of the chief executive.

In the house it is estimated that the vote for the bonus bill will be seven or eight to one, and that it would be passed by a very large vote over a presidential veto.

In the last house only seventy-four members sustained the veto out of a membership of 435, and nineteen of those men who sustained the veto were not returned by the voters at the polls.

Many of the senators who voted to sustain the President's veto of the bonus bill also fell by the wayside in the elections of 1922. Among them were Du Pont of Delaware, Calder of New York, France of Maryland, New of Indiana, and Frelinghuysen of New Jersey. Others who have retired are Myers of Montana and Williams of Mississippi, who were not candidates to succeed themselves, and Newberry of Michigan, who resigned.

How Veto Was Upheld.

The vote in the senate by which the President's veto was sustained was 44 to 28, with 24 not voting, but most of the senators paired for and against the measure. The President's veto was sent to Congress under date of September 19, 1922, and was acted upon by the house and senate with little delay.

The new senators, men elected since this vote on the bonus bill, have been sounded out by the proponents of the measure and for the most part have been found to be solidly in favor of the bonus.

In his message vetoing the bonus bill President Harding said he regretted to sound a note of disappointment to the many ex-service men "who have the impression that it is as simple a matter for the government to bestow billions in peace as it did billions in war."

Further along in his message he said:

"The simple truth of the matter is that this bill proposes a government obligation of more than $4,000,000,000 without a provision of funds for the extraordinary expenditure, which the executive branch of the government must finance in face of difficult financial problems and the complete defeat of our commitment to effect economies."

Treasury Has Surplus.

About a month ago the secretary of the treasury estimated that the surplus in the treasury at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1923, would be in the neighborhood of $125,000,000. It is possible that these figures will have to be revised somewhat. But the report of the improved condition of the treasury immediately gave rise to suggestions that a reduction of the tax burden on the American people would follow as soon as congress could get on the job next fall.

PASSING OF AN OLD LANDMARK IN THE LOOP.

All that is left of the old Metropolitan block at the northwest corner of Randolph and La Salle streets, the basement of which for years was occupied by the saloon and restaurant known as "Quincy No. 9," which was frequented largely by police and firemen and other city and county employes. The detective bureau may be seen at the right of the picture, across the street from the entrance to the La Salle street tunnel.

ILLINOIS IS CHIEF LAGGARD OF U. S. IN HELPING 'VETS'

Failure of Vocational Training Revealed.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Illinois has the worst record in war veteran rehabilitation work and is getting fewer results for the money expended than any of the thirty-six states which have accepted the act providing federal aid to the states on a fifty-fifty basis, according to all reports received up to date by the federal board.

The federal act providing aid to the states in vocational rehabilitation became a law in June, 1920, when only six states had passed vocational aid laws and only two or three were actually at work under local auspices.

The progress made since the adoption of the federal aid plan, the object of which was to encourage and assist the states in restoring to usefulness their disabled citizens, is shown by the steady increase in the number of persons rehabilitated each year.

Figures Show Increase.

During the fiscal year 1920-21, 457 persons were rehabilitated and 1,682 were receiving assistance at the close of the year. During 1921-22 1,890 persons were rehabilitated and 8,147 were in process of rehabilitation when the year ended. These figures, it is estimated, will be doubled when the reports of the fiscal year ending this month are received.

Illinois, however, which accepted the act in June, 1921, succeeded in the ensuing twelve months in rehabilitating only seven persons. During that time its total expenditures of federal and state money amounted to $21,679, of which $15,386 went for salaries of supervisors, directors and agents—Illinois has nine field agents, a number exceeded only by New Jersey—$1,178 for salaries of other employés, and $1,660 in travel expenses.

That conditions in Illinois are "unsatisfactory" is admitted by the federal board. That Illinois is the worst state in the matter of rehabilitation work is shown by statistics contained in the last annual report of the board.

While Illinois was rehabilitating seven men at a cost of $21,679, more than 70 per cent of which went for salaries, Indiana, with a total annual expenditure of $16,220, succeeded in rehabilitating sixty-one cases, and Minnesota spending $44,509 rehabilitated 119. Iowa reported eight cases rehabilitated, and an expenditure of $8,857.

The seven states whose expenditures most closely approximated that of Illinois, ranging from $18,987 to $24,815, reported the number of cases rehabilitated as follows: Louisiana, thirty-one; Maine, twelve; Michigan, thirty-four; Mississippi, twenty-seven; Missouri, fifty; Tennessee, twenty-six, and West Virginia, 109. Wisconsin spent $30,232 and reported 138 cases rehabilitated during the year.

LEGION NOTE

At the annual meeting of Berwyn post No. 422, American Legion, Richard H. Vogel was elected commander; Homer L. Goodwin, adjutant, and John Hyman, treasurer. Mrs. Clayton B. Mead was elected president of the auxiliary of the post. The annual report of the treasurer showed the post as holding approximately $10,000 in liquid assets, which is the nucleus of a building fund.

DROPS DEAD AT WORK.

DECREASED TAX IS PROPOSED ON EARNED INCOMES

Pennsylvania Senator Sees Discrimination.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The two big problems the next congress will be called upon to solve will be, in the opinion of Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], those relating to immigration and the equalization of the income tax burdens of the man who derives his income by work and the man who derives his income from investments. In other words, the Sixty-eighth congress must find a way to put the earned income which can be taxed as high as 58 per cent on the same basis as the unearned income, the tax peak of which is 12½ per cent.

"We have got to meet these two problems," said Senator Reed, "and I am hoping congress will be able to reach a solution that will be just to all concerned. They are questions in settlement of which partisan politics should have no part, and I believe that will be the spirit in which the congress will act.

Salaries Hit Hardest.

"The present system of taxing the earned income is a discrimination in favor of the person whose income is unearned—in other words, the man who works for a living can be taxed 58 per cent, whereas the man who invests all his capital enjoys all kinds of exemptions, behind which he can take refuge and that man can get by with a tax of only 12½ per cent.

"Col. Roosevelt was right when he said that the difference in earned and unearned incomes should be taken into consideration in the making of our tax laws.

Wants Taxes Equalized.

"What is needed is an amendment to existing law which will place the earned income on the same footing as the invested or unearned income. Why tax Dr. Mayo, for instance, two or three times as much on what he has worked for as we do the man who inherits a big invested fortune? The answer to that question must be in the negative."

Regarding the problem of immigration, Senator Reed said he would immediataely on the convening of congress reintroduce the bill under the provisions of which immigration will be restricted to 5 per cent of the nations of each European country resident in the United States in 1890, the basis of the restriction to be the national census of that year.

Hursen Is As Near As Your Telephone

Before the days of the "Hursen revolution" in funeral direction, the "nearest undertaker" would usually be called. In those days there was no use going beyond the immediate neighborhood. Service, such as it was, was the same everywhere. Charges were excessive everywhere. There was little or no choice between undertakers.

Neighborhood acquaintance mean little today, when the people demand something better than they have ever before been able to obtain—and at a lower cost than they have ever been made to pay. Hursen, and Hursen only, has been able to supply this demand from the people of Chicago and vicinity—in all things pertaining to funeral direction.

As a result, "Hursen's" is today the largest and most highly esteemed institution of its kind in America. There are 3 Hursen establishments in Chicago, each built like a mansion. Does Hursen elegance of service, unsurpassed beauty of automobile equipment, and unexcelled quality of everything furnished, mean anything to you? A call from anywhere to any one of the 3 Hursen establishments will bring service within 30 minutes. Call Hursen, of course!

Every Force United In One Machine — The VICTOR

Adding and Listing Machine

$100

F.O.B. Chicago

There is one and only one model of the Victor Adding Machine. Its perfection is the result of the concentrated effort of the president, office force, skilled facory workers—every member of the organization.

Standardization. Simplicity. Every force united. These have led to the production of an adding machine for $100.00 which will do anything that any other standard adding machine can do. A durable, splendidly built machine, finished in black enamel and nickel, with an eight bank keyboard, adding up to a million, with total, non-add and repeat keys, two-color printing and visible totals.

There are fewer parts in this machine. Every waste of capital and energy has been eliminated. Lower cost by mass production without in any way detracting from quality has been accomplished. With the Victor we stand ready to do business on the basis of an even exchange of values. A full $1,000,000 machine for a hundred dollar bill.

Free Trial — Easy Payment Plan

Any dealer whose name is shown in this announcement will leave a machine with you for a free trial. Every Executive, Department Manager, Office Manager or Purchasing Agent who has not seen the Victor cannot possibly have a conception of this remarkable machine until he does see it. SOUTH AMERICAN LINES TO PARK RUM IN BERMUDA

Others Will Leave Grog at Islands Off Coast.

New York, June 16.—Bermuda will be made a parking station for liquor by Lamport and Holt liners plying between New York and Buenos Aires. The line announced today that the plan would become effective with the sailing of the Vasari from this port July 14. On its return trip the Vasari will park its surplus supplies at Bermuda, retaining just enough to suffice until the three mile limit is reached.

The run from New York to Buenos Aires is 6,229 miles. Outward bound passengers will be dry for 700 miles.

Crews Desert Dry Lines.

The steamship Homeric sailed today with its crew decreased by forty men, who, officers declared, deserted because of the dry ruling. Many others, in transatlantic trade for twenty years, declared they would not return if they had to work on dry ships.

Rumors were revived today that British and French trans-Atlantic liners might use a Canadian port of call as a liquor depot.

Halifax was mentioned in connection with the British lines, and it was stated that French liners, plying between Havre and New York might drop and take on liquor by tender at one of the French islands off Newfoundland. Steamship officials could not be found at their offices to comment on the reports.

Send Out 12-Mile Treaty.

Washington, June 16.—[Special.]—A draft of the proposed liquor treaty, extending the right of search to the twelve mile limit, has been submitted to the leading maritime powers by the state department, it was learned officially today. This draft treaty is being forwarded by the various embassies to their respective governments.

This draft treaty provides that foreign ships carrying liquor may enter American ports, provided the liquor stores are sealed up on crossing the twelve mile limit, and in return, the United States shall have the right to search and seize vessels carrying liquor for illegal purposes within the twelve mile limit.

This right is reciprocal, as between the United States and the other party to the treaty, but does not apply as between the other and a third nation, regardless of whether that third nation may also be a party to a similar treaty with the United States.

Movie-Struck Runaway, Broke, Gets Waitress Job

Laura Umphrey, 15 years old, who left her home at Coloma, Mich., last Saturday, telling her family she was going to Hollywood, was found yesterday working as a waitress at 2552 Milwaukee avenue.

RICH FURRIER'S WIFE SEEKS DECREE; CITES THREATS OF DEATH

Attempts on her life were cited yesterday by Mrs. Lana Meek, 1203 North State street, in her suit for divorce against Marcellus W. Meek, wealthy furrier. Judge Thomas J. Lynch ndicated he would rrant her a divorce.

MRS. LANA MEEK.

In response to questions by her attorney, Frank Cantwell, Mrs. Meek said her husband, while in their summer home at the Dells, seized her by the throat and threatened to kill her. She found refuge behind the barred doors of the garage.

Meek is alleged to have evaded deputy sheriffs seeking to serve him with a summons in the case. Attorney Cantwell reserved Mrs. Meek's dower and alimony rights.

DIXIE ADMIRES AL, BUT HE CAN'T WIN—M'KELLAR

French Lick, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—Gov. Al Smith today heard the first words from a middle western or southern Democratic leader to bring him political cheer since he came here for a ten day vacation after suddenly becoming prominent as a Democratic presidential possibility by signing the prohibition repeal bill.

Senator McKellar [Tenn.] was the man who boosted Al, but the cup of cheer held out by McKellar contained quite a few dregs. While declaring that Smith's signing of the repealer had brought him wholesale commendation in the south as a man who kept his pledge to his supporters, McKellar said the New York executive had no chance for southern support for the nomination, because the south did not approve wetness.

"Wetness and dryness will not even enter the campaign as an important issue," McKellar said. "The big issue will be the tariff, which will overshadow everything. Next will be rail rates, government economy, and, maybe, the shipping board."

He thought the world court would not be an issue. He added that Senator Ralston of Indiana was highly thought of in the south as a possible candidate, although there was no organized movement for any one yet. McAdoo and Underwood seemed to outrank every one else.

Child, 4, Dies of Burns; Gas Stove Fires Dress

As 4 year old Elinore Stiglich reached for a kettle on the gas stove of her home at 2552 Wentworth avenue on Friday night the gas flame set fire to her dress. Ralph, her brother, 7 years old, and Mrs. Stiglich were badly burned trying to extinguish the flames. Elinore died yesterday in the People's hospital.

DETROIT MOPMAN ARRIVES HERE TO CLEAN UP BOOZE

Yellowley Going After the "Biggest Fish" First.

Volstead and the eighteenth amendment, as personified by E. C. Yellowley, chief general agent of the prohibition department at Washington, came to Chicago yesterday "to do business."

E. C. YELLOLEY.

"We are going after the big fellows first, and we are going to clean up and make Chicago dry," Mr. Yellowley announced as he arrived at the local prohibition offices.

Word of his recent exploits in Dttroit, Mich., where he caused vigorous prosecution of bootleggers and left aridity in his path, had preceded him. Pronounced drys expressed anticipation of similar activity and results here. Pronounced wets, encouraged by the recent visit of Gov. Al Smith of repealer fame, expressed only blankness.

Chief Agent Yellowley went at once into conference with William R. Moss, acting prohibition director for Illinois; A. R. Harris and G. J. Simonds, famed foes of booze and beer runners. The discussion was secret.

Plan Raid on "King Pin."

Word soon was passed around the dry headquarters that a squad of prohibition agents had departed on an important mission. A raid was planned on wet headquarters, the den of the biggest and most defiant of bootleggers, it was said. The destination, however, was not revealed.

It was learned that Mr. Yellowley plans to remain in Chicago several days, perhaps longer, and to take back to Washington a true picture of the wet-dry dry-wet situation here.

Turks Again Delay Dry Regime in Constantinople

Constantinople, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—On the eve of the date for the long postponed prohibition law finally going into effect, set for today, it was suddenly announced that there had been another postponement of beginning of the dry regime, this time to August 1. Difficulties of enforcement, due to the presence of foreign forces in the city and the insistence of the allies that places where alcoholic drinks might be obtained be kept open for these forces, actuated the Turkish government in deciding upon the further delay.

TO PICK LYRE IN PORTLAND.

Asheville, N. C., June 17.—Portland, Ore., was selected at the concluding session of the National Federation of Music Clubs as the place for its next biennial convention.

YALE MAN GIVES U. S. GIRLS DEGREE OF A. D.; MEANS ABLE DRINKERS

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The degree of A. D., summa cum laude, able drinker, with the highest praise, if you want it in everyday English, was conferred on the American girl today by Chauncey Brewster Tinker, professor of literature, Yale university. Then he sailed for Europe.

In fact, he waited until the last minute before the gangplank was taken in on the Homeric before he broached the subject of the American girl at all.

"On the level, professor," said a ship news report, "what's the low down on the younger generation, especially the girls? You'll soon be out of range, you know. What do you think of the girls?"

"They are almost perfect," was the answer.

"And all this talk about the way they drink?" another reporter suggested.

"They are almost perfect," the professor repeated. "They know when to drink, what to drink, where to drink, how to drink, and when to stop." Then he added: "If you print that I'll thrash you all when I come back."

Illinois Home for Aged Deaf Is Dedicated Today

The Illinois Home for the Aged Deaf, 4539 Grand boulevard, the first of its kind in the state, is to be dedicated this afternoon by Milton R. Hart, chairman of the board of the institution. The ceremony will be held under the auspices of the Illinois Association of the Deaf. The officers of the home are Mrs. G. T. Dougherty, president; the Rev. Philip J. Hasenstab, vice president; B. F. Frank, secretary; E. P. Cleary, treasurer, and Mrs. G. S. Hyman, matron and superintendent.

16 YEAR OLD BOY GETS LIFE.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 16.—Charles Johnson, 16 years old, was under sentence of a life term in the penitentiary today for the murder of C. C. Dalrymple of Chrisman, Ill. Johnson was alleged to have pushed Dalrymple to his death from a railroad bridge near here April 12 and robbed the body.

FIND SKELETONS WHERE CIVIL WAR SHIP WENT DOWN

Baton Rouge, La., June 16.—A quantity of shells and human bones, believed to be the remains of a federal war vessel commanded by George Dewey, later Admiral Dewey, damaged by Confederate batteries during the Civil war near Port Hudson have been pumped up by a gravel dredge a few miles north of here. The shells include one identified as Confederate ammunition.

The vessel commanded by Dewey was one of Admiral Farragut's fleet and it became disabled below Port Hudson when struck by a Confederate salvo. Most of the crew escaped and the bones just recovered are believed to be those of men killed in the engagement.

PINCHOT TO USE W. C. T. U. FUNDS TO FIGHT RUM

Harrisburg, Pa., June 16.—"The money will be used," said Gov. Pinchot today when asked about an offer by the state W. C. T. U. to finance the law enforcement plan for which the governor asked the legislature for $250,000.

The legislature refused to furnish the fund and Miss Ella Broomwell, secretary of the union, announced that the organization would raise this amount through the churches.

"You may say the governor is greatly gratified," the governor said, producing a letter bearing the first contribution.

Attorney General Woodruff would not express an opinion on how the governor or the commonwealth can use the W. C. T. U. money.

FIRM STAND OF POWERS DELAYS CHINA UPHEAVAL

Japan Ready to Back U. S. and Great Britain.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, June 16.—China is taking notice of the determined attitude of the powers, and while the danger of an immediate upheaval has been averted, the situation continued to be fraught with great danger. Although parliament met today with a quorum, it found itself handicapped by President Li Yuan Hung's withdrawal of his resignation, which he said was obtained under duress and therefore illegal.

He also has appointed Tang Shao Yi as premier, with Li Ken Yuan acting premier until the former's acceptance, which is improbable. Parliament is loath to elect Tsao Kun as president until the date of the expiration of the presidential term is determined. This is due to the attitude of the powers, which intimate they will not recognize any turnover from the present situation.

Yangtze Flies Falls.

The effort by the Yangtze provinces to induce Li Yuan Hung to establish a new government at Shanghai also has failed.

The only troop movements are concentrations at Tientsin, with Peking wholly normal.

The greatest interest is in Japan, whose determination causes China to hesitate. Japan has expressed an eagerness to back to the limit any action America or Great Britain might take, but the only indication of independent action is a notification to every consul as well as to the Peking government that it will hold local authorities responsible in the event of further attacks upon Japanese, while it will refuse to discuss the Changsha note until the Chinese abandon their boycott of the Japanese.

The Japanese expect trouble at Hankow, where the Tuchun shows an increased hostility, and they are preparing to meet the trouble vigorously.

No Commission in Sight.

The powers have taken no steps toward the appointment of an international commission to study conditions in China. Military experts believe 100,000 men is sufficient to protect the railways, while ample naval forces are available at the treaty ports. Discussion of this possibility had made a profound impression on China.

The net result of the attempted coup has been a breach in the Chihli party and a unity of all the other factions against it. The finance minister has raised locally at ten percent monthly interest 3,000,000 yen for the needs of the metropolitan district, while the Tuchuns have seized provincial revenues for their own needs.

Gen. Wu Pei Fu has demanded of the superintendent of the Hankow telegraphs from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 yen in ten days, but the official replied he can get nothing as the office is without funds. His refusal means the collapse of Gen. Wu's campaigns in Szechwan, Fukien and Kwangtung.

Brigandage Increasing.

Meanwhile, China is drifting rapidly into chaos, with brigandage increasing. On a trip up the Yangtze of the American ship Robert Dollar, Capt. Crum was compelled to shield the passengers behind the armor plate of the bridge, while on the down trip several bullets struck the vessel. Other foreign vessels received greater damage.

Conditions everywhere are unsafe beyond the established rail routes, seriously affecting the trade of great American and British companies. The impression prevails that this condition will increase rather than diminish in the next four months, with possibly further acts affecting foreigners, but of a sporadic nature.

TEAMSTER'S LEG FRACTURED.

William Meais, 3108 North Leavitt street, driver of an ice wagon for the Jefferson Ice company 2320 North Robey street, had his leg fractured yesterday when a sudden start of his horse threw him to the ground.

DE VALERA TO HAVE CANDIDATES AT IRISH ELECTION

EAMON DE VALERA

DUBLIN, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—Eamon De Valera, in a statement today, says the people of Ireland will not be called upon to decide between the republic and the free state at the coming elections, there being no chance of fair play for the republicans.

The republican government, the statement said, would issue no decree, but the republican political party might present one candidate in each constituency to enable the people to demonstrate their choice. If elected, all such candidates would refuse to take the oath of allegiance to a foreign king.

Asked whether there was any likelihood of his finding a basis of agreement with his opponents, De Valera replied that his proposals to England and the Free State were the last word of the republicans to both.

MADISON WANTS ARMY KEPT ONLY ON SOIL OF U. S.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—Joint resolutions memorializing congress to provide for a soldiers' bonus, repeal the Esch-Cummins act, and to initiate an amendment to the constitution preventing the sending of American troops overseas save in defense of American territory were adopted by the state assembly today. The Esch-Cummins resolution has also been adopted by the state senate. The other two have not been considered by the senate.

The assembly killed a senate joint resolution providing for an investigation by the legislative reference library of the Torrens and other systems of land title registration.

The bill exempting from taxation improvements of homesteads not exceeding $1,500 was engrossed, 35 to 6. The price bill reducing the salary of the adjutant general from $5,000 to $4,000 and moving his headquarters from the state capitol to the Wisconsin state military reservation at Camp Douglas was, for a second time, engrossed by the assembly.

Plan Test of Oak Park Zoning Law on Clubhouse

An attempt to test the Oak Park zoning ordinance will be made tomorrow evening before the village board when the Nineteenth Century Woman's club will ask for permission to erect their new $100,000 club house at Euclid avenue and Lake street, an area restricted to residences. Residents are preparing to oppose the request.

TROTZKY WOULD OUTDO STINNES, LATVIANS' VIEW

Seeks Role of "World's Industrial Chief."

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, June 16.—Many merchants in the Baltic States who have been doing a small amount of business with Russian traders during the last year recently have visited Moscow to discover the reason for the gradual decrease of their Russian orders.

These men have returned to Riga and report that the New Economic Policy, known as the "NEP," like Lenin, is dying a slow but sure death.

This, they say, is due to two reasons. The first is that the swing to the left of the Communist party, led by Trotzky, is resulting in a return of the "Red Terror." The second reason is that business in Russia today is more heavily taxed than in any other country of the world.

Trotzky Reaching for Riches.

Trotzky, they report, is attempting to gain control of Russian industry. Being the honorary president or chairman of the board of directors of so many of the government trusts as well as being a heavy stockholder in these concerns, he is reported to have acquired the desire to be the greatest industrial magnate in the world, even greater than Hugo Stinnes.

A serious conflict within the ranks of the Communist party has developed between two factions headed by Trotzky and Krassin, the commissar of foreign trade. Krassin advocates that the Russian industries and railroads be handed over to foreign capital, to save the country from ruin. Trotzky's program, on the other hand, is to close down a large number of nationalized concerns and to run the remainder with the proceeds of the sale of Russian grain abroad and to throttle the small and home industries, which have developed under the NEP.

Trotzky's program was indorsed by the recent session of the Communist party and Krassin and his followers wree discredited.

Reds Split Over Policy.

Tchicherin, while seemingly neutral, is reported to have indorsed the Krassin faction, which is known as "the Russian faction." This group includes Bogdanov, president of the supreme council of national economy; Bukharin, and Karahan, who are high officials in the commissariat of foreign affairs.

This difference of programs, which is being widely discussed in both the soviet and the Baltic press, is expected to lead to the first serious split in the Communist party. Those who are suffering by the friction are the small independent merchants and traders, also the proprietors of factories which have been leased from the government.

Business men in Helsingfors, Reval, and Riga are united in expressing the opinion that orders from Russia will continue to decrease until, as formerly, the soviet government will be the sole purchaser for Russia in the world market. As for the Vneshtorg, the soviet commissariat of foreign trade, it has managed to conclude little foreign business.

Business on Decline.

Under the headline "The Atomizing of the Russian Private Trade" the Moscow Economic Life, the official Russian economic journal, tells what is happening to the independent Russian trader and manufacturer.

"On the first of January, 1923, Russia had 28,151 licensed private business concerns," states this newspaper. "In the middle of March there were only 18,960, fully one-third becoming insolvent in ten weeks.

"The majority of the failures are the larger sized concerns, those of the first and second categories [these categories are not specified; however it is believed that concerns are classed according to the number of their employes].

"Of the 5,355 concerns in the first division only 1,644 remain, and in the second division only 3,826 remain from a total of 14,344. But it is noted that with the failure of the big companies a few more small companies are reported, and this proves that the atomization of Russian commerce is continuing.

"Private operated factories are in a similar condition. Of 9,858 concerns registered last June only 7,729 were reported to be operating on January 1. We will have no further figures till July, but a still greater decrease is to be expected."

Tried Taxing Nobody.

It also is pointed out that, while Russia at one time abolished all taxes, that Utopian state of affairs did not last long, and that today the population of Russia is burdened by taxes which are not in proportion to its capacity to pay. Taxes in Russia are higher than in any other place in the world.

One of the physicians who was called to Moscow to attend a consultation regarding the health of Lenin informed THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that he had found an old classmate of his working for a soviet institution and receiving 1,500,000,000 ruble a month (in the 1923 currency this amounts to 1,500 rubles, or $8), while the government charged him 6,000,000,000 rubles for the privilege of having a placard on his home announcing he was a physician. He said this man, like all other people, had to speculate to live.

EBERT'S DAUGHTER MARRIED

Dr. Wilhelm Jaenecke and his bride, formerly Amelia Ebert, daughter of the president of Germany.

[International Newsreel Photo.]

BERLIN, June 16.—[By the United Press.]—Simplicity, a touch of shabbiness, marked the wedding today of Amelia Ebert, only daughter of the president of Germany, to the son of the former kaiser's bootmaker.

In striking contrast to recent weddings of daughters of heads of European states, the civil and religious ceremonies were conducted in humble surroundings, almost in secret.

Dr. Wilhelm Jaenecke, the groom, wore formal morning attire; the bride a plain white gown. As for the minister, he did not have the price of a taxicab, and rode to the ceremony in the subway.

None of the gorgeous pomp and pageantry, the glittering uniforms and magnificent presents, the eager throngs and elaborate press arrangements that accompanied the marriage of the deposed German emperor, had a place in today's simple ceremonies.

There would have been no music at all, if a cellist and a violinist, friends of President Ebert, had not volunteered their services. There were virtually no wedding presents at all—some flowers, and a few bits of serviceable furniture. When the couple return from a brief and economical honeymoon on a borrowed farm, Frau Jaenecke will keep house with no servants.

Dr. W. E. Barton Receives Drury College Degree

Dr. William E. Barton, pastor of the First Congregational church of Oak Park, has had the degree of doctor of laws conferred upon him by President Thomas W. Nadal of Drury college, Springfield, Mo. The degree is Dr. Barton's second doctor of laws degree, the former having been conferred upon him by Knox college in 1914.

CHIEF COLLINS ASKS RADIO TO CATCH CROOKS

Would Broadcast Crimes to All Stations.

Immediate installation of a radio broadcasting station in the city hall to flash crime reports and pick up orders to district police stations and nearby cities was recommended to Alderman Ross Woodhull, chairman of the council finance committee, by Chief of Police Morgan Collins, who returned yesterday from a convention of the International Police Chiefs' association at Buffalo.

Woodhull Gives O. K.

Approval of the appropriation which will permit the equipment of police automobiles with receiving sets will be sought by Alderman Woodhull. Former Chief Fitzmorris experimented with radio, but the plan was abandoned after several cars had been equipped.

In Use in Detroit.

"Chief Rutledge of Detroit told the convention that police use of radio in that city had proved a marked success," Chief Collins said. "Messages are broadcast from the central station twice a day for interception in other cities of crooks, missing persons or stolen automobiles. Under the present system, several days are required to give mail notice.

"My plan includes the ultimate equipment of all police stations with receiving sets. Even flivver squads can be notified and directed by radio."

HOLD 66 IN OMAHA DRY RAIDS.

Omaha, Neb., June 16.—Sixty-six suspected liquor law violators have been arrested here since yesterday by federal prohibition agents and city detectives. Twenty-six alleged resorts were raided yesterday.

G. O. P. CHAIRMAN STAMPS O. K. ON LEVIATHAN TRIP

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Chairman Adams of the Republican national committee declared today he was in full sympathy with the proposed trial trip of the liner Leviathan, which is scheduled to sail from Boston on Tuesday.

Mr. Adams said he considered the criticism of the trip by the Democratic national committee unjustified and unwarranted. He added that such criticisms were somewhat out of place when it was recalled "the last Democratic administration squandered more money in one day than the Democratic committee now alleges the whole Leviathn trip will cost."

The Republican chairman's statement was prompted by the effort of the Democratic committee to interpret unusual significance into Mr. Adams' declination to be a guest. He said the reason for his refusal was his inability to be absent from his political duties.

INDIAN DIES OF WOUND FROM FIGHT OVERSEAS

Mandan, N. D., June 16.—Joe Younghawk, son of Young Hawk, one of the most famous of the old Indian scouts of Gen. George Custer, lost a four year battle for life after he had been wounded and gassed in France. He died at Bismarck, N. D., yesterday. Younghawk underwent three operations.

The wounds were suffered on the Soissons front when he was surrounded by five Germans and captured while on patrol duty. Awaiting a favorable moment, Younghawk turned on his captors, slew three with his hands, captured the other two, and although he himself was shot through both legs marched them into camp.

TRAIN DISPATCHERS TO MEET.

KEWANEE

Helps to sell buildings

I saw the "ad" in the Chicago Tribune and immediately grabbed a wire. James G. Barsaloux, one of Chicago's big South Side real estate operators, answered. "Say, Jim," I said in my most engaging way, "why do you advertise KEWANEE BOILER in your 'for rent' and 'for sale' offers?"

"Because," he answered with positive promptness, "it's the best boiler made. It helps the renting and selling of buildings. It gives more efficiency, less trouble and is more economical than any other boiler on the market. And the majority of the people know it. I advertise it because it's a big asset."

In the same issue of the Tribune were several other "ads" which advanced the KEWANEE BOILER as a sales-argument, and they are reproduced herewith. This is due to the growing knowledge of the people at large that the heating boiler is the heart of the building and that the KEWANEE has more heart than any other boiler made.

You've got to remember, boys, that everything that is good and strong and reliable and lasting, is made of steel. Even concrete, is a poor old dub without steel to reinforce it. The KEWANEE BOILER is all steel, and there's no chance for it to crack or leak in Winter when lots of other boilers kick the bucket or acknowledge that they can't stand cold weather.

Barsaloux handles lots of big buildings—makes many big deals in the course of a year. And he knows. He wouldn't boost KEWANEE for fun or if he had the least notion it would prove a boomerang. Better profit by Jim's example, don't you think?

The OLD MAN Behind the Boiler is fairly itching to tell you all the reasons why. Drop him a line. He is back from the South and on the job.

You are Entitled to Victory Food Containers

Madam, your Grocer will be the first to admit your right to the finest, most modern service he and his clerks can render.

In fact, as these editorials have often pointed out, he spares neither time, money nor hard work to protect your health by buying only the purest and cleanest of foodstuffs—and by keeping them clean while in his store.

By the same token, you are entitled to have all your purchases protected from counter to kitchen—from his store to your door—in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

He knows they cost no more than ordinary paper bags. And if for any reason he has overlooked installing this final step in modern grocery service, he will thank you for bringing it to his attention.

Look for the Victory Signs at your Grocer's—they are signs of up-to-date standards and service.

Victory Food Containers come in three popular brands. All three reach the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons, as pictured below.

MISSOURI WOMAN IS MRS. MARONE OF CROKER CASE

Clears Name of Ex-Tammany Chief's Widow.

Bland, Mo., June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—Mrs. R. B. Kays, wife of a telegraph operator of the Rock Island, staying temporarily in the little town of Bell, eight miles from here, late today said she was the mysterious Mrs. Guy Marone, mentioned prominently in the Richard Croker Sr. will contest case.

Mrs. Kays stated she was married to Guy Marone in 1911 and they were divorced in 1913, but refused to say in what city the marriage was performed or where the divorce was granted. She asserted she and Marone rented an apartment from Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Davies in Northampton, Mass., for six months in 1911.

Was Identified as Mrs. Croker.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies testified at the will contest hearing in Dublin that Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of the former Tammany chieftain, was the woman known to them in Northampton as Mrs. Marone, but the jury held this identification was unsubstantiated in returning a verdict in Mrs. Croker's favor.

Mrs. Kays today sent Mrs. Croker a cablegram declaring she was the Mrs. Marone referred to. The message read: "I was the Mrs. Marone who lived with Davies, Northampton. Positive proof."

"I merely sent that cablegram because I felt an injustice was being done Mrs. Croker, and I felt sorry for her," she emphasized.

Tells Why She Sent Message.

"I never met Mrs. Croker and do not know any members of the Croker family," she amplified. "The only thing I know about the will case is what I read in the papers."

Mrs. Kays expressed surprise when told Mrs. Croker had made it public in Dublin.

"Well what do you know about that; I did not intend anything like that at all. I went eight miles to Bland and sent that cable message so no one in Bell would know anything about it."

Mrs. Kays refused to discuss further her married life with Marone.

"I do not believe that's any of the public's business," she said.

Sends Message to Mrs. Croker.

DUBLIN, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—A cable message from Bland, Mo., possibly throwing light on the identity of the mysterious Mrs. Guy Marone of Northampton, Mass., whose name figured so prominently in the recent Croker will case, was given out today by Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of Richard Croker, Sr.

BRENTANO HOME TO TASTE JOYS OF REAL GRANDPA

Prospects of a rest and desire to get acquainted with his three grandchildren brought former Judge Theodore Brentano, United States minister to Hungary, back to Chicago for a six weeks' visit yesterday. Mrs. Brentano preceded him from Washington the day before. While here they will live at the home of their son-in-law, Frank Bersbach, Winnetka. Mr. Brentano had little to say about the international situation. He said he believed the loan asked of the reparations commission by Hungary should be granted.

Col. C. C. Smith New Head of Spanish War Veterans

Jacksonville, Ill., June 16.—Col. C. C. Smith, managing officer for the Illinois State School for the Deaf here, today was elected state commander of the United Spanish War Veterans. Col. Smith defeated P. A. Hoyt of Joliet for the position. L. A. Ewing of Chicago and Hayden Ringer, also of Chicago, were named senior and junior vice commander respectively. The encampment ends today.

Collins, Ex-Panama Jurist, Engages in Practice Here

Lorin C. Collins, former judge of the Circuit court and for many years a justice of the Supreme court for the Canal Zone, Panama, has returned to Chicago and engaged in the general practice of law. MISS WILMA HAYNES.

Centerville, Ia., June 16.—[Special.]—Word has been received here that Miss Wilma Haynes of Centerville, who has been directing physical culture work in Bucharest, Roumania, for more than three years, has been decorated by Queen Marie.

Miss Haynes for two years was director of health education and recreation on the field staff of the Y. W. C. A. in Chicago. She is a graduate of Wellesley.

Flyer Hits Auto; Mother and Girl Aged 7 Killed

A mother and her 7 year old daughter were killed yesterday when an automobile in which they were driving was demolished by a Chicago bound flyer on the Pennsylvania railroad at Luck's Corners, near Hobart, Ind. The bodies of the victims, Mrs. Bessie Clark, wife of John Clark, a Gary foundry worker, and Margaret Clark, were removed to the Alvin Wild morgue at Hobart. Gerald Clark, 16 year old son of Mrs. Clark, who was driving, suffered internal injuries and a broken shoulder and may die, according to physicians.

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE ALL ALLEY VACATIONS

Every ordinance for the vacation of a street or alley that has been passed by the city council during the Lundin-Thompson administration is to be examined for traces of graft by the special grand jury during the next few weeks of its investigation of city hall graft, it became known yesterday.

The decision to investigate all alley vacations was reached after the jurors had completed a preliminary inquiry into several vacations in different parts of the city, with the result that indictments against one alderman and two former aldermen were voted.

Numerous Other Cases.

There are said to be several hundred transactions that will be brought before the jury. In many cases the statute of limitations has expired, but the jurors believe there is a clique in the council who have been using their official positions to put vacating ordinances through.

It is well known, according to the jurors, that money was "passed" between a number of business houses seeking the alley vacations and aldermen who had them put through. In several instances, it is said, the jury received testimony of men who said they paid such money.

Called Campaign Contributions.

The money was called "campaign contributions," it was said, but the jurors believe that it was nothing more than plain "graft." Combined with the evidence that already has resulted in indictments, the jurors say it is significant there have been practically no vacation ordinances passed by the council since the investigation of such transactions was started by the jury.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT KILLS MAN.

Michigan City, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—Arthur P. Cooney, 35, of Michigan City, was accidentally shot by Ervin Devaux while they were riding in an automobile en route to Saranac Lake, Ind., last night. He died here today.

FOUR MUNICIPAL BEACHES OPEN; WARNS BATHERS

Wright Points Out Just What May Be Worn.

Chicago's bathing season at four municipal beaches opened yesterday with lifeguards and new lifeboats awaiting the crowds which Walter Wright, superintendent of playgrounds and beaches, predicted would be attracted to the lake by the warm sunshine and clear skies. More formal ceremonies will be held today at the Municipal pier, where the Standard Oil company's band will give a concert at 2 o'clock. In the evening it will accompany the crowds in community singing.

WALTER WRIGHT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The beaches thrown open are the Rogers Park beach, at Kenilworth avenue; Clarendon beach, at Wilson avenue; Rainbow beach, at 76th street, and Rocky Ledge beach, at 79th street.

Bathing Suit Regulations.

Superintendent Wright issued a warning that violation of the bathing costume regulation is punishable by a fine of from $5 to $20 for each offense.

The ordinance provides that men must wear suits with skirt effect. Shirts must be worn outside of trunks, except when flannel knee pants with belt and fly front are worn. In no case may trunks be shorter than four inches above the knee.

What Women May Wear.

House and bloomer suits may be worn by women with or without skirts and with or without stockings, provided the blouse has one-quarter arm sleeves or close fitting arm holes. The bloomers must not be shorter than four inches above the knee. The skirt must not be shorter than two inches above the bottom of the trunk. Ladies' jersey knit suits may also be worn with or without stockings, if the suit has a skirt effect and other requirements of the bloomer suits.

'REVOLVER PACT' TO ANNUL KNOT CAUSES INQUIRY

Miss Olga Olson, manicure at Hotel Morrison, was married to Dr. Otto Fleener, 42 year old Hammond physician, on March 23. One day later she learned he had another wife living. Yesterday she asked Judge Joseph B. David for an annulment of the marriage. But when she told him she had been forced by the first Mrs. Fleener, at the point of a revolver, to sign a contract agreeing to annulment of the marriage without notoriety, Judge David refused to grant her plea until the state's attorney had investigated the case, and indicated that the doctor should be prosecuted for bigamy.

400 CHICAGOANS LEAVE CITY FOR TRIP TO SWEDEN

Four hundred Chicagoans of Swedish descent left last night for New York, where they will embark on the specially chartered steamship Kungsholm for a pilgrimage to Sweden. The party is led by Mrs. Othelia Myhrman president of the Swedish National association, who assumed leadership when Charles S. Peterson, county commissioner, who organized the group, was unable to go because of the illness of his wife.

Gothenburg, Sweden, will be the principal stop. Between June 29 and July 4 residents of that city will celebrate the 300th anniversary of its founding. On July 4 a special Independence day celebration will be held.

The following day the party will leave for a ten day tour ending at Stockholm on July 15.

WHEREVER Summer trails may lead you Paige in-built reliability bids care begone—assures safe, comfortable arrival. And whatever the company—the well-bred appearance of the Paige 4-passenger Phaeton gives a thrill of pride to possession.

Substantial body construction—doors fit snugly. No body squeaks or rattles annoy—double strips of patent leather keep metal from touching metal or wood. Quality of finishing is in harmony with the fineness of the entire car—rich leather upholstery, and all appurtenances the luxury-loving can ask. Locker space for safe stowage of travel comforts—a folding trunk rack for heavy baggage.

You will find exemplary comfort in your Paige. Soft, deeply cushioned seats and ample foot room invite rest and comfort. Wheelbase of 131 inches and rear springs more than 5 feet long, with snubbers, make easy the trip however far the goal. Low hung chassis forbids sidesway, adds to riding comfort and imparts an air of smartness.

Exhilaration awaits you at the wheel of your Paige. Here is steering ease that banishes thought of strain—gear shifting at a slight movement—instant response to the lightest foot on the accelerator. A range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high makes shifting rare. No jerking or stalling mar the faultless performance of the Paige under any guidance, with its gentle clutch. And the silent smoothness of the 70 H. P. Paige motor is maintained for its long life by the Paige high-pressure oiling system. The timing chain, silent also, is held automatically in adjustment.

Paige is the third largest selling car around $2500 or higher—40 manufacturers of top quality cars, yet Paige stands third in sales. Consideration of Paige is unescapable for those demanding the finest. A demonstration awaits your telephone or call. If desired, purchase may be arranged on convenient payment terms.

COLLINS SEEKS LAW ON SINGLE MORAL STANDARD

Chary of Detaining Men for Health Tests.

Whether the police department may legally coöperate with the health department in the suppression of venereal diseases by quarantine, pending arraignment of all male and female prisoners taken in disorderly house raids, will be the subject of an opinion sought from Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch by Chief Collins.

DR. H. N. BUNDESEN

Existence of an official sanction for a "double standard of morals," which before trial holds all women arrested for examination and probable confinement for treatment in the Lawndale hospital, while men are allowed their liberty on insignificant bonds which often are forfeited, is hinted in a letter to the police chief by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen, who makes a plea for a "single standard."

Move Aims at Men Also.

In his letter Dr. Bundesen cites the state health department regulations that "any person known to be a common prostitute or reasonably suspected or believed to be such or any inmate of a disorderly house or any man consorting with a common prostitute . . . shall be deemed to be a suspected case of venereal disease or an infective carrier."

"For some time it has been the custom of the police department to turn over to the health department for examination, women taken in raids," continues the letter. "So that we may conform to the state rules, I would respectfully request that men taken in raids who come under the provisions of the state rules, also be turned over to this department for examination."

Points Out Lawsuit Peril.

Damage suits for refusing a prisoner bail rights might follow an order holding male prisoners for examination, declared Chief Collins, commenting on the health commissioner's letter and placing the question up to the city law department.

"But the women are held arbitrarily without the privilege of giving bonds, and the laws are made for men as well as for women," answered Dr. Bundesen, who in his letter to the chief offers to maintain twenty-four hour a day laboratories and examining rooms to insure strict compliance with the state health regulations, with ample protection of the suspected person's right to liberty on bonds.

LANDING 40,000 POUND SEA MONSTER ALIVE

Capt. Newton Knowles of the guide boat Edithia struggling to place a rope around the monster so as to make it fast to the wharf. The fish is thirty-two feet long and twenty feet around and is classified as a rhynodon or whale shark. It was captured at Long Key, Fla., after fifty bullets from a high powered rifle were fired into it, wounding, but not killing it.

$80,000 of Rum Runner's Profits Is Counterfeit

Halifax, N. S., June 16.—The extent to which counterfeit money figures in bootleg deals off the Atlantic seaboard was revealed today when a young Halifax sea captain, who was for several months in the St. Pierre-American trade, tried to deposit $100,000 profits. The bank accepted only $20,000 as genuine.

Taft Traces Ancestors in Massachusetts Address

Weymouth, Mass., June 16.—Chief Justice William H. Taft, speaking today at the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of Weymouth, claimed among his ancestors twenty-three of the thirty-four persons who founded the town of Mendon between 1660 and 1680. Capt. William Torrey, one of the first settlers, was an ancestor of the chief justice.

TECHNY'S CHURCH OF 22 ALTARS IS DEDICATED TODAY

What is declared to be one of the finest Catholic churches in the country is to be dedicated today at Techny, Ill. It is the new church of St. Mary's Mission house, the Catholic college and Seminary for Foreign Missions, in charge of the Society for the Divine Word, and has been five years in building.

The church, which has a seating capacity of 1,000, is for the exclusive use of the students and faculty of the Techny institution. It is said to be one of the most beautifully decorated in America and has twenty-two altars, each of which is to be named for a pioneer in the missionary field.

Brothers Aid in Building.

While the interior is not fully completed, the dedication is taking place this afternoon to enable the Very Rev. William Gier, superior general of the society, to give it his blessing before he leaves on his visit of inspection to the mission fields of the society in South America. The superior general will be the first to say mass in the new church tomorrow.

Much of the material used in the church was made in the institution's shops at Techny and a great deal of the labor done by the brothers of the order. The mosaics, tiles, and other of the ornate decorations were imported from Europe. The main altar was contributed by the Catholic children of the United States by means of penny and nickel collections.

Fourteen Years of Study.

It is twenty-three years since the Society of the Divine Word, founded in Holland nearly a century ago, first settled itself in Techny. In its 400 acres of ground it produces everything it needs from live stock to summer drinks. There are thirty-two priests, each of whom also acts as an instructor.

Students enter with grammar school education, but it requires fourteen years to complete the course that finally fits them for the missionary fields.

ELECTION LAW FOES AROUSE MUSSOLINI'S IRE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, June 16.—[Tribune Radio.]—The Popolo d'Italia, Premier Mussolini's newspaper, today said:

"If our opponents want war, they shall have war."

The challenge was made in connection with the presentation for approval by the chamber of deputies of new election laws devised by the Fascist government.

There seems to be strong opposition, with the opposition partly from Catholics and some Liberals and Socialists, to the new law. It is said Premier Mussolini will have the law passed at all costs, even if parliament refuses to hear it. He is reported as having said he will have the chamber dissolved by a royal decree and the law approved by another decree.

The chamber closed tonight, to reopen next month, when the law will have to be approved or rejected. Premier Mussolini said he expects the chamber will be wise enough to see the necessity for the reform law and will approve it, thus avoiding trouble.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

LOVE LETTER OF LOST YANK GIVES ALL TO FIANCEE

Accepted as Will; Author Declared Dead.

New York, June 16.—The statute legalizing nuncupative or unwritten wills made by soldiers on the battlefields or mariners at sea was invoked today to give Miss Eleanor Knapp of Brooklyn the $23,000 estate left by her soldier sweetheart, Ernest C. Mason, one of the war's unrecorded casualties.

Surrogate Wingate declared Mason legally dead and held that a love letter he had written the young woman from the trenches, backed by testimony of a conversation he had had with a "buddy" just before his last "zero hour" on the Hindenburg line, were sufficient evidence of the disposition Mason wished to make of his estate.

In German Prison Camp.

Mason dropped out of sight in a German prison camp in October, 1918, after he had been taken prisoner in a battle on Sept. 27. Although no record of him ever was found, it was assumed he was dead, as before he disappeared he had been critically ill of influenza and without medical attention.

Discussing the question whether Mason had made a legally acceptable nuncupative will, Surrogate Wingate recited the testimony as to Mason's last night with the America forces.

"Mason, on the night before the attack of Sept. 27, was on duty as a signal man at the telephone in a dugout with other members, awaiting the hour of attack," he said. "He was on duty forty-eight hours, and in the interval between messages talked to his comrade, Westgate. During the night Mason said to Westgate:

"In the event that I get killed, I want everything that I have to go to Miss Knapp, including my insurance."

Repeated the Statement.

Testimony that Mason repeated this statement after his capture, while he lay stricken with influenza, in a barn behind the German lines, also was introduced, the surrogate pointed out, and in view of these statements, coupled with a love letter in which he made the same assertion to Miss Knapp, the court held there was no question as to Mason's wish.

As to the possibility that Mason might be somewhere alive today, the decision after reciting testimony of Mason's capture and imprisonment said:

"There is no probability that he is alive. Indeed, the proof points clearly to his death, and it is found, as a matter of law, and of fact, that he is dead."

New German-American Claims Agent Named

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Robert William Bonynge of New York was appointed today to American agent of German-American claims commission, succeeding Robert C. Morris, resigned.

A FOOT FROM DEATH

Precarious Home

One foot from a constant stream of deadly gases, robins have built a nest on an exhaust pipe leading from the research laboratory of the Public Health institute at Northwestern university. All day long suffocating acid vapors or chlorine are blown out directly under the nest. Only the fact that the gases are thrown out with force enough to carry them away from the nest have saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Robin.

Twelve students of Dean W. Lee Lewis and Dr. Frank C. Whitmore of the department of chemistry at Northwestern university hold fellowships founded by the Public Health institute for research in mercurials and arsenicals. Leading from the hoods under which they do their work is the necessary outlet. It is upon this pipe that the hardy robins have constructed their home.

HARVEY BOY, 11, SETS RECORD AS YOUNGEST "GRAD"

Eleven year old Harris Loy Dante claims to be Cook county's youngest grammar school graduate. In company with 143 others from the Harvey schools, he has just been promoted to the Thornton township high school. Harris, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dante o fHarvey, Ill., attended private school in Terre Haute, Ind., and was admitted to the second grade before his sixth birthday. At 9 years of age he beat the record of the Indiana Normal mentality department by 10 points. He also claims to be the youngest reporter in Illinois, writing for several Chicago papers.

DROWNS IN LAKE AFTER $50,000 HEALTH SEARCH

Despairing of ever regaining her health and despondent because of financial troubles, it is believed Mrs. Leona Taylor ended her life in the lake. The woman, who until two months ago, when she disappeared, made her home with Miss Josephine MacGovern at 4932 Sheridan road, is said to have expended more than $50,000 during her twelve year search for health.

Several days ago two fishermen found the woman's body close to the shore off the Indiana sand dunes. Gary police began a fruitless attempt to establish identity. Finally Miss MacGovern identified her by two rings and the clothing.

"So intense was her suffering that several times she tried to kill herself," said Miss MacGovern.

Coroner Evans is attempting to get in touch with her husband, Willard Taylor, a chef in Los Angeles, and with a sister, Mrs. W. Maudau, Huntington Beach, Cal. Failure of Mrs. Taylor to receive an expected remittance from the husband, from whom she is said to have been separated for years, is believed to have been the immediate reason for her suicide.

Wife Asks $1,250 Monthly Alimony from Rich Texan

Fort Worth, Tex., June 14.—Alleging that Winfield Scott Jr. has an income of $5,000 monthly and that he has failed to support her since filing his divorce motion, Mrs. Winfield Scott Jr. presented a motion in court Saturday for alimony. The motion recites that the young wife is without sufficient means to support herself and requests $1,250 per month.

EMPLOYES BAND TO RAISE FREE ICE FUND MONEY

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

Now we have employés of a company banding together and sending in their share towards ice for the babies this summer. They write that they have adopted as their slogan the Golden Rule and top it off with the world old adage, "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

Again a Sunday school class contributes its "bit" to the cause, and a member of a north side woman's club sends in a contribution. She adds that she expects the club to give a benefit some time this summer and turn the proceeds over to the Camp Algonquin fund. Contributions up to date are acknowledged as follows:

HOPE SURGERY WILL LEND AID TO WAR HERO

It was with a spring in his step and gladness in his heart that Sergt. John J. Mikos, wounded and scarred world war veteran, went home last night. For the little sergeant—he stands only 5 feet 5 inches in his stockings and weighs scarcely 118 pounds—had been assured by Dr. William E. Balsinger, a specialist at 190 North State street, that if all goes well he will have a "new face" in about a month. On Flag day, Mikos was discouraged. He not only feared he would have to carry through life a countenance disfigured by machine gun bullets, but he was jobless. First came the job—with Armour & Co. Then Dr. Balsinger, after an examination, assured Mikos he can practically eradicate all signs of the deep scar. Mikos is single and lives at 673 Fay street.

Engine on I. C. Kills Boy Watching Workers

Isadore Rosen, 14 years old, of 4245 Cottage Grove avenue, was killed yesterday when struck by an Illinois Central passenger train near 38th street. With other boys he was watching laborers excavating. Standing in the excavation, he leaned forward as the train approached and was struck on the side of the head by the engine.

RUSH BUILDING OF BUSSES FOR WEST SIDE LINES

Relief for west side straphangers was announced yesterday by H. C. Moser, assistant general manager of the Chicago Motor Coach company.

West side bus lines such as are now in operation to the north and south sides will be established some time before the end of the year. The first one, Mr. Moser stated, will be operated either in Jackson or Washington boulevard probably before Oct. 1.

"We are still studying the habits and demands of the riding public," Mr. Moser said. "All our plans will be suited to the public needs. We have some tentative plans along these lines now.

Building a Bus a Day.

"Our factory is now turning out three busses a week. In three weeks we will open a new factory capable of turning out one every day. Then we will be adding to our operating busses at the rate of thirty a month.

"Our present plans are ultimately to have 200 busses in operation to the west side. We expect to have lines running west on Washington and Jackson boulevards and Diversey parkway, with crosstown lines on Ashland, Oakley and Sacramento boulevards. The Diversey parkway line, of course, will go from the loop north and thence west, probably to Crawford avenue."

Extend South Side Lines.

Announcement was also made yesterday of the extension of south side route No. 7, which has extended from State and Monroe streets to the Time Memorial statue in Washington park. The extension will take the busses on this route onward along the Midway to 60th street and Stony Island avenue. The headway along this route was also extended from one every ten minutes to one every six minutes.

An order granting the company an extension of time from May 21 to Oct. 21 for "gradual completion" of the south side lines was issued by the Illinois commerce commission.

Packard Single-Eight Touring Car

Announcing the PACKARD SINGLE-EIGHT

Packard Motor Car Company announces the Single-Eight to succeed the famous Twin-Six.

The Single-Eight is presented in the sincere belief that it not only satisfies but exceeds the extreme requirements of those who found only in the Twin-Six their ideal of ultra-fine motoring.

It emphatically surpasses, we believe, any car on the market, either American or Continental, in speed, acceleration, braking, steering, smoothness of operation, ease of control, riding qualities, and beauty and distinction of appearance.

Packard Single-Eight accomplishes these superiorities over all previous motor car practices—

First, by beauty and dominance of appearance which unmistakably forecast exceptional brilliance of performance.

Second, by the complete elimination in the Single-Eight motor of the lack of balance and consequent vibration inherent in previous eight-cylinder motor practice

Third, by the embodiment in the Single-Eight motor of new engineering principles which result in a wealth of flexible power heretofore unknown in a motor car.

Fourth, by the provision of braking, steering and control mechanisms of such simplicity and ease of operation as to be revolutionary.

Packard Single-Eight gives, probably, the most perfect correlation between a motor of superlative power and all of the operating parts of the chassis, that has yet been attained.

At the same time, extreme simplicity and accessibility result in exceptional ease and economy of maintenance never before realized in a superfine car.

Thus, mechanical and operative perfection, coupled with compelling beauty of design and brilliance of finish, have produced a car nothing short of phenomenal.

It is the confident expectation of the Packard Company that the Single-Eight in its sphere will duplicate the distinction already accorded its companion car—the Single-Six—that of being the most distinguished exponent of its type.

MICHIGAN CAPTURES NATIONAL MEET

SHELBY COMES ACROSS AND BIG FIGHT IS ON

SECOND $100,000 GIVEN TO KEARNS BY NEW BACKERS

Old Promoters Step Aside in Reorganization.

BY FRANK SMITH.

Great Falls, Mont., June 16.—[Special.]—The much troubled fifteen round fight for the white heavyweight championship of the world between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, Mont., on July 4, was assured this afternoon when Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, was handed a draft for $100,000, second payment on his $300,000 guarantee.

LOY MOLUMBY

The money was handed over by George H. Stanton, president of the Stanton Trust and Savings bank, in the presence of Great Falls and Shelby citizens and a mob of newspaper scribes.

The agreement was to pay the money at 4 o'clock sharp, but it was 4:15 before final details were arranged and the draft written.

Under New Management.

From now on the bout will be under new management. Dan Tracey, mining magnate and hotel proprietor, will have full charge of the bout, while Fred R. Searles, former cashier of the Great Falls National bank, will be assistant cashier. James Johnson, mayor of Shelby, will remain as treasurer. Loy J. Molumby, one of the original promoters, signed over his rights in the affair to local committeemen, which is made up of some of the most influential men in Great Falls and Shelby. Molumby will remain with the new management in an advisory capacity.

To John and Louis H. (Tip) O'Neill and Russell and Arthur Strain belong the real credit for raising the needed money to add to the $50,000 put up earlier by Mr. Stanton from his personal fortune.

Mr. Stanton was the one to set the ball rolling yesterday when it looked as if there would be no fight. He is a personal friend of Johnson, who up to this time has been carrying the burden. They got together, raised the $50,000, and then went to work to get the remainder.

Friends Put Up $26,000.

Friends in Shelby came to the front with $26,000. But the remainder was not so easy. They kept the phone busy and wore out a lot of shoe leather trying to scare up the change. It was a half-holiday in Great Falls and they encountered much discouragement. Finally they went to the O'Neill and Strain boys, the former young oil magnates and the latter proprietors of the biggest department store in town and owners of much land hereabouts. They swung into line with $20,000. Four thousand dollars was on the list from other men about town.

That settled it, apparently. However, when the committee began to check up with the banks on which some of the checks were drawn, it was found there was $7,000 worth of bad paper. It was up to the O'Neills and the Strains, and they proved themselves good sports.

Where several days ago there was more or less friction between Shelby and Great Falls, there is nothing but harmony today. Men of the two cities who have put in their money have promised to work in unison, forget all the old troubles and do their utmost to make this one of the best promoted fights of the century.

DEMPSEY LOOKS BAD

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

Great Falls, Mont., June 16.—[Special.]—Funny thing about this man Jack Dempsey. One day he looks like a million dollars and the next day like a busted deuce. The champion looked awfully bad today and gave his boosters a shock as he floundered around, missing punches and faking many a good shot from his sparring partners.

Once during a scrimmage with Jack Burke the champion went to his knees, dragging Burke down with him. The spectacle of Dempsey on his knees gave the spectators quite a thrill. Not in many years has Jack been down there in a real fight or during a camp bout.

Doesn't Look Good.

There isn't any use of straddling the issue. Jack Dempsey does not look good. At least he doesn't look like the crashing, thumping fighter who slapped Georges Carpentier down in four short rounds. Away off on his sense of distance and with an open defense, he doesn't impress one as being right for this coming jam.

Several times today George Godfrey reached the champion with right and left handswipes to the face. It is true Jack pasted the colored man good and hard, but the latter seemed to pay no attention to anything that Jack sent over.

Jack Burke, the Pittsburgher, also gave the champion plenty to do. Burke got to swinging rights and lefts all over the place and appeared to

ROYAL FLYING CARPENTERS

BY CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER.
ARTICLE VII.

IT took me an hour and a half to get ready to go to France with the first contingent of American troops—one of the most important things I have ever done, yet it required but little time.

I was in Cincinnati, preparing for the Memorial day race, for I was then intensely interested in motor racing as a pilot. A phone call from Washington was made to ascertain if I cared to join a secret sailing as a staff driver. I asked my friend, Maj. Lewis, who phoned me, to call me back the following morning. He did.

"It will take me ten days to run the race and close up my personal affairs," I explained. "Be in New York tomorrow morning, or it won't be necessary for you to come at all," he said.

I was in New York the following morning, needless to say. In an hour and a half I had closed the affairs that were to have taken ten days.

I also visited with my mother in Columbus, O., for an hour and a half in the evening. Arriving in New York, I enlisted in the afternoon and sailed the next morning.

My rank was sergeant. To me it was as good as any generalship existing—until I arrived on board ship. It was there I began to learn the tricks of soldiering. My passage was in the bottom of the boat. One night of this sent me on a tour of investigation. A first class sergeant was entitled to second class passage, I found. After investigating and approving those quarters I called on Col. Russell, with whom I had become acquainted while enlisting. I frankly told him I wished to be promoted to the rank of sergeant, first class.

"Promotions come with meritorious service only. How do you intend to go about it?" he countered.

"That's what I brought you along for, colonel," I told him.

It took, and I enjoyed the remainder of the voyage.

All the way over the Atlantic I was reminded of my previous visit abroad, when, on my frequent week-end visits to London at the Savoy hotel, I usually had a room overlooking the Thames river. Whenever the weather permitted the students from the Brooklands airdrome would fly down low over the river, early in the morning. I remembered how I would rush to the window, see the ships, and become inoculated with a desire to enlist in the royal air force at the first recruiting station I could reach. However, the enthusiasm would wane with a cup of hot coffee and some bacon and eggs. And I would have to wait for another morning to get my aviation thrill.

So when we reached France I lost no time in being transferred to the aviation corps. I was sent to Tours for the preliminary training, which was completed in just seventeen days.

Then, because of my experience as a racing engineer, I was made chief engineering officer of the Issoudun school, which the Americans were developing. It was a terrible muck hole, in its first stage of development.

The commanding officer's name was Spatz; the adjutant's, Weidenback; the transportation officer's name, Speigel, and now came Rickenbacker as engineering officer.

Thousands of young Americans poured into the camps with their Sam Browne belts and officers' uniforms, and, instead of being taught to fly immediately, were put to work building barracks and roads.

The officers with the German names were responsible, these men were confident. We were labeled as spies. The "royal flying carpenters," as they eventually called themselves, frankly believed at the time that it was German propaganda and that our efforts prevented them from getting their aerial training.

That was one side of the story. Here is mine. For I, too, was anxious to get to the front.

The original class of students, having finished at the Issoudun school, proceeded to the school of aerial gunnery at Cazeaux. Naturally I wanted to accompany them, being number one student of the school. I told Maj. Spatz, the commanding officer, of my desire. He frankly advised me that it was positively impossible—that in my capacity I was indispensable.

There were numerous older men at the field who could carry on my engineering work as capably as I had done it, I was confident. In fact, my assistant, a considerably older man, was ready to step in, I reasoned.

So I formed a ruse. Maj. Goldthwaite, post surgeon, sent me to the hospital for two weeks with the "flu," which was, in reality, merely a severe cold. My assistant "carried on."

At the conclusion of the two weeks I called on the commanding officer. "Production has gone on very well," he said. "Here are your orders for the school of gunnery. I am aware of your little game and don't care to be bothered any longer with a nuisance of your kind."

That's how I got to the front.

SMITH TO ENTER U. S. OPEN PLAY

New York, June 16.—[By United News.]—MacDonald Smith, a Scotsman born, but a member of the American team in the British open championship tournament at Troon, has entered the American open championship to be played at Inwood, L. I., after scorning the big show for several years. Bobby Jones, the Atlanta amateur, now a student at Harvard, has filed his entry and so has Rudy Knepper, the Sioux City youngster, a Princeton student.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Raising a championship pennant, usually the most noted jinx to a team, was no obstacle to the Cubs yesterday. After hoisting the bunting emblematic of the municipal title which the Bears won from the White Sox last fall, the first city flag won by a Cub team in thirteen years, the Killefers took the Brooklyn Robins into camp in the final game of the series, 7 to 3.

Burleigh Grimes, who was employed with great success by Manager Robbie against the eastern clubs, was the victim of a bad first inning in which the Bears scored four runs, while six errors by his mates accounted for the final three tallies. Grimes had two Cubs out in the first when Grantham upset Burleigh's composure with a double. Two passes, a single by Friberg and Heathcote's double followed to score the quartet of markers.

Kaufmann at His Best.

Tony Kaufmann turned in a fine piece of twirling for the home boys. He had his fast ball hopping and was throwing his big curves around the Robins' bats and although nicked for eight hits, one more than the Cubs gathered, kept them scattered.

With a five run lead to work on, Tony yielded the first run to the hostiles in the third. Wheat's double and a single by Fournier put the marker over after two were out. In the eighth, after two more Robins had been retired and the Cub lead was increased another run, Kaufmann grooved one for Fournier with Wheat on first and Jacques slapped the leather over the bleachers in right center field. It was a great blow, the ball clearing the wall by six feet and landing in Sheffield avenue.

Errors Help Cubs.

Following their four run attack on Grimes in the first, Statz singled in the second, was sacrificed to second by Hollocher, and took third on Grantham's out. O'Farrell walked, and Bobby and Arneld put on a double steal, Statz scoring when Taylor dropped the ball. Four errors aided the Cubs to a run in the fifth, Heathcote singling, stealing second, and going home on wild throws by Taylor and Nels, while in the sixth Grantham walked and went to third on Grimes' bad throw. With O'Farrell on first, bluffing a double steal, Grantham raced home.

DERBY WEEK.

FRIEND HARVEY: If there were racing in Chicago, this would be Derby week. Whenever I think of the Derby, I think of McChesney, idol of local turf goers under the affectionate name of "Big Mac!"

At this time twenty-one years ago, McChesney was outstanding favorite for the American Derby. He looked like a sure winner. He was injured, you remember, in the Preliminary Derby at Harlem and did not start at Washington park.

I saw the running of the Preliminary from the Harlem infield in company with John A. Drake. Going up the back stretch, McChesney had the pole and seemed under double wraps. As the field approached the half mile post, there seemed some crowding and McChesney collided possibly with the rail, falling and throwing Jockey Winkfield in the air.

Winkfield was laid up for weeks with a dislocated hip and six broken ribs. The following morning at the hospital, he asked me if I could "fix him up" to ride Savable in the Futurity, a colt owned at that time by Pat Dunne, his contract employer, which Winkfield said would win sure.

It was a great disappointment to him when Dunne two weeks later sold Savable to Drake for $100,000, but the colt made good his prediction by winning the Futurity that fall. Incidentally, Winkfield was a boy of good habits who took care of his earnings. When assistants at the hospital put him on the operating table, they found a chamois bag tied around his neck containing $6,600. Dr. W. S. H.

McChesney's Fall.

The Wake well remembers McChesney's fall referred to above. On Tuesday, we placed a future book wager on the Hildreth entry with Kid Weller, who hunched the price for us to 8 to 1. Next day McChesney fell. Lucien Appleby still ran for us and finished second to John A. Drake's Wyeth with Aladdin third. McChesney, in our opinion, would have romped home.

The Harlem Preliminary was at one and one-eighth miles. It was won by Rome Respess' Bells Commoner, a fast trick at a mile, which ran seventh in the Derby. Wyeth was second and Lucien Appleby third. Other starters were Prowl, Glanwayer, Cruzados and McChesney.

Juvenile Poems.

I saw a robin in a cherry tree;

The Old Sycamore.

The poets have sung of the towering pine,
The oak and the locust with perfume divine;
My memory is hallowed with thoughts of a tree
That is dearer by far than all others to me.
As the echo of the wood, where the woodpeckers drum,
Stood the one I recall, where we boys used to come
To welcome again the heroes of yore,
When we met in the shade of the old sycamore.

Here Roderick Dhu and his valorous men
Hobnobbed with Caesar. Here Lincoln, again,
His Gettysburg speech delivered. The cheer
We gave at the coming of Paul Revere,
Was answered in kind by Robin Hood's band,
Who, with Kidd and his crew, were always on hand.
Ten redskins were slaughtered and left in their gore
By Daniel Boone at the old sycamore.

L'ENVOI.

When Fortune has smiled on my efforts to win
A place in the sun. When my schooner comes in,
Packed to the rail with a glittering store,
I'll build me a home 'neath the old sycamore.

Course in Agriculture.

Dear Wake: A professor in the University of Illinois agricultural college was talking to a class of the different insects that occasionally molest the growing grain. He asked, "Are any of your fathers troubled with ants?"

"Not particularly," replied a student in the front row, "but my father has a mother-in-law." J. A. L.

Bright Sayings.

My 8 year old son was rehearsing his Bible verses preparatory to going into a higher class Children's Day. As he stumbled over some of the verses in Luke, I went on with them. He asked me when I had learned them. "When I was a little girl," I answered.

"Oh, no, Mother," he exclaimed, "you couldn't have learned them then. Those verses are in the New Testament." Mother.

STURDY OARSMEN OF COAST EASILY DEFEAT BADGERS

Madison, Wis., June 16.—The University of Washington crew gave evidence of strength that is expected to give it a leading place in the national regatta later this month when it defeated the University of Wisconsin by five lengths on Lake Mendota this afternoon. The coast crew rowed the two and one-half mile course in :13:18, leading the Badgers all the way after the half mile mark.

The western freshman headed the Wisconsin junior crew by eight lengths over a two mile course, rowed in :10:12 2-3. Both Washington crews are on their way to the Poughkeepsie races. Early announcements by officials that the victory was by two and one-half lengths later was changed when judges reported a five length lead for the coast oarsmen.

Westerners in Great Sprint.

The varsity race started with both crews pulling full, even strokes over the first half mile. The Badgers showed good form over the first part of the course, holding the westerners to an even break. Then Washington's coxswain called for increased stroke that the oarsmen responded to with perfect rhythm, breaking from Wisconsin after a half mile.

At the mile mark Washington had brought the gain to two lengths, which was increased at the two mile post to nearly three lengths. Wisconsin started a sprint that made steady advance for a time, only to be lost by a sensational spurt on the part of the westerners. This final pull brought the lead to five full lengths, with the Badgers far outclassed at the end of the two and one-half miles.

Badgers East in '24.

The Wisconsin coach is well satisfied with the showing of his less experienced Badger crew. The stand made against Washington assures Wisconsin representation at Poughkeepsie next year.

SIX RECORDS BROKEN; BROOKINS SETS WORLD MARK IN LOW HURDLES

Leland Stanford Second, Johns Hopkins, Iowa Tie for Third.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

(Pictures on page 3.)

Featured by the smashing of one world's record, five games marks and the tying of another, Michigan capped one of its greatest years in athletic history yesterday by winning team honors in the third annual set of track and field games of the National Collegiate A. A. on Stagg field with a total of 31 points.

EARL McKOWN

Second place was won by Leland Stanford, developed by "Dink" Templeton, one of the greatest athletes ever developed on the coast. The Stanford boys garnered 14½ points, half a marker in advance of Johns Hopkins and Iowa, which were tied for third place with 14 points each. Penn State was next in order with 13¼ points, while Illinois and Mississippi A. and M. tied for the next position with 13 points each.

Hubbard Breaks Record.

In winning the event Michigan scored in nine of the fifteen events, but won only one first place. De Hart Hubbard, the all around athlete of the Ann Arbor school, leaped 25 feet 2 inches for a new record to land the only first place for his team. This mark is only one inch below the world's record of 25 feet 3 inches held by E. O. Gourdin, formerly of Harvard.

Aside from yesterday's triumph, Michigan was victor in the indoor and outdoor conference meets. The Wolverines baseball team won the undisputed baseball championship of the Big Ten, while the football team tied with Iowa for conference honors. The Michigan basketball team threatened to make a strong bid for basketball honors until sickness deprived Coach Mather of some of his star players.

Brookins Stars.

Charley Brookins of Iowa easily made the best record breaking performance of the day by running the 220 yard low hurdles around one turn in :23 9-10, a world's record. He made this mark in his preliminary heat. In the finals he was timed at :23 6-10, but the mark will not stand as a record, because he knocked down one hurdle. The best previous mark, :24 4-5, was made by John Eller of the Irish-American A. C. of New York for the first time in 1911. He tied it twice during the same year, while F. W. Kelly of the University of Southern California tied the mark in 1915. Brookins' new record bettered his own mark for the games of :24 1-5, made last year.

The Hawkeye is also holder of the world's record for the event over a straight-away course at :23 1-5. He made this record at the conference meet in Ann Arbor on June 2.

Shot Put Mark Falls.

The first national collegiate A. A. mark to go by the boards was in the shot put. N. Anderson of Southern California shoved the lead ball 46 feet 8 inches, which bettered the old mark of 45 feet 4¼ inches, made by A. Pope of Washington in 1921. Anderson's mark was over five feet better than that of the second place winner.

Allen Helffrich of Penn State, winner of the half mile in the eastern intercollegiate meet, not only won his specialty in yesterday's meet, but he stepped the distance in 1:56 5-10, which bettered the former record of 1:57 2-5, made by Earl Eby of Pennsylvania in 1921.

Tootell Breaks Hammer Mark.

As was generally expected F. Tootell of Bowdoin bettered the games record in the hammer throw by tossing the missle 175 feet 1 inch. The old record was 161 feet 4 inches and was made by Johnny Merchant of California last year. The Bowdoin star made several hurls of over 170 feet but was unable to shatter his own intercollegiate record of 181 feet 6¼ inches.

In the pole vault, E. T. McKown of Kansas State Teachers and J. Brooker of Michigan tied for first place at 13 feet. This mark bettered the old record of 12 feet 6 inches made by A. Norris of California and T. Landowski of Michigan a year ago.

L. A. Clarke of Johns Hopkins, who was second in the 100 yard dash in the eastern intercollegiate and third in the furlong at the same set of games, tied the games mark of :09 9-10 for the century. It was a close finish with Tykle of Purdue on the tape at almost the same time with the easterner.

Clarke Individual Star.

Individual honors in the meet went to Clarke, who garnered nine points as a result of his victory in the 100 yard dash, and second place win in the 220 yard dash. These points together with the victory of Booth in the two mile, gave the eastern school fourteen points, enough to go into a tie with Iowa for third place.

There were some interesting races, but the two mile, which brought together Booth of Johns Hopkins and Isbell of Michigan, victors in the event in the eastern and western intercollegiates, respectively, was one of the best of the day. On the last two laps of the race the pair raced stride for stride, but Booth had too much in reserve and won with a dandy burst of speed, while Crippen of Northwestern beat Isbell for second place in the race for the tape.

C. Cochran of Mississippi A. and M. took the quarter mile by getting out in front and leading from start to finish. Sweet of Illinois was in a bad pocket going down the back stretch, and when he got out the leaders were too far ahead. Enck of Penn State was an easy winner of the mile run, which he stepped in 4:27 4-5. After winning this race, Enck came back and finished third in the half mile. These performances gave him eight points, enough to make him second individual star.

In the final of the 100 yard dash, Wilson of Iowa was set back twice for false starts and Brookins, of the same school penalized one yard for similar action at the barrier. Wilson, however, made up for his failure to place better in the century by taking the furlong in a close finish with Clarke of Johns Hopkins.

Johnson Beats Hubbard.

Johnson of Illinois and Hubbard of Michigan settled their high hurdle duel, which caused so much trouble in the Western conference games. The Orange and Blue hurdler beat Hubbard out of fourth place by making a brilliant lunge for the finish line. In fact, he threw himself with so much momentum that he fell on the cement pole after crossing the line.

Thirty-five of the sixty-two schools represented broke into the point column. The big west stand was filled to almost capacity with about 9,000 followers of track and field athletics. Charley Paddock of the University of Southern California, failed to make train connection in New York to put in an appearance for an exhibition.

Meet Now a Fixture.

Failure of the committee to hold trials in the field events last Friday caused all races on the track to be completed over an hour before the last event on the field, the javelin throw, was finished. As a result most of the crowd had departed when the result was announced. It was an excellent set of games despite this, however, and now appear to be a fixture which will afford a wonderful opportunity to select collegians for the American Olympic team of 1924.

RECORD CROWD AT MIDWAY MAY PAY ALL EXPENSES OF ATHLETES

ACCORDING to the committee in charge of the National Collegiate A. A. track and field games held on Stagg field yesterday, nearly enough money was taken in at the gate to pay expenses of most of the athletes who took part in the meet. The proceeds will be pro rated among the various teams after expenses are paid.

The attendance was 9,000 in round figures, the largest crowd ever to gather for a track and field event here.

JOHNSON, HUBBARD END HURDLE RIVALRY

E. F. Johnson. De Hart Hubbard. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

THE high hurdles duel between Johnson of Illinois and Hubbard of Michigan at the National Collegiate games yesterday settled supremacy between these timber toppers. After he had won the disputed race at Ann Arbor Johnson refused to run the event over and was accused of being afraid of the dusky skinned performer. Johnson barely beat Hubbard to the finish line by making a desperate lunge for the line. He fell after crossing the mark, but accomplished his purpose by beating Hubbard for fourth place.

SUMMARY OF EVENTS

ONE MILE RUN.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Old Red Faber finally came through today and the White Sox choked off the Senators, 4 to 3, in a clash that was anybody's victory right up to the final out. Faber, however, had a big edge in the pitching and would have romped across with something to spare if his mates hadn't been so prodigal with their opportunities in the first four innings, when eight runners were left on the paths.

Led by Sheely and Hooper, with four and three blows, respectively, the Sox rolled up eleven clouts against a pair of Donie Bush's hurlers. Seven of these were nicked from the offerings of John Keel Baskerville Hollingsworth, whose skill proved less puzzling than his name. This fellow lasted only five and one-third rounds, during which the invaders did all their courting.

Faber's Troubles Come Early.

Most of Faber's troubles appeared in the early innings. Joe Judge was the principal disturbing element. He singled Peck across the plate in the first frame and in the third tore off another hit that let Rice tally. This gave the Senators a temporary lead of one run, but once the Sox had wiped it out Faber went along nicely.

Hits by Evans and Harris added one more tally in the seventh and in the ninth Bluege opened with a single, but the Sox veteran set down the next three batters and the show was over.

It was only a matter of a bum break in the first frame that kept the Gleason crowd from nicking the counter more than once. Hooper opened with a double down the third base line. McClelland attempted to sacrifice, but Judge leaped on the bunt and heaved to Bluege in time to nail Hooper. Collins then walked and McClelland went to third on a passed ball. Mostil scored him with a healthy fly to right.

Schalk Starts With Walk.

Schalk was lead off man in the Sox fourth and patience rewarded him with a free ticket. He moved up a notch on Faber's sacrifice and went to third when Hooper beat out a bunt. McClellan fouled out but a pass to Collins filled the corners. Mostil also walked, forcing Schalk to score. Sheely then banged a single to center, Hooper and Collins crossing the plate.

'BLACK SOX' LOSE FIRST SKIRMISH IN COMISKEY SUIT

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—[United Press.]—Oscar Felsh and Charles Risberg, blacklisted ball players, each suing the White Sox for $250,000 damages, lost a part of their suits in Circuit court here today.

Judge John J. Gregory ordered stricken from their petition charges that Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago White Sox, and other club officials, conspired against them and falsely accused them of "throwing" the 1919 world series.

Each sought to recover $100,000 on this charge. The decision leaves claims of $150,000 to be settled by trial.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

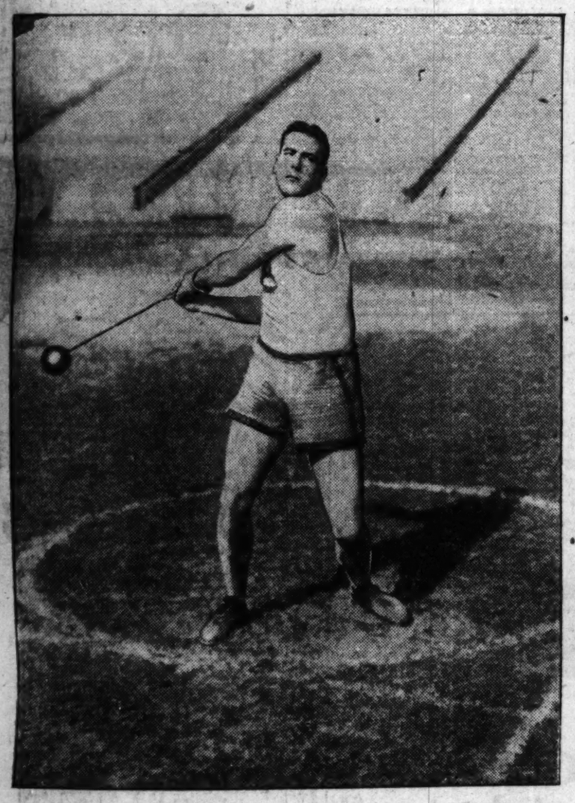
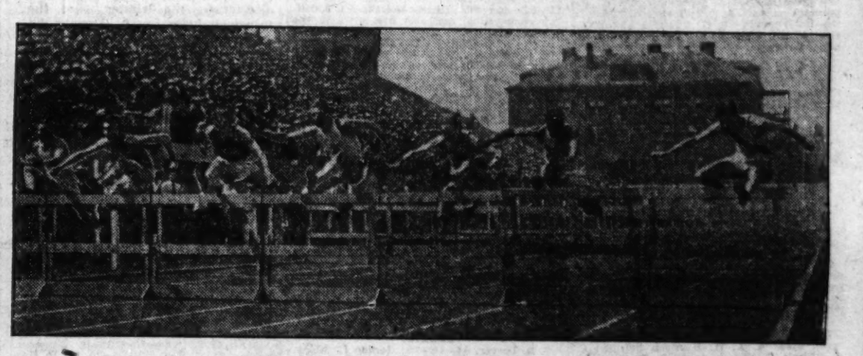


A MIGHTY HEAVE.—Fred Tootell of Bowdoin not only won the hammer throw but established a new National Collegiate A. A. record of 175 ft. 1 in. for the event. The Bowdoin athlete is holder of the national intercollegiate record at 181 ft. 6½ in.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

THIRTEEN FEET UP.—J. Brooker of Michigan tied with E. McKown of Emporia (Kas.) Teachers' for honors in the pole vault at the record height of 13 ft. Brooker is shown clearing the bar after a perfect arch, following the pull up and fling away.

BUSTING THE SHOT PUT MARK.—N. Anderson of the University of Southern California took the shotput with a record breaking effort of 46 ft. 8 in. The old mark was 45 ft. 4½ in., and Anderson beat his nearest competitor by over five feet.



ALL IN THE AIR AT ONCE.—Riley of Kansas Aggies winning the final of the 120 yard high hurdles, the closest finish of the day. The athletes leaped the last flight of hurdles almost as one man and the judges had to deliberate for some time on the place winners. Left to right, Frazier of Baylor, who did not place; Riley of Kansas Aggies, the winner; Brickman of Chicago, who finished sixth; Leistner of Stanford, second; Taylor of Grinnell, third; Hubbard, Michigan, fifth, and Johnson, Illinois, fourth. JOIE RAY FIRST, WATSON SECOND, IN BUFFALO RACE

Erie Beach, Ont., June 16.—Joie Ray, running under the colors of the Illinois A. C., won the mile handicap from scratch in the annual Buffalo police games here today. His time was 4:22 4-5. Ray Watson of the Chicago A. A. and Walter Higgins of New York A. C., both starting from scratch, took Ray's dust for the entire race. Watson was second and Higgins third at the finish. Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C., won third place with a handicap allowance of 25 yards.

Manion Wins Missouri State Golf Championship

Kansas City, Mo., June 16.—James Manion of the Midland Valley Golf club, St. Louis, won the Missouri state golf championship here late today by defeating Walter Kossman of the Forest Park Golf clu, St. Louis, 6 and 5.

Sears-Roebuck 'Y' Wins All Chicago Track Meet

Piling up 84¼ points, Sears-Roebuck "Y" carried off honors in the all Chicago Y. M. C. A. track meet at their field yesterday. A total of 53¾ markers gave the Wilson "Y" second place, while Wabash athletes garnered third with 34. A. Luchs, a senior of the Wilson branch, took high point honors with 14 tallies, two more than C. Burbank of Sears-Roebuck. High point man in the intermediate division was J. Twist of Wilson. W. Sherman was the junior leader.

OLD ELI SWAMPS HARVARD TRACK

New Haven, Conn., June 16.—[Special.]—Yale today defeated Harvard, 89½ to 45½, in their thirty-first dual track and field games, nearly doubling the Crimson score by scoring 11 first and 8 seconds, while Harvard took 4 firsts and seven seconds. Yale took first and second in seven events.

Bill Collins of Yale was the only athlete to win two firsts, taking the 100 yard dash and the broad jump.

MICHAELSON VICTOR IN EAST MARATHON

Baltimore, Md., June 16.—Michaelson of the Cygnet Athletic club, East Portchester, N. Y., won Maryland's first full distance marathon of 26 miles and 385 yards this afternoon. Ten minutes after he crossed the line at city hall, William Kennedy, his teammate, finished second. Harvey Frick was third.

Michaelson's time was 2:59:47 2-5, or nearly ten minutes longer than his time for winning the recent marathon in the Yankees' stadium at New York. The race started at Laurel and was conducted by the Baltimore Cross Country club and the Young Men's Hebrew association of Baltimore.

Harvey Frick, was a good third. He was always among the first five, and, with Kennedy, figured in a duel which was one of the big features of the run. Kennedy kept on his heels for the first twenty miles miles and they were far inside the city limits before the veteran Cygnet star succeeded in overtaking him. After taking the lead shortly beyond the fourteen mile house, Frank Zuna, Millrose Athletic association, Newark, N. J., weakened and dropped out at the twenty-third mile. He complained that his legs had started to stiffen.

LEVER BREAKS 2 DASH RECORDS

Philadelphia, June 16. — Harold (Boots) Lever of the University of Pennsylvania, 100 yard intercollegiate champion, broke the 65 yard and the 75 yard world records today on Franklin field. His time for the shorter distance was :06 8-10, or one-fifth second better than the record held by his coach, Lawson Robertson. In the 75 yard dash Lever covered the distance in :07 5-10, one-tenth of a second under the old mark.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Max Montgomery, Brook, Ind., was awarded $5.

The Question.

In what sport would you prefer to be champion?

Where Asked.

Clark at Washington street.

The Answers.

H. A. Watters, 155 North Clark street, real estate—To be a baseball idol and champion would probably be the ideal, but personally I would prefer to be a champion with the rod and reel. I would rather land a 200 pound tarpon, with no audience, than to hit a home run with 25,000 enthusiastic fans shouting their approval.

Sylvester Holden, 139 North Clark street, occupational lawyer—Swimming. To be a champion swimmer would imply a man of good physical development. The development of the body being the foundation for the development of the mind, it would tend to indicate a clean minded, clean bodied individual—one with thought, vision, and power.

W. R. Hosford, 1124 Jackson boulevard, battery shop—Don't know that I would care to be champion of any one of the sports. I am interested in sports for sport's sake, rather than to be in the limelight as a champion. In a way it would take the real sporting element out of it and make it a profession.

A. J. Van Engere, 928 Winona avenue, manager — Horse back riding. It is outside, healthy, and a sufficiently vigorous exercise. You have something under you that's alive. Although a horse is not as swift as an automobile, it is real sport, according to my opinion. There was a time when I used to go from my home to my office downtown on horse back.

J. V. Ferry, 24 West Huron street, salesman—Mr. Harding would prefer to be a golf champion, wouldn't he? I would prefer baseball for mine. I like baseball because it is an outdoor exercise; because it is fascinating; because it is the national pastime; I like it for the exciting plays and the bonehead plays.

PADDOCK BACK, WANTS STANDING RESTORED

New York, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—Charles Paddock, champion sprinter, who returned from Europe yesterday after having competed in an intercollegiate track meet in Paris in defiance of an Amateur Athletic union ruling, declared today that he felt his disqualification by the union was unjust and that he expected to be restored to good standing. Paddock delayed his expected departure for Chicago today to go into the prospects of settling his A. A. U. difficulties.

"If, however, I have automatically disqualified myself as an amateur within the jurisdiction of the A. A. U. by participation in an international intercollegiate track and field meet abroad," said Paddock, "I am prepared to turn in my A. A. U. registration card and avoid A. A. U. competition in the future."

"I certainly hope to try for the American Olympic team next year. If I run well enough to make it and the A. A. U. offers opposition to my selection, I can only look for support from the University of California, the National Collegiate Athletic association, of which it is a member, the National Amateur Athletic federation and perhaps the Southern Pacific association of the A. A. U.

"I believe, however, that the American Olympic committee will give me a full and fair deal, because it is composed of sportsmen who will not sanction anything savoring of unjust treatment."

Yale Comes from Behind to Beat Princeton, 5 to 2

Princeton, N. J., June 16.—Yale defeated Princeton today, 5 to 2, coming from behind to win.

The Good MAXWELL

EDGEWATER CLUB CELEBRATES ITS SILVER BIRTHDAY

BY JOE DAVIS.

Edgewater members turned out in large numbers to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their club yesterday. Through the day there were events for juniors, women, men, and guests, these being followed by a dinner-dance and dedication of the new outdoor dancing pavilion.

Jesse F. Matteson, president of the club, who was in knickerbockers when the club was formed, was toastmaster at the dinner and W. C. Gillette, a charter member, sliced the birthday cake. He is a good slicer on the course and so was given the job. Among the other pioneers present were George E. Marshall, E. R. Wetmore, W. E. Wroe, and George E. Watson.

The Edgewater club was incorporated June 16, 1898, and for a decade occupied a site at Devon avenue and Sheridan road.

In the juniors' event, R. L. Glanz won with 91—21—70. Miss Helen Kelrman, with 104—18—86, led the women players in the handicap. A card of 87—17—70 gave E. J. Baldwin the prize in the men's contest, while R. N. Crawford of Delevan, Wis., with 106—30—76, was the lucky guest.

In the second round of the spring tournament, matches were finished as follows:

Class A—P. A. Starck defeated W. A. Moulton, 1 up; V. D. Wyman defeated J. R. Murphy, 2 up; H. A. Lundahl defeated C. W. Jordan, 2 up; J. P. Strickland defeated Harvey Pickrell, 2 and 1.

Class B—S. J. Miniter defeated J. P. Lucey, 1 up; L. D. Glanz defeated W. J. Lawlor, 3 and 2.

Class C—J. B. Bremner defeated Dr. J. F. Nelson, 1 up.

BUTTERFIELD.

A net count of 69 enabled J. B. Wants to land the main honor in the ball sweepstakes. His card was 99—30—69. Results in the first round for the Kendrick cup were: E. W. Page defeated A. S. Victor, 8 and 7; A. A. Fiore defeated H. J. Krsis, 7 and 6; E. B. Finnegan defeated J. E. Collins, 5 and 4; A. E. Barrett defeated R. Simpson, 1 up; W. S. Kendrick defeated C. W. Lyon, 4 and 3; J. W. Jedlan defeated G. J. Bundscho, 2 and 1; Frank Lavin defeated E. R. Mullem, 2 and 1; J. B. Wants defeated R. A. Seltus, 6 and 5.

HINSDALE.

Qualifiers for the President's trophy were: Goodwin Clarke, J. Dodge, A. H. Shaw, A. S. Putney, Don G. Heinly, J. B. Lamson, G. L. McAndless, F. T. Whiting, E. F. Brewster, H. W. Childe, J. L. Capon, E. H. Hicks, J. K. Mikzak, F. Van Inwagen, H. R. Thayer, and A. G. Dugan.

EVANSTON.

The qualifying round for the President's cup was the feature yesterday and H. M. Ballard topped the field with a card of 87—16—71. Other qualifiers were: F. W. Carpenter, 87—15—72; J. A. Campbell, 89—17—72; E. L. Walcott, 90—18—72; W. W. Ahlschlager, 82—8—74; B. H. Boyd, 84—10—74; W. J. Phalen, 90—16—74; E. D. West, 92—18—74.

OAK PARK.

An eighteen hole handicap with prizes for low gross and net in each class was on the program as well as a ball sweepstakes. In the latter event, G. C. Edwards and E. L. Hartig tied with 81 each. Results in the handicap were: Class A, G. C. Edwards, 81, low gross; E. L. Hartig, 81—10—71, low net. Class B, T. H. Jones, 90, low gross; F. W. Thomas, 96—16—71, low net. Class C, R. H. Clinton and Dr. H. T. E. Roberts, 101, low gross; L. H. Miller, 102—30—72, low net.

FLOSSMOOR.

A triple tie in Class A of the eighteen hole handicap against par was reported. Those in the deadlock were W. B. Hart, G. G. Dewdall, and S. Martin, 1 down.

IDLEWILD.

J. B. Joseph and J. Rubin will meet in the final of the Founders' cup as a result of the penultimate round. The former defeated E. Lieberman, 5 and 3, while Mr. Rubin triumphed over M. A. Goldsmith, 2 up in 37 holes.

RIVERSIDE.

G. H. Rumpf and S. T. Johnston tied at 1 down in the eighteen hole match play against par event for the W. H. Sovereign prize. In the ball sweepstakes S. T. Johnston led with 88—31—67.

BRIERGATE.

In the second round of the spring tournament, matches were finished as follows: Class A—H. A. Harrison defeated G. H. Morris, 7 and 6, while L. D. Read defeated A. J. Ewing, 2 up.

CALUMET.

J. Y. Gilmore won the President's cup, defeating J. M. Barrows, 3 and 2, in the final. Richard O'Hara and Frank Koller were leaders in the blind bogey event.

RIDGE.

GLEN OAK.

In the semi-finals for the Dupee cup, C. L. Irrgang won from J. H. Victor by default and E. S. McCarthy defeated G. Wiley, 3 and 2.

MIDLOTHIAN.

There was a hot finish in the play for the Harry J. Curry trophy, Dr. W. E. Fribley [22], W. A. Glass [17], and H. G. Eckstein Jr. [15], tying at 3 up on par. Charles W. Booth and W. S. Hoyt tied for low gross in the ball sweepstakes, the leading net winners being Dr. W. E. Fribley, 88—23—65; L. G. Bunn, 91—20—71; J. Grant, 93—22—71, and M. D. Jack, 91—20—71.

NORTH SHORE.

H. S. Stevens had low gross of 82 in the handicap, Frank Hopkins and H. H. Harrison tying at 83. The low net leaders were K. B. Rhamstyne, 96—25—70, S. H. Hall, 91—20—71; R. C. Boos, 99—18—71. Leading qualifiers for Directors' cup were: L. D. Heth, 83—24—59; H. H. Harrison, 83—13—70, and K. B. Rhamstyne, 96—28—70.

GLEN VIEW.

Chester A. Cook took the grandfather's cup by registering a card of 85—10—75. Honors in the club handicap were carried off by J. J. Charles Jr., 81—13—68.

DIXMOOR.

Low gross for the day was taken by Walter Crowdus, who reported 79. S. O. Burroughs, with 86—5—81, won in the blind bogey.

BEVERLY.

George B. Butt won the feature match in the second round for the Woods trophy, defeating T. J. Vernis, 1 up. R. C. Clarke defeated C. H. Schryver, 4 and 3; Dr. B. A. Duffy won by default from L. J. Wilbur; J. A. Middleton Sr. defeated Dr. P. Mills, 2 and 1. In the first match round for the Punchbowl trophy, Charles Prodie and J. H. Wood finished eighteen holes all even and will decide the tie later.

RAVISLOE.

Prizes were awarded for various achievements. Gardner Stern and Paul Daube tying at five as the greatest number of 3s, M. Gutman winning with ten 4s, A. Kunstadter taking a prize with ten 5s, and M. Singer and S. Wollenberger tying with five 6s.

DAVY HERRON'S recent play on the English and Scotch courses seems to have put him on edge, as he cracked out a fine 70 and topped a field of 180 players in the event against par at Exmoor yesterday. An allowance of two enabled him to finish 4 up, but he was closely pressed by Constant C. Hopkins, who shot one of the best rounds of his career, reporting with a card of 71. Par for the course is 73. The cards of the two leaders were:

Herron, out....4 4 4 5 4 4 4 4 4—36
Hopkins, out....6 4 4 4 4 3 3 4 3—35
Herron, in.....4 4 5 2 4 3 4 5 4—35—70
Hopkins, in.....4 4 4 3 4 4 5 4 4—36—71

LA GRANGE.

B. N. Anderson, 80—8—72, won the prize in the class A handicap event and also first prize in the sweepstakes. A. B. Hall, 80—7—73, took second prize in the sweepstakes. In Class B, E. E. Barrett, 86—15—71, and L. A. Pagin, 88—17—71, tied in the handicap event, while Barrett took the first prize in the sweepstakes. F. T. McConnell, 95—26—67, won the prize in the Class C handicap competition, and also first prize in the sweepstakes.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

R. C. Wilson, 89, had low gross, and H. P. Lapp, 85—8—75, low net, in the qualifying round for the Patterson trophy, played over the No. 1 course. Playing over No. 2, H. A. Henderson and M. J. Devaney, with a low net of 63, won first prize in the best ball foursome. C. L. Cockrell and Dr. H. J. Buchan, 36—37—73, had low gross score. In the semi-finals of the Starr cup competition, J. F. Lightfoot defeated Ralph Hoagland, 2 up, while G. H. Abbott defeated Dr. L. S. Drake, 2 and 1.

JACKSON PARK.

Mrs. Ralph Smalley, holder of the women's title at the Jackson Park Golf club, paired with George Hackl Jr., of Midlothian, will meet this afternoon in an eighteen hole best ball foursome with Miss Ruth Shults of Marquette, Cook county open champion, paired with Eldridge Robinson of Lincoln, winner of the high school title in 1922. The match will start at 2:30 o'clock. E. Conzad and N. H. Fetters tied for first place in the class competition with 78 and divided the prize.

SKOKIE.

C. D. Drever, 94—16—78; Gordon L. Sibley, 86—8—78, and H. Meyer, 83—5—78, tied for the prize in the blind bogey competition. In the annual Four Towns tournament most of the third round matches were completed, as follows:

GLENCOE—W. K. Childs defeated A. G. Mills, 5 and 4; J. D. Fulton defeated E. B. Haskins, 4 and 2; H. G. Phillips defeated C. F. Pearce Jr., 2 up.

WINNETKA—A. R. Small defeated H. C. Mershon, 4 and 2; John T. Ling defeated Fred W. Hill, 4 and 3; J. T. Rathbone defeated E. B. Layman, 6 and 2; B. T. Duncan defeated M. B. Orde, 5 and 5.

EVANSTON—F. S. Graham defeated S. A. Wilmarth, 2 up; G. E. Haskins defeated L. C. Mowry, 1 up; J. C. Leavitt won by default from H. J. Bowes.

WILMETTE—Fred C. Spinney defeated H. G. Clark, 5 and 3; B. C. Hardenbrook defeated F. Preston, 3 and 1; M. A. Bassett defeated H. H. Curtiss, 1 up.

ONWENTSIA.

Finishing 1 down, R. I. Farwell won the match play event against par.

PARK RIDGE.

Sidney J. Knowles won the prize in the match play competition against par, checking out all square. Results in the semi-finals of the class trophy events were as follows: ROBIN [Class A]—Dr. A. O. Young defeated Dr. William Young, 1 up; W. W. Springer defeated E. A. Dolan, 2 and 1. MARTIN [Class B]—P. T. Hodge defeated C. A. Brooks, 1 up; George Turnbull defeated F. W. Gale, 2 and 1. WREN [Class C]—M. E. Smith defeated A. D. Bruce, 3 and 1; J. J. Fischer defeated R. G. Elliott, 2 and 1.

WESTMORELAND.

By virtue of his well played round, which was negotiated in 75, Dr. E. H. Raedel carried off three prizes. He defeated A. C. Perry in the final of the Argyle cup, 4 and 3, while his card of 75—6—69 gave him the Fellowship cup and also made him low man in the ball sweepstakes, Dayton Keith, 90—18—72, and J. Medlock, 85—13—72, tied for low score in the qualifying round for the Aberdeen cup. The other qualifiers were: T. C. Moulding, 81—8—73; W. H. MacLean, 86—12—74; W. M. Bond, 87—75; C. T. Ripley, 83—8—75; F. C. Stiles Jr., 83—7—76; J. T. Landreth, 89—13—76; J. C. Reynolds, 84—8—76; S. Moulding, 85—9—76; C. V. Burgart, 92—16—76; F. Burnaby, 92—15—77; J. M. Boers, 87—10—77; G. A. Eddy, 93—16—77; F. B. Farnsworth, 83—8—77; E. K. Nichols, 87—9—78.

SOUTH SHORE.

John Irwin day drew a large field of members, who competed in a class handicap event for prizes donated by Mr. Irwin. The winners were: Class A, F. B. Brigham, 76—7—69; class B, F. R. Jenkins, 82—17—65; classes C and D combined, J. S. McKeown, 86—21—65. Brigham also won first prize in the sweepstakes.

AGE TRIUMPHS; FATHER BEATS SON FOR MIDDLE ATLANTIC GOLF TITLE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—[United Press.]—The older generation of American golf scored today when Albert R. McKenzie, Columbia Country club, defeated his son, Donald McKenzie, 16, a member of the same club, for the middle Atlantic golf championship, on the nineteenth hole.

A 25 foot putt for a birdie 3 won the match for the elder McKenzie and added the final touch of drama to the spectacular contest, which thrilled a gallery of hundreds.

The last putt marked the difference in strokes as well as in holes between the father and son. A. R. McKenzie, the winner, shot the nineteen holes in 81. Donald did them in 82.

Local Golf

CECIL C. FOGARTY landed first prize in the handicap at Bob O'Link, leading Classes A and B with 84—13—71. A. V. Konsberg was first in C and D with 90—22—78. Leaders in the sweepstakes were: R. C. Deery, 69; F. S. Pagin, 70; A. K. Bodholdt, G. A. Buhl, 71; K. W. Curtis, 72; C. C. Fogarty, 71; W. R. Mitchell, 73; F. A. Cuscaden, 73.

RIDGEMOOR.

A large field competed in the qualifying round for the Elm trophy, E. B. Coyle leading with 96—24—72. Other qualifiers were G. A. McCorkle, 86—13—73; H. O'Connor, 95—21—74; T. Hay, 95—20—75; F. P. Harding Jr., 99—24—75; A. W. Johnson, 85—8—77; J. C. Wisert, 85—9—76; F. G. Fox, 101—24—77; T. H. Holland, 103—19—78; G. A. Meyer, 91—13—78; J. J. Quin, 85—7—78; H. E. Mason, 98—20—78; C. C. Kurz, 96—18—78; J. E. O'Neill, 95—16—79; William Bayliss, 89—10—79.

ONLY TWO GAMES ON SOCCER CARD

Only two games are scheduled today in the soccer league which is rapidly completing its schedule. Harvey, runners up in the Peel cup competition and present leaders in the Chicago and District league, meet the Young Men's Hebrew association at 16th street and Avers avenue, while the Pullman Car Works, Peel cup winners, clash with the Swedish-Americans at Riverview Park.

Next Sunday the Swedes go to Detroit to play in the semi-finals of the national amateur cup match.

REDMON'S SLOOP WINS 32D RACE TO MICHIGAN CITY

Michigan City, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—Hal Redmon's famous old champion Lipton sloop Columbia won the Columbia Yacht club's thirty-second annual Michigan City race today. Its time for the thirty-five odd miles from the Van Buren street gap to this city was 5:56:16, more than 8 minutes better than that of Edith II which took second place. The universal time prize was won by Intrepid, the Prather Farrell Class P sloop.

The feature of the race was the showing made by the Chicago one design craft, a class of boat less than sixteen feet on the water line and the smallest that ever competed in the Michigan City race. One of these little boats, Naiad, sailed by George Dalseg, led the whole fleet of bigger and more powerful craft across the lake, arriving here about seven minutes ahead of the vanguard.

Given Two Hour Start.

All seven of the one designs finished well up with the leaders and the little craft will race back again to Chicago tomorrow. These boats were given a two hour start on the rest of the fleet and were not in the time prize competition.

The race was the foggiest in the history of the contest.

A light northerly breeze wafted the yachts away from Chicago, but when they reached the middle of the lake it flattened out and a heavy fog enveloped the fleet. It got denser and denser close to Michigan City, and the judges could barely make out the boats as they crossed the line.

Intrepid Double Winner.

Invader was first in the 25 foot division and Fame won the schooner event. The yawl Omoo took first place in its class, with Columbia first among the 30 footers. Intrepid, besides winning the special universal prize, also captured first honors in the 35 foot Seawanhaka class. Ariel, the new R boat, took the honors in this division, and Intruder, a new Q boat, took first place in its class.

The bouts will sail back to Chicago tomorrow morning at 8:30 in the annual Stratford cup contest of the Chicago Yacht club, over a fifty mile course. Summaries:

RUDOLPH TAKES BILLIARD MATCH

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—[Special.]—Erwin Rudolph, the western states pocket billiard champion, won the final match of the 1,000 point series from Andrew St. Jean last night, thereby giving him the match by the score of 1,000 to 952. St. Jean shot into the lead in the early part of the week but the great uphill fight that Rudolph made was spectacular.

White Wins Prep Golf Title; Team Honors to Hyde Park

Bob White of Lindblom yesterday bobbed up as the new golf champion of the Public Schools Athletic league. Last week he scored a 74 over the Marquette Park course and by duplicating this card yesterday, topped the field with a total of 148, which was six strokes better than the 80-74-154 made by Arthur Patterson of Hyde Park.

Francis Clary, a 15 year old player from Lake View, who has been coached by Professional Frank Bartsch, took third place with 97-71-168. His reversal of form from the preceding Saturday was remarkable. His card yesterday tied the amateur mark made two years ago by Patrick McGann, who is a professor at Tilden high and master of events at Marquette Park.

Team Title to Hyde Park.

White's win was not a surprise as he led the field in the qualifying round in the Cook County Municipal Golf tryouts for places on the Chicago team which will compete in the Public Links championship at Washington, the latter part of the month. His score made at the Edgebrook Forest Preserve course was 76-70-146. Hyde Park won the team championship with 649, Englewood coming next with 661. Hyde Park also won the girls' individual and team title.

Miss Bear Wins Title.

Miss Gladys Bear scored in the former with a card of 113-102-215, Miss Leota Keogh, also of Hyde Park and last year's champion, finishing with 103-116-219. Miss Helen Newman of Austin landed in third place with 221. Hyde Park was the only school with a full team and won automatically with 824. White's score was as follows

FIRST ROUND.

Out .....4 5 4 3 4 5 4 4 5—38
In .....5 3 3 4 4 3 4 5 5—36—74

SECOND ROUND.

Out .....4 5 4 3 4 5 4 4 5—38
In .....5 4 3 4 4 2 4 5 5—36—74

Clary's card was as follows:

Out .....5 4 5 4 3 4 4 4 4—37
In .....4 4 3 3 4 3 4 4 5—34—71

In the boys' team competition, all the Hyde Park players except Patterson went above last week's scores. The winning team was Art Patterson, 80-74-154; Eric Best, 79-83-162; Jack Beahan, 79-81-160, and Donald Ritchie, 82-83-165; total 641. Other teams finished as follows:

Senn, 696; Austin, 719; Bowen, 727; Schurz, 743; Crane, 748; Tilden, 766; Lindblom and Waller, no team representation.

U. S. G. A. PUTS STAMP OF APPROVAL ON 204

Two hundred and four players are included in the eligibility list of the United States Golf association issued yesterday by Chairman James D. Standish of Detroit. While the names of Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion, and Capt. Ernest F. Carter, the Irish champion, now in Chicago, are not in the list, it is because they have not yet established an American rating.

Any amateur golfer not listed who desires to play in the amateur championship at Flossmoor, Sept. 10 to 15 may submit his entry to Chairman Standish, but it must be filed before Aug. 25.

Among the Chicago players eligible are:

E. Hoover Bankard Jr., Midlothian; Francis R. Blossom, Indian Hill; George Blossom, Onwentsia; L. E. Bunning, Edgewood; Kenneth H. Burns, Glen View; Gordon Copeland, Skokie; Ira L. Couch Jr., Glen View; Dexter Cummings, Onwentsia; Raymond J. Daly, Flossmoor; J. H. Douglas Jr., Onwentsia; Donald Edwards and Kenneth P. Edwards, Glen View; Paul Gardner, Onwentsia; C. F. Grimes, Calumet; George Hackl Jr., Midlothian; George H. Hartman, Midlothian; W. I. Howland Jr., Onwentsia; W. B. Langford, Glen Oak; Allan Loeb, Ravisloe; J. N. McDonald, Calumet; R. W. Marsh, Lake Shore; J. A. Mudd Jr., Beverly; Burton F. Mudge Jr., Exmoor; J. B. Ryerson, Onwentsia; Albert Seckel, Riverside; H. G. Skinner, Hinsdale; R. C. Stuart, Onwentsia; Dewey Weber, Edgewood.

H. Chandler Egan, Chick Evans, Robert A. Gardner, and S. Davison Herron are on the honorary roll of former champions.

Swiss Davis Cup Team Eliminates Argentina

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 16.—[Associated Press.]—Switzerland eliminated Argentina from the Davis cup competition today when Aeschliman and Sautter defeated Villegas and Robson in the doubles, thus giving the local lawn tennis stars three straight victories. The score of today's match was 4-6, 6-2, 9-7, 6-3. The Swiss won two singles events yesterday.

ENGLAND AND SPAIN SPLIT.

Withington, England, June 16.—[Associated Press.]—England and Spain broke even in the first day's play of their lawn tennis tie for the Davis cup. Randolph Lycett defeated Eduardo Flaquer 6-0, 6-1, 6-1 in the first of the two singles matches of the day, and Count de Comar won the second from Wheatley of England, 4-6, 10-8, 6-1, 6-2.

"Hoge" Workman Elected Buckeye Baseball Pilot

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 16.—Harry "Hoge" Workman of Huntington, W. Va., star baseball pitcher and half back on Ohio State's football team, today was elected captain of the 1924 baseball nine.

MISS RYAN AND JOHNSTON TENNIS VICTORS AT KENT

BECKINGHAM, England, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—William M. Johnston of California and Miss Elizabeth Ryan succeeded in gaining all the glory in the Kent lawn tennis championships today, winning the men's and women's singles and, with their partners, tasting victory in the men's and women's doubles.

Johnston defeated D. M. Grieg of England, 6—2, 6—3. He and Wallis Myers defeated Grieg and W. C. Crawley, 6—4, 6—3, in the doubles.

Miss Ryan's victory in the singles was over Mrs. Satterthwaite, the British star, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3. Her partner in the doubles was Mrs. R. Lambert Chambers. They defeated Miss McKane and Miss Edgington, 6—0, 6—3.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Molla B. Mallory was eliminated in the semi-finals by Mrs. Satterthwaite, who defeated the American champion, 6—0, 6—2.

While the usual importance of these matches as foreshadowing the chances of the players at Wimbledon was somewhat cut by the non-appearance of B. I. C. Norton, the South African player, and Mrs. Beamish, some of these experts declared that if Johnston continues the excellent game he displayed this week he will have an open path to the Wimbledon title. He appears to be in his best form, showing none of the uneasiness of his last appearance at Wimbledon.

JOHNSON PENN VICTOR.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—Wallace F. Johnson, of Cynwyd, today won the Pennsylvania state tennis championship for the fourth consecutive time. He defeated Carl Fischer, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

SOUTH PARK WINS TENNIS TITLE IN INTERCLUB PLAY

South Park won its last game in Class A of the Chicago Tennis association inter club matches and kept its slate clean by defeating Hamilton Park club, 8 to 1, yesterday. South Park has won all five of its scheduled matches. Its only real battle came from South Side, 5 to 4.

George Lott, the phenomenal junior, was an important factor in the winning of the championship. He lost but one match in the entire play, once sharing a defeat in doubles. Rolley and Rice played good tennis and were instrumental in the victory. Summaries:

SINGLES—Lott defeated Brown [H. P.], 6—3, 6—4; Holbrook [H. P.] defeated Leavitt, 6—4, 6—4; Rice [S. P.] defeated Kinsel, 6—2, 6—4; Barnett [S. P.] defeated Parmalee, 6—3, 6—3; Drape [S. P.] defeated Buynitzky, 5—7, 6—1, 9—7; Rolley defeated Benson, 6—1, 6—3.

DOUBLES—Lott and Barnett [S. P.] defeated Holbrook and Brown, 6—2 2—6, 6—4; Rice and Drake [S. P.] defeated Parmalee and Buynitzky, 6—4, 4—6, 14—12; Rolley and Leavitt [S. P.] defeated Benson and Kinsel, 3—6, 6—0, 6—2.

River Forest Wins Again.

River Forest won its second consecutive victory in class A by defeating Sherwood, 5 to 4. F. M. Preucil triumphed in both his matches. The River Forest squad was slow in hitting its pace in the team race this year, or it might have figured in the class A championship. It won the B title last year. Summaries:

SINGLES—G. Hamilton defeated Fox [S.], 6—2, 6—3; Turner [S.] defeated G. Preucil, 6—3, 4—6, 8—6; Chappell [R. F.] defeated McLaughlin, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4; Walton defeated Pellett [R. F.], 4—6, 6—3, 6—4; F. M. Preucil [R. F.] defeated R. Harris, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2; H. R. Hamilton [R. F.] defeated Paul, 6—3, 6—4.

DOUBLES—Fox and Woods [S.] defeated Hamilton and Hamilton, 9—7, 6—3; Turner and Walton [S.] defeated Pellett and Chappell, 6—3, 6—1; Preucil and Preucil [R. F.] defeated McLaughlin and Harris, 6—1, 6—2.

DIVISION B—SOUTH SECTION.

HAMILTON PARK, 5; SEARS-ROEBUCK, 4.

Hamilton Park stopped the strong Sears-Roebuck squad, which boasts the services of Walter Hayes and Alex. Squair, 5 to 4. Carrier, southwest section junior champion, was an important factor in the victory. Summaries:

SINGLES—Hayes [S.-R.] defeated Thayer, 6—1, 6—1. Squair [S.-R.] defeated De Swarte, 7—5, 4—6, 6—1. McCaskey [H. P.] defeated Clapp, 2—6, 8—6, 6—4. Parriat [S.-R.] defeated Miller, 2—6, 8—6, 6—4. Peecher [H. P.] defeated Williams, 6—1, 6—3. Carrier [H. P.] defated Mery, 6—3, 6—2.

DOUBLES—Hayes and Parrint [S.-R.] defeated McCaskey and Miller, 6—1, 7—5. Peecher and De Swarte [H. P.] defeated Squair and Clapp, 6—3, 6—2. Thayer and Carrier [H. P.] defeated Williams and Mery, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

DIVISION B—NORTH SECTION.

LAWCHESTER, 8; RIVER FOREST, 1.

Lawchester retained the lead in the north B section by defeating the River Forest aggregation, 8 to 1. The singles matches were hard fought. Summaries:

SINGLES—Stear [L.] defeated Oliver, 6—1, 8—10, 6—1. Shumway [L.] defeated Randall, 6—1, 6—4. Hamilton [R. F.] defeated Nelson, 6—3, 6—3. Crane [L.] defeated Kressel, 6—0, 6—1. Haah [L.] defeated Roberts, 6—1, 1—6, 6—4. Armel [L.] defeated Swett, 6—3, 6—4.

DOUBLES—Stear and Shumway [L.] defeated Oliver and Roberts, 6—3, 6—1. Nelson and Crane [L.] defeated Hamilton and Randall, 6—4, 6—4. Lebecka and Armel [L.] defeated Kressel and Swett, 6—3, 6—3.

MAYWOOD, 5; EDISON, 4.

West Maywood had a hard tussle to trim the Edison racket wielders, but captured the deciding match after a long battle. All the doubles matches were hot. Summaries:

SINGLES—Luttringhaus [WM] defeated Kuphas, 6-2, 6-0. Benson [E] defeated Shawhan, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2. Howland [E] defeated Haynes, 6-2, 6-1. Collins [WM] defeated Clark, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2. Coons [WM] defeated Turner, 6-1, 7-5. Bontempo [E] defeated Sandhusky, 6-4, 6-0.

DOUBLES—Haynes and Coons [WM] defeated Howland and Benson, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3. Kuphas and Clark defeated Shaw and Luttringhaus [WM], 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Janhuska and Janhusky [WM] defeated Bontempe and Turner, 8-10, 6-4, 6-0.

DIVISION C.

BELL TEAM CONTINUES SWEEP.

Illinois Bell continues to lead in the division by its defeat of the Howard Terrace club, 5 to 1. Summaries:

SINGLES—Weston [IB] defeated David, 6-1, 6-4. Kalis defeated Schleicher [H], 6-0, 6-1. Doud [IB] defeated Plum, 6-2, 6-4.

DOUBLES—Kalis and Weston [IB] defeated David and Schleicher, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6. Doud and Leeds defeated Plum and Peck, 7-5, 6-2.

The Old Copyreader

"Many a story is hopelessly written, but the story of life is hopelessly rotten."

ANOTHER NEEDED REFORM.

Since Mr. Hays has sanctified
The silent screen a bit
If he will take my poor advice
He'll make a bigger hit;
He's got the players and the plays
Delightfully refined:
The questions of subtitles now
Should occupy his mind.

It certainly would tickle pink
A lot of us if he Could squeeze some info into them
And less hyperbole;
Instead of "Came the hour that
Across the Sea's expanse
From 'Over There' Jim sailed," I wish
They'd say "Jim's back from France."

I'd like to read in place of this:
"From Polar haunts the spell
Of Winter's blight enwrapped us" that
"It snow and blew like hell."
I think "And to the boundless plains
He hithered" is a pity
When all the feller did was take
The train for Kansas City,

"When Virtue sleeps in innocence"
It seems to me's redundant;
"That night," "At dawn" get on my nerves,
They're both too, too abundant.
The picture and the gals and gents
Therein are hunkydory,
But Mr. Hays should swat the scribes
Whose bunk balls up the story.

Reduce your "weight tax"!

When other cars pull up at the oil station, watch the Columbia Six whirl by!

For Columbia has combined sturdiness with light weight as few other motor car builders have been able to do—and light weight, more than any other one thing, determines gas, oil and tire economy as well as the life of a car's mechanism.

The owner of an unnecessarily heavy car pays a "weight tax" for every mile of driving—an "excess tax" in gas, oil and tires from which Columbia Six owness are conspicuously free. This economy is further emphasized by Columbia prices—the first and the only specialized Six to sell for less than $1000.

Get the facts about Columbia light weight, economy and the specialized construction that so definitely guarantees dependability. We have them for you any time you can stop in. Come soon.

The STEEL Shaft—the talk of the golfing world

Never in golfing circles has anything created so much comment as the Bristol Steel Golf Shaft. Never has anything caught on so quickly. It has proven a big success because it gives the average golfer better clubs—clubs which are uniform and dependable, clubs which are better balanced and will not warp, crack or rust.

CAN WILDE COME BACK? EASTERN FIGHT FANS ASK

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Can Jimmy Wilde come back? Has he been able to supplant the toll that nature has exacted for two years ring idleness? Will age be able to hold its own against youth? Will Wilde's punch prevail against the bulldog tenacity and tireless energy of Villa?

JIMMY WILDE [Tribune Photo.]

These are the questions to be answered at the Polo Grounds Monday night when Wilde and Pancho Villa meet in what is scheduled to be a fifteen round bout to a decision for the flyweight championship of the world.

Wilde a "Knockerout."

A comparison of the two records discloses the fact that Wilde is what is known in the parlance of the ring as a "knockerout." Villa is not. Wilde has won almost 50 per cent of his bouts by sending his opponents into dreamland.

Villa's seventeen against Wilde's sixty-three suffers by comparison, so far as knocking out is concerned, but the mere fact that Villa has been able to knock out seventeen, one of whom was George Mendres, the flyweight champion of Australia, who until that time aspired to world's honors, indicates that he packs a punch that is dangerous and permits of no liberties.

Villa Huskier.

In weight, height and reach the advantages are with Wilde, but in almost every respect Villa has the edge physically. He is broader of chest, smaller around the waist, his arms and legs are larger; in short of the two Villa is husier, and huskiness with a ten year advantage in age is something to be considered in the ring.

SHELBY DIGS UP AND SAVES DEMPSEY BOUT

be satisfied to mix with Dempsey. It was while Burke was tearing into the champion that the latter went to the floor. The spectators could scarcely believe their eyes as they watched Dempsey climb back on his feet.

Will Have to Improve.

One round of shadow boxing and a few minutes with the heavy bag wound up the day's work. To a man up a tree it would seem Dempsey will have to improve if he hopes to knock over Tommy Gibbons. In the old days Dempsey never allowed any of his sparring partners to take any liberties, but this gang is sure acting rough with the boss.

GIBBONS BACK AT GRIND

Shelby, Mont., June 16.—[Special.]—Unperturbed by the financial difficulties which have cropped up in the promotion of his bout with Jack Dempsey, Tommy Gibbons resumed intensive training here today after a day of idleness. He was on the road at dawn and covered his customary eight miles before breakfast.

This afternoon he skipped the rope and hammered the stationary punching bag in the blazing sun for thirty minutes, then jumped into the ring and boxed for eight rounds with his sparring partners. The exhibition of boxing pleased the 300 fans inside the stockade and there was more applause than ordinarily. This was due chiefly to the first appearance of Jimmy Delaney, a slashing light heavyweight from St. Paul, who recently made a clever showing against Gene Tunney, the American champion at that weight. Delaney is big and fast and will be a valuable addition to Gibbons' string of assistants.

Tommy found hitting the newcomer the most difficult proposition he had been up against since he started work here. Outside the Delaney bout the program was rather tame and listless. Gibbons knows just about what to expect of Bud Gorman and Tillie Kid Herman by this time, and Dan Dorcey, the local product, doesn't belong in the same ring with him.

SHELBY CELEBRATES WHEN NEWS COMES BATTLE IS ASSURED

SHELBY, Mont., June 16.—[By the Associated Press.]—Shelby breathed a sigh of relief upon the receipt of information that the second $100,000 of the $300,000 guaranteed Jack Dempsey for his bout with Tommy Gibbons July 4 had been paid. Mike Collins, the matchmaker, announced that the plans of the fight had not been altered during the delay incident to the payment of the $100,000. The fight population and residents of Shelby were jubilant. Impromptu but noisy celebrations were staged in the four rustic dance halls and other places of amusement.

STOCKYARDS DERBY PALATINE CARD TODAY

BY FRENCH LANE.

The annual running of the Stockyards Derby is on the cards at the Palatine race track this afternoon. Supported by a card of five other running races and by three special events, the speed program is expected to draw close to 15,000 turf fans.

A notable list of officials will handle the events, including Judge Joseph A. Murphy as presiding steward, Judge Joseph Sabath as presiding judge, Johnson Southard, starter, and Nelson Morris, Tom Chandler, and Tom Gross as starters. The track has been greatly improved within the last few weeks and efforts made to better handle the crowds.

The races on the flat will include a five-eighths mile, three-quarters mile, seven-eighths of a mile, and one and one-eighths mile events. A steeplechase over a 11-16 mile distance will be decided. The Stockyards Racing association is to be in charge.

Horses continue to arrive at Hawthorne for the twenty-five day meeting which opens Saturday, June 30. Among the prominent owners expected within the next few days are Col. R. L. Baker and J. G. Busey of Kentucky, C. B. Irwin of Wyoming.

Entries for the first running of the Illinois Derby on July 14, for a purse of $10,000, will close on July 7, it was announced yesterday, and indications now point to some of the best 3 year olds in the country as starters, with a possibility that some of the big eastern stables will be represented.

Close to 100 thoroughbreds are now quartered at the west side track and 200 more will be quartered there by the end of the week, according to Track Superintendent John M. Keegan, who is making the stable assignments.

MOB RUSHES SIKI AFTER MORRELLE WINS ON FOUL

PARIS, June 16.—Morrelle, French middleweight, was awarded the fight here today when Battling Siki was disqualified in the sixth round. The Senegalese hit Morrelle below the belt and knocked him out.

Three hundred fight fans gathered outside the hall after the match and hooted Siki as he rushed for a taxicab. A crowd closed in on him and attempted to attack him. Friends fought off the mob until police arrived and the battling Senegalese escaped.

Siki was said to have been drunk a few hours before he entered the ring. Siki has changed his mind and decided he had been training on whisky.

The bout today drew a large crowd but until a few minutes before the fight started the promoters did not know whether the negro would be able to enter the ring. He had been in a saloon which was near the hall for several hours. It was reported that he had been training on whisky.

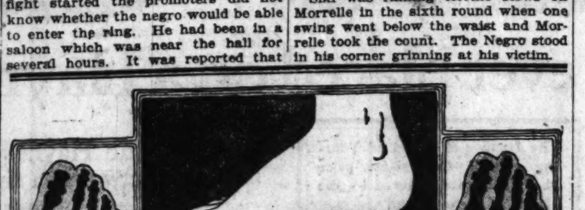
Clad in a rajah-like gown and wearing the tri-color tucked in at the waist of his tights, Siki entered the ring to receive one of the wildest ovations since the night he floored Carpentier.

When officials called the fighters to the center of the ring, Morrelle offered his gloved hands for Siki's inspection. The Negro made a face at his opponent.

The Senegalese appeared to be in poor condition and those at the ringside said he did not look so well as when he met Carpentier.

Siki played with Morrelle and landed a blow once that sent the Frenchman sprawling and into the ropes. He picked Morrelle up, stood him on his feet and started in to slam him about the ring again. Morrelle, however, improved as the fight progressed.

Siki was raining terrific blows on Morrelle in the sixth round when one swing went below the waist and Morrelle took the count. The Negro stood in his corner grinning at his victim.



You Cannot Afford to Neglect Your Feet

They Are Your Greatest Assets

Without strong, healthy feet your whole body and nervous system will gradually go to pieces, your mental activity decline, and you will be compelled to drop out of the race many years before your time. Do you realize quite what this would mean to you?

IF YOU HAVE SUFFERED with foot and limb troubles, tried various remedies without result, worn metal, rubber and hard leather arch supports without relief, come in and see us, and we will help you to restore your feet to youthful health and activity.

WE CAN REFER YOU to hundreds of people who came to us after everything else had failed them and were glad because they came. Many prominent physicians and foot specialists will vouch for us.

WE USE EXCLUSIVELY the Dr. Thomas Health Cushion Arches and Health Shoes, our own special designs.

Our foot specialist will examine your feet and tell you about the cause and effect of your trouble, and properly advise you.

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Firsts in both the 300 yard and medley relays, combined with Baskind's record breaking performance in the 100 yard breast stroke and the second and third place points gathered by Walker, Crooks and Baillie, gave Englewood 41 markers and the senior swimming title of the Chicago high schools in the second annual meet at Hamlin Park yesterday. Senn came a close second with 35 tallies.

Lane's versatile crew of junior mermen, scoring in all except one event, piled up 43 points for an easy victory over Senn, which dragged along second with 29. Parker's 23 tallies placed it third.

Five of the senior and six of the junior records established in the first outdoor meet last year were erased, some by as much as five seconds. Summaries:

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

GOING AFTER THE BIG ONES.

THE more you fish or watch guides working over a lake with an angler in tow, the more you realize that this game of luring the finny tribes is considerably more than merely tossing tackle around where fish are supposed to be hangin' out. The fellow, that does a little studying of the habits of fish and of the waters he is going to spend some time "working," usually comes out ahead with a full creel or the limit. Of course, luck plays its part, to be sure, but have you ever noticed that the guy we usually call lucky is the one that carries around something besides a lot of tackle and a rabbit's foot? He totes a little gray matter in his head and uses it.

Right now when the bass and muskies are in more or less shallow water and can be incited to riotous action by means of various lures it is not such a trick to land 'em—if the fisherman knows their hangouts. But a little later, when it's hot and the fish are off their feed and seeking out the cool, deep holes, you will see rafts of fishermen still whipping the warm, shallow water. The wise angler then takes to night fishing, when the bass and muskies will come into shallower water to food, or else he uses a few ingenious tricks to get 'em when they are down deep.

This reminds us of the trick that Walt Herzberg played a few years ago to get his big bass while fishing in Michigan waters. Walt couldn't get a nibble with fly or bait rod lures during a terrific hot spell. It was that time when the heat was so intense that trout died in some Michigan and Wisconsin streams. Walt gets a thermometer and decides to locate the spring holes, in which he knew the big bass were loitering. He would lower the thermometer down deep, allow it to stay there a minute, haul it up quickly, and take a reading. By moving around and doing this a number of times he soon had the holes located. The next stunt was to take a small frog, attach it to a hook, weight it slightly but not enough to impair the natural kicking ability of the lure, and let Mr. Frog down into a spring hole. Whang! and a bass was on. By this method Walt took some of the largest bass we ever saw.

We expect the bass that weren't hooked in deep holes are still wondering how those little frogs came gently floating into their retreat. Anyway, it was a case of five and six pound fish being landed.

We saw the skin of one of these old lunkers and it was some large mouth bass.

And it is much the same way with trout. We have seen days on a little Oregon stream when apparently nothing looked good to the trout. We were stumped on what to do. The answer came to us one evening. Our cabin was swamped by a flight of moth millers which were attracted by our lamp. Harry, our camp pal, immediately began collecting a bunch of these moths. We used them the next day on that trout stream and the blamed trout just fell over themselves grabbin' for those inconspicuously colored moths. Fishing is a funny game. But that's the fun of it.

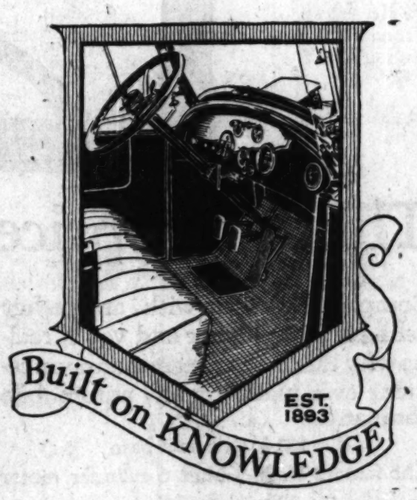
APPERSON



Emergency brake handle is on the instrument board just below ignition switch. Gear-shift control on steering wheel below spark and throttle levers.

No Levers in the Driver's Compartment

On the Apperson Eight and the new Apperson Six are several engineering features which are exclusively Apperson—the front compartment, for instance, which has been freed from all obstructions, and which permits either entrance or egress on the curb side.

Apperson engineers have obtained this convenience by adopting the C-H Pre-Selecting Mechanical Gear-Shift (a revolutionary device of inestimable benefit to women who enjoy driving their own cars), and by placing the emergency brake control on the instrument board within easy reach as the hand falls naturally from the wheel.

If you will notice, in families where there is an Apperson, it is the woman who does most of the driving. Her confidence in the car and her pride of ownership constitute the greatest possible compliment to the fine engineering, ease of handling, beauty and willing responsiveness of her Apperson.

You can drive an Apperson today. Call for an appointment or come to our salesroom.

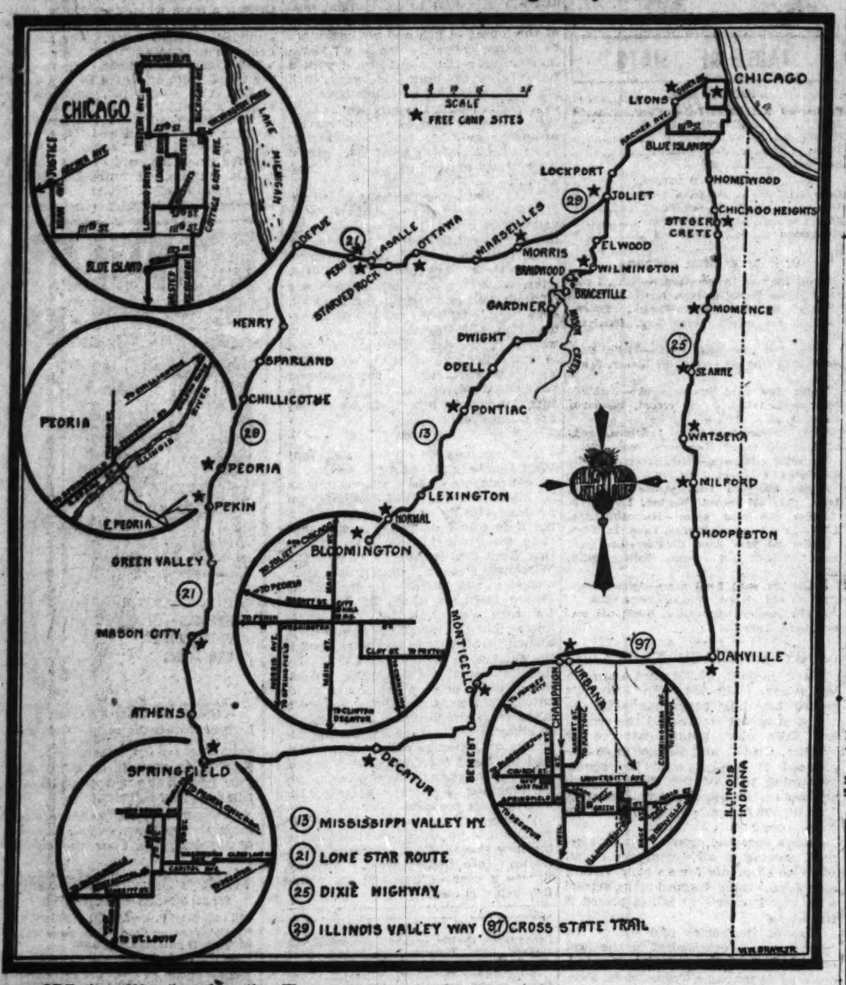
Tribune Tours

VII.—The Prairie Highway Circle



MORE than 600 miles of continuous pavement, new concrete for the most part, stretch south from Chicago to circle the corn belt and connect the most important cities of Illinois. The circle offered follows the paved routes of the original $60,000,000 bond issue which has dragged Illinois from the mud and made the state a leader in middle west road development.

The circle tour suggested, together with the direct route to Bloomington, now complete with the exception of a fifteen mile detour, makes an ideal weeks' tour. The Chicago driver may use either of two routes out of the city—Ogden avenue and the Archer pavement to Joliet, or the combination of streets leading to the Dixie highway and avoiding construction work on Western avenue. In the upper circle is shown the latest option to reach the Dixie. It follows Cottage Grove avenue, South Michigan, 123rd street and Vermont avenue to Blue Island, rather than using the rough portions of Halsted street via Harvey.

The one detour on the Bloomington route is marked from Wilmington via Braidwood and Braceville. It follows earth roads fair in dry weather. There remains one detour west of La Salle on the Peoria-Springfield road, also a temporary rerouting out of Ottawa, due to repair work on the concrete road leading to Starved Rock park.

Order Wider Roads.

The board of road commissioners in Saginaw county, Michigan, in a five year road building program recently adopted, has determined that no county road shall be constructed less than twenty feet wide. The use of concrete for either foundation or top has been eliminated except in cases where existing old bases can be utilized. Asphaltic penetration, sheet asphalt or asphaltic concrete surfaces will be laid.

Expanding Plants.

Power development privileges have been granted to the Ford Motor company, permitting the use of the "high" dam on the Mississippi river between the Twin Cities of Minnesota.

At St. Paul the Ford company will construct a $10,000,000 plant, the principal articles manufactured to be tractors and automobile parts.

Careless Smokers Warned Away from Pacific Forests

COMPLETE abstinence from smoking stares motorists in the face if they are planning to tour any of the California forest reserves, according to a warning just issued by the Auto club of Southern California.

Unless there are fewer forest fires and a great deal less carelessness on the part of automobile parties, a smoking ban will be placed on some of the greatest vacation areas in America. Police powers belonging to forest reserve supervisors have been greatly increased at Washington and it is entirely within the jurisprudence of the reserve supervisors to say whether or not there will be no smoking of pipes, cigars or cigarets within the limits of the Angelus or Cleveland reserves.

An investigation of early summer forest fires springing up in certain parts of southern California has developed the evidence that a large majority of these fires have started from carelessly thrown cigaret stubs falling into dry grass along the road. In view of the fact that tramps using the road do not smoke the type of cigaret which burns on and on until exhausted, and that motorists do, has led the forest officials to believe that the motorist is largely at fault.

No such ban has yet been placed on the forest reserves of the southern part of the state, but such a contingency is said to be possible.

Forest reserve officials have notified the auto club that every possible effort is being made this year to prevent destructive fires in the hills and mountains and there will be no fooling with the situation.

FAST FREIGHT TRAIN CHARTERED TO CARRY CARS FOR TOURISTS

THE world's fastest freight train, run exclusively for the benefit of the Chicago automobile tourist, is about to make its bow to speedy transportation circles, according to announcement made yesterday by W. A. Terry, freight traffic manager of the New York Central railroad.

With a fixed schedule of forty-two hours elapsed time between Chicago and Albany, the first motor special will be routed to take care of cars bound for eastern mountain roads while arrangements are being completed to establish a similar service from Chicago to Denver and the national park objectives. Next winter it is planned to schedule special automobile trains from Chicago to Florida and southern California if the new scheme is found to be successful.

The eastern special, railroad men declare, will make it possible for the tourist who is in a hurry to reach his vacation objective to check his car as he would his trunk and find it waiting for him when he steps from his Pullman, ready to tour the Adirondacks or the Berkshires.

In addition to the novel freight service, it is planned to furnish the vacationist with maps and information covering his entire trip. Both the shipping details and service is handled by an incorporated company, working with the railroad. It has been promised coöperation by a number of automobile clubs and commercial organizations in the east and central west in this attempt to improve automobile tourist service.

HEAVY RATIO.

Clinton, Ia., is a city of 25,000 population, has 4,000 passenger cars, 250 motor trucks, 20 taxicabs, and 10 motor busses.

If this were your child—

what would you think of this car driver? He depended upon an unreliable, weak-voiced horn and it failed him in an emergency. Nothing to do now but grab the brakes and hope for the best. A cheap horn often proves to be costly.

If you, too, are a Ford owner you will avoid unpleasant accidents and lawsuits by equipping with a powerful-voiced horn that is always on the job. Ask your dealer or garageman to show you the Stewart horn. It's "custombilt."

Buy Trucks As You Would Real Estate

WHEN you buy real estate you investigate the title thoroughly. Yet even larger truck investments often are made on mere word-of-mouth claims. Protect your truck investment—as you would your real estate—by knowing all the facts. Here are the facts about the makers of INDIANA Trucks:

1. STABILITY: A strong, old-established company, founded in 1898—a quarter-century of steady, solid, substantial growth.
2. FINANCIAL STRENGTH: Ample capital and strong resources, assuring the advantageous buying which makes INDIANA values possible.
3. EXPERIENCE: Twenty-five years of successful manufacturing, of which thirteen years have been exclusively devoted to the manufacture of high-grade motor trucks.
4. POLICIES: A fixed determination to build nothing but the best, to put value and service ahead of all else, and to give the utmost for the money.
5. SCOPE: A nation-wide institution in manufacturing, sales and service; eleven strategically located factory parts depots covering the entire country, and hundreds of distributor and dealer parts-stocks available in as many cities.
6. PERFORMANCE: Thousands of INDIANA Trucks in service in almost every country—many of them in daily operation 10 years and longer, and many that have gone a hundred thousand miles and more.

We can refer you to companies in your line of business who have standardized on INDIANAS.

SUCCESS!---

Enjoy It With Us

A Series of Engineering Successes Have Combined To Make One Outstanding Success—the Most Notable Ever Achieved in the Automobile Industry

Rickenbacker Six is a success unqualified—Chicago has said so!

You, yourself, have often mentioned the great number of Rickenbacker cars you see on the streets—and more than once you have exclaimed: "That 'Hat in the Ring' is now everywhere!"

Have you stopped to consider the reasons for this?

Do so—and you will decide to share this success with us—if you are now at the point of choosing your next automobile.

Chicago is, at the same time, the easiest and the hardest city in the world in which to sell an automobile.

Because—all Chicago knows motor cars.

Chicago has always shown a fine discrimination in motor cars. And logically, too—for Chicago was the first city in America to encourage this industry when it was still an infant.

Why the very word "Automobile" was coined—first heard and first used—in Chicago!

A new model either achieves a vogue here—or it never gets a foothold.

There is no half-way about it.

Chicago either accepts and proclaims it enthusiastically—or ignores it entirely, as unworthy of expert consideration.

"Inside information" travels rapidly here.

It filters down from enthusiastic owners—yes, and rival salesmen, too, who cannot but admit that "Rickenbacker is the other good car"—through friends and acquaintances and, faster than the printed word, spreads until it permeates the very atmosphere.

Rickenbacker today enjoys that wonderful position—Chicago has conferred upon this product its highest favor!

"It is in the air and everywhere" that "that Rickenbacker Six is 'Some Automobile!'"

Look at the men and women you see driving Rickenbackers today.

They are persons whose judgment you know is sound—because everyone is a success in his own business or profession.

Many you recognize as executives of Chicago's largest enterprises—and women prominent in social and other activities.

There is a reason for the success of this car.

Men who know, say it embodies the most advanced engineering features, and is the nicest piece of finely-made mechanism yet produced in the world-center of the trade.

"Tandem Fly Wheels," which free the motor from all "Periods of Vibration," constitute one of the outstanding features of this car.

That was one of the greatest improvements made in an automobile in a decade.

The Rickenbacker Anti-Friction Steering mechanism also set a new standard for ease of control. Practically no exertion. Car "roads" naturally, and steers so freely you are almost unconscious of the operation.

The Rickenbacker "Air Cleaner" increases the power, lengthens the life, and renders the motor free from excessive carbon deposits.

The differential brake equalizer guarantees perfect control on any kind of surface, wet or dry—Rolls Royce and Lafayette also use this type of equalizer.

And these are only a few of many.

For, in sharp contrast to practically every rival, this Rickenbacker Six is post-war design—from the ground up.

Late inventions and discoveries in the science of making motor cars are built into its very vitals—not tagged on to a chassis which is basically a pre-war model.

Everyone in the trade is amazed, and motorists are surprised, at this success which has come so spontaneously.

Why, last month's demand was a veritable tidal wave!

There was a flood of orders!

Our quota was 10 per cent of the total factory output—and we needed more than twice that to supply Chicago customers who had heard about, had closely inspected and finally had driven this car—and who thereupon pronounced the Rickenbacker Six the only car for them.

Chicago knows a motor car as a Kentuckian knows a horse.

You could as soon sell a sluggish "Iron Horse," a palsied "Gas Eater," or a motor with "St. Vitus Dance," in this city as you could find a buyer for a spavined, wind-broken, sway-backed mule in the Lexington Horse Market!

Proof that Chicago is a connoisseur in fine motor cars is Chicago's preference for the Rickenbacker Six.

Amazing in performance—like the thoroughbred it is, since it is made by men of ripest experience in this industry—the price is still the most amazing thing about this car.

The largest percentage of buyers last month were persons who had previously owned cars of much higher price.

As a matter of fact, only such a person can fully appreciate the Rickenbacker Six—because he compares its snap and ginger and go—its luxurious riding qualities, its beautiful appearance and rich appointments—with cars that sell for at least $1,000 more.

Of course, one who has owned ordinary cars experiences a thrill he has never before known when he first rides in this Rickenbacker Six.

That is to be expected.

But when a man, who has expected to pay twice as much for a car that would measure up to the best he has previously known, finds all and more in this car at this price—his enthusiasm knows no bounds.

You are cordially invited to share this great success that has come to us.

We are more proud than we can say of this fine testimonial of Chicago's approval and preference.

Last month's sales were the greatest in our history.

We are grateful beyond words—and the factory officials join us in expressing publicly our gratitude.

Let us show you, or better still, take the wheel—it steers with one finger—and show yourself the many qualities in this Rickenbacker Six that make such an irresistible appeal to the most motor-wise community in the whole world.

Show the man in the car behind you the "Hat in the Ring" on your tire cover—it is an evidence of social as well as business standing—of good taste as well as good judgment—to be seen in a Rickenbacker Six.

There is a Pride of Ownership in the possession of a car with this famous insignia such as you have never enjoyed before.

You will never be satisfied until you do own a Rickenbacker.

Great Motor Road Opens Canadian Rockies to Autos

Trail Frontier Advanced by Opening of New Highway.

FORMAL opening of the Banff-Windermere highway across the central Canadian Rockies on June 30 will mark the completion of a notable achievement in the history of western engineering.

The new highway opens up the rich scenic region which lies within the Banff and Kootenay national parks which includes the famous resorts of Banff and Lake Louise, to motorists of the continent. It is also important because it forms the last link in the great 66,000 mile system of national highway linking up the national parks and great touring centers of the western and southwestern United States with some of the national parks of the Canadian Rockies.

The original intention was to hold the formal opening at Vermilion Crossing, a point almost equally distant from Banff and the Windermere valley. Owing to the indications of a much larger number of participants than had been anticipated, it has now been decided to have the ceremonies take place at Kootenay Crossing, a few miles farther west. The Kootenay valley is a wide and beautiful one, with green and level meadows which will provide ample space on both sides of the road to allow for the parking of approximately 1,000 cars as well as for the convenient handling of traffic in both directions. No one will be allowed to travel over the road from either end before June 30.

The new road, which was built by the engineering division of the Canadian national parks branch of the department of the interior, is 125 miles long and runs throughout its entire distance through wild and extremely beautiful mountainous country, crossing two mountain passes in its length. This is virgin country where many of the peaks as yet have not even been named and, owing to the absence of towns and other settlement, special provision for the needs of the motorist has been necessary. Since the beginning of the season workmen have been busily engaged clearing sites for camping grounds along the highway and equipping them with the necessary conveniences.

Camps will be located at the following points: Vermilion Summit, Black's Camp, Hawk Creek, Vermilion Crossing, Kootenay Crossing, McLeod Meadows, Sinclair Summit, and McKay Creek. The Canadian Pacific railway has under course of construction a bungalow lodge similar to its Wapta camp at Radium Hot Springs and a tea and rest house at Vermilion Crossing. Other tea houses will also be available at the western end of the road.

In addition, the existing public camp site at Banff has been considerably enlarged and improved and when completed will be one of the best equipped on the continent. It will be connected with the Banff water system and will be provided with service buildings, shelters, tables, stoves, benches and other conveniences, including a telephone system with long distance connections.

Speaking of Speed.

Tommy Milton, a real student of engineering as well as a strategist on the speedways, offered some interesting figures on the operation of his victorious H. C. S. special in the 500 mile drive at Indianapolis.

"Never once did it miss a shot in the whole tour," he said of the car's Miller motor. "With the motor turning 5,000 revolutions a minute, the pistons came to a complete stop twice in every revolution—top and bottom. This, although inconceivable, is accurate."

The breaker on the distributor functioned 20,000 times a minute, and "that's pretty quick," said Milton. In an eight cylinder four cycle motor there are four sparks or power impulses every revolution of the crankshaft. Four sparks time 5,000 revolutions makes enough sparks to start a large sized bonfire.

Some one suggested possibly it was this fire that kept Milton moving so rapidly.

Auto Row Dealers Demand Caution of Car Drivers

THE Chicago Automobile Trade association has started a movement to prevent and reduce accidents. This will be accomplished through an intensive safety and educational campaign in which members of this organization are all cooperating.

This campaign is being conducted under the direction of a special committee of prominent automobile dealers, consisting of Dayton Keith, chairman, and L. B. Southerland, C. E. Eldridge and J. R. Histed. The committee holds regular meetings, at which the subject of "less accidents" is discussed.

One of the first steps taken by the tradesmen to accomplish their purpose was the issuing of a bulletin to members of the association, urging them to instruct their demonstrators, testers and ther employés who drive cars to drive carefully and to make it a part of their business to inform new car drivers of the vital importance of driving carefully.

Local automobile men are as keenly interested in reducing and preventing accidents as any other public spirited group of citizens—in fact more so. They take pride in their business and are opposed to anything that will lower its standard or bring about the disapproval of the general public.

"A careful analysis of the fatalities shows that most of them are due to the carlessness of the pedestrian, children hitching on, running out in front of vehicles, roller skating, crossing in the middle of the block, and other causes," said Dayton Keith.

"Nevertheless, all of these contributary causes call for greater care on the part of the automobile driver. Employés of members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association have been warned to be extremely careful when driving, especially in the city, where traffic is very heavy."

Export Record

Twenty thousand six hundred and ninety motor vehicles were exported in March from the United States and American branches in Canada. The highest previous monthly record was in May of 1920.

New Bridge Plans Insure Safety on County Highways

Torrence Avenue Project Offers Outlet for South Traffic.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

HIGHWAY hazards about Chicago will be practically eliminated this year by the building of twenty-seven new structures, according to announcement made by the Cook county board yesterday through the county highway department.

In addition to building the needed bridges, viaducts and overhead railroad crossings, the department plans to continue its safety campaign of straightening dangerous curves, relocating rights of way and opening new arteries into the country to minimize congestion on the present main routes.

One of the most important moves in the scheme to make the Cook county pavement system the safest in the world as well as the greatest in mileage is the opening of a new trunk line route to the southeast via Torrence avenue and the Range Line road in the Calumet lake district. To blaze this new trail plans and specifications have been prepared for the construction of Burnham bridge to span the Little Calumet river on Torrence avenue at 138th street. The bridge is to cost $250,000. It will be a double leaf bascule with a 28 foot wood block roadway and 6 foot sidewalks. Steel fabrication is already under way and the contract for the substructure will be let immediately.

This bridge, in the vicinity of the new Ford Motor plant, will offer an outlet for thousands of cars and trucks bound for the southeastern part of the county and the lake district of Indiana. The route will follow Torrence avenue to 130th street, thence over a new road which the city of Chicago is laying out and the new city bridge spanning the Grand Calumet river at 135th street. It will continue on to the Burnham bridge and south via the Range Line road. The road is now being paved from the Burnham bridge site to 143d street.

Another safety contract will remove a dangerous curve on the road south of 159th street by construction of a three span girder bridge 160 feet long, to replace the old steel bridge over the Little Calumet.

A third important improvement proposes construction of a vaduct on Halsted street over the dangerous I. H. B. railroad crossing, just south of 138th street. This grade crossing has been known as extra hazardous for several years.

The southwest county routes will be improved by the building of a 300 foot concrete deck girder bridge over the Des Plaines river on the Willow Springs road. A second new bridge will be thrown over the I. & M. canal just southeast of the river structure. The two modern bridges will care for traffic bound for Joliet, forming an optional route to the state road via Summit from Lyons. Temporary structures will carry traffic until both state and county bridges are completed over the canal and river.

Other plans in the big program include:

A concrete bridge over the Des Plaines river on Minor street, near Des Plaines.

A concrete bridge over the Des Plaines on Touhy avenue.

A concrete bridge over the Northwestern tracks on the Ela road, near Barrington, to be built by the county and the railroad company.

Three concrete bridges on Sheridan road in Glencoe to replace the old and dangerouse structures there.

A concrete bridge on the County Line road one mile north of Shermerville to replace an old structure.

In addition fifteen smaller structures, bridges and culverts, will be built on various township roads.

Maj. George A. Quinlan's plans for the elimination of bad curves and grade crossings and the opening of new routes out of Chicago have been followed consistently by the county commissioners in this season's program. The board is known as one of the leading good roads bodies of the country and expects this year to set additional national standards for highway construction.

The board has established a standard of sixty-six feet wide rights of way and has ordered the building of wider shoulders along the new roads. Already stakes have been set for this safety work on twenty miles of country roads.

At the end of the 1922 season the county had completed 293 miles of pavements on the 1,700 mile county system. About forty-five miles of the 1922 contracts were left uncompleted. This work was begun some time ago and will be rushed to completion to make way for new contracts.

FRIENDS OF SPORTING PRINCE

More Delaware Firms

During the month of April no less than thirty-four new automobile and motor car part manufacturing concerns were incorporated in Delaware. Among the new companies are the Ford Motor Company of Brazil, $1,000,000; the Kelsey Motor company of Newark, N. J., $25,000,000, and the California Motors corporation, Oakland, Cal., $6,000,000.

That Fatal Squeak.

The motorists who forgets about the speed laws often is convicted in the mind of the pursuing traffic officer because of screaching brakes. The idea of the man with the short memory is to stop as quickly and as quietly as possible in the hope of causing the motorcycle policemen to believe that he overestimated the fate at which the motorist was going. But the driver is out of luck when screeching brakes act as tattletales. The moral therefore that drivers with bad memories should bear in mind is that "an adjustment in time often serves to avert a fine."

Boost Electric Truck.

An intensive effort to promote the use of the electric truck for short haul delivery purposes is about to be made throughout the country, according to the annual report of the Electric Truck and Car bureau, just made public.

In addition to a campaign of publicity and advertising, the Electric Truck and Car bureau plans to send a qualified transportation engineer to various communities throughout the country to make a first hand analysis of the transportation problems. Each manufacturer is also to have in his employ a competent transportation engineer who will stand ready to coöperate with central electrical stations.

Another Merger.

Details of a proposed consolidation of the Briggs Manufacturing company, well known automobile body manufacturers, and the Michigan Stamping company, manufacturers of metal stampings for automobile bodies and trimmings, are being worked out by officials of the two companies, which will be merged into one of the biggest concerns in the country.

The Briggs Manufacturing company, operating three large plants, employs approximately 12,000 men. The Michigan Stamping company's plant employs about 2,000 men.

FACING THE FACTS

In this series of daily talks I shall endeavor to show facts of vital interest to everyone who uses an automobile. On request, we will furnish those particularly interested any articles they have missed.
H. A. HOLDER

No. 8

Are you facing the facts or spending $4875 you might save?

You pay for this service

If you read automobile advertisements you will note that in the last few months the poppet valve manufacturers have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in advertising the number of service stations which are maintained for their owners. While none of them reach Ford in numbers they seem to feel the need of doing so.

This tremendous expenditure of soliciting buyers because of the conveniences established to spend their money to maintain the product after bought is, to say the least, amusing to a manufacturer of Knight engines.

Appalling

Having a little time last Sunday, I took the opportunity to read a large number of articles on automobile publicity. I was attracted by two, one being an article prepared by one of the leading executives of one of the greatest poppet valve manufacturing companies in the world—a man who has a national reputation as an authority on sales and service, and I quote from this article as follows:

"If, for any cause, service to motor car owners should be completely stopped, their automobiles would die so fast that in a month the sight of a live car on the street would be a curiosity."

Think this over

Another authority of high standing in the automobile world, who has every facility for research and information is quoted as saying:

"Maintenance is a larger field of endeavor than direct automobile production from the standpoint of the number of people employed and the amount of money involved in the actual turnover," He states:

"While about $2,000,000,000 of new cars were sold at retail in 1922, the expenditures relating to maintenance, purchase of parts and labor were $5,000,000,000 in the same period."

That the poppet valve engine is so dependent upon tinkers, so frequently dotted along over the highway, or that the cost of its maintenance requires such tremendous expenditures each year should command the attention of every buyer or user of automobiles.

The above statements are not Knight propaganda. They are a "Facing of the Facts" by the poppet valve interests themselves.

They are not true of Knight automobiles wherever or by whomever made, and especially are they not true of the car of my ideal "America's Finest All-around Automobile" —The R&V Knight Six.

All the service stations in the country could close until Christmas and in my opinion 95% of my automobiles would be running in the middle of the road, as efficiently as ever. What these leading experts in the poppet valve field state as facts, I sensed, even if I did not realize as fully at the time as they do now.

How I settled the service problem

But I did something about it besides talking and building more service stations. I met the cause at the source. I met the cost and the question of service in the engine itself by building something different—something better. My solution of the service problem is to remove the need for it almost entirely. This should command your attention and investigation in your own interest, as it was for you it was done.

Why a $3000 poppet valve car costs owner $7625 every 5 years

	Over a 5-year period
Statistics prove the average $3000 car buyer gets a new car every two years. Based on that average 2½ times $750 amounts to	$ 1875
Engine service expense for carbon removal, valve grinding, repairs, etc., costs the owner $100 a year or	500
Service expense on car costs say $50 yearly or	250
Depreciation costs the owner $3000 yearly. That is, every two year owner sells or trades in his $3000 car for $1000. This amounts to 2½ times $2000 or	5000
TOTAL COST to poppet valve car owner	$7625

Why a $3000 R&V Knight Six saves you $4875 of the $7625

	Over a 5-year period
Our factory branches will furnish any dealer a car when he sells it at 10%. As the dealer carries no stock this is in the nature of additional profit outside of his regular business, and 10% is virtually net profit—you buy only once in 5 years—so you pay in commissions	$ 300
At the end of 5 years you sell or trade in your $3000 car for $1000. This makes a depreciation of $400 a year or	2000
Note: Records of 350 of our cars sold in one county show owners keep their cars on average of 5½ years. There is no engine service expense for the first two years and not more than $200 for the next three years. This expense of $40 annually amounts to	200
Service expense on car yearly $50 or	250
TOTAL COST to R&V Knight Six owners for 5 years	$2750
BALANCE in favor of R&V Knight Six owners	$4875

Buy "Care-free Motoring"

The R&V Knight Six gives a satisfaction fine car buyers have never been able to buy before—"Care-free Motoring." The R&V Knight Six is the best all around automobile in America.

The only car with engine sealed at the factory and guaranteed for two years

This wonderful engine is the foundation of "Care-free Motoring" around which is built the finest car we can build.

The engine cannot cost the owner one cent for service for 2 years. The manual furnished every owner explains its simplicity with an A B C clarity.

The car is made of world standard units known to every garage mechanic. See, ride and drive the R&V Knight Six before you buy any car—anywhere at any price. Then judge for yourself. Call, phone or write.

"CARE-FREE MOTORING"

You pay for this distribution

Ford with his universal low first cost car has been able to organize universal and economical distribution through exclusive dealers. The Ford dealers' overhead is comparatively low because of the rapid turnover, and because this expense is usually met by other work he does.

The cost of distribution for the maker of higher priced cars however is high and must be added to the price of the car. The dealer cannot operate on less than 25%. You must pay him $750 for selling you a three thousand dollar car and even then he can't make money in a town of 100,000.

Why it is not profitable for a dealer to sell high priced cars in a city of 100,000

In the average city of 100,000 population with its surrounding territory, statistics show about 2500 cars are sold annually.

Of these 2500 a little over 4% or say 100 cars priced around $3000 are sold every year.

These 100 cars represent about 12 makes and an equal number of dealers. Granted that one of these cars sells better than the others. Granted that one dealer sells 35% of this particular make. The other ten or eleven dealers who divide the remaining 65 cars certainly can't make money at 25 or 30 or 35 per cent. And the great big market for automobiles is not in the great cities of the country, for the majority of the people who need and can afford good cars is where the majority of the population lives and that is in the small cities, towns, communities and on the farms.

But beyond that we cannot give to the exclusive dealer the profit poppet valve manufacturers can give.

We build a car to give the buyer as much satisfaction for five years as statistics show he gets from the average car in two years.

Our buyers keep their cars two and one-half times as long in first hands, consequently less than one half the number of sales and commissions to the dealer.

Again, because we have eliminated service cost to the buyer in building a special car, we have eliminated profit from such service to the same extent.

We believe local dealers necessary

We recognize the need of a local dealer to the buyer. We recognize the need of the local dealer to us if our user is to get from our car the value we have built into it.

As a rule, automobile users are not experts or even familiar with the mechanical features of their cars.

They must have someone to call upon for consultation, advice and for the adjustments from time to time necessary for their satisfaction and ours, as from satisfied owners only can come our success.

Choose your dealer yourself

We believe also the buyer can from his own knowledge choose the man who will give him the best attention from the most convenient location much better than we can assign such a dealer to him through an exclusive agency.

Any dealer can sell our car

We have, therefore, opened the sale of our car to any recognized dealer or repair man in the country, who is equipped to give the buyer satisfaction and who will make the monthly inspections provided for under our guarantee.

For this service we give a trade discount of 10%. For what we ask, dealers can get a fair net profit from this and the user will find that cost a reasonable charge for him to have added in the price of the car.

The whole question of distribution is of great importance and I hope to go further into same in further talks. Meanwhile remember any dealer can sell you our car and if you yourself buy a car instead of having it sold to you, the cost will be less, as the difference is certainly built into the car.

Chicago Pilot to Handle New Car in K. C. Battle

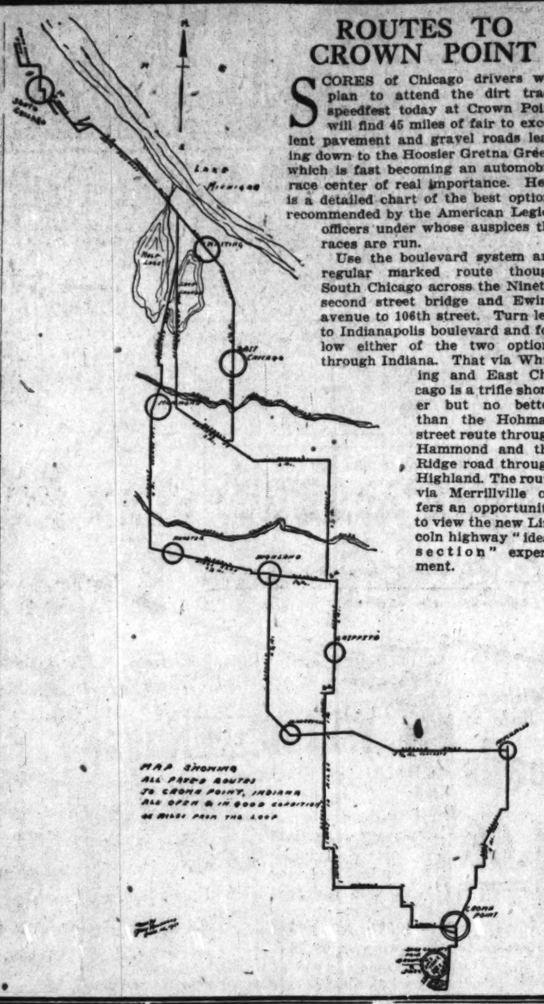
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Although it has been rumored for some time that there would be a local entry in the national championship speedway race July 4, nothing definite was known in regard to it until George L. Wade, oil magnate and sportsman, made a positive announcement this week. It then developed that Wade was engaged in building a car for the contest which was rapidly nearing completion and which is now expected to make its initial appearance on the course in a few days.

In addition to his announcement regarding the car comes the name of the driver who will pilot it in the rapidly approaching classic. The car is to be handled by Harlan Fengler of Chicago, who made such a creditable showing at Indianapolis.

"Youth will have its day," said Wade in discussing his nominee, "and for that reason I have selected the youngest driver on the circuit. If he fails me this time he will still have another chance and eventually he will come into his own as the others have done. I like him. The experts like him and he has confidence in himself. If those are not winning attributes I do not know what to look for."

The new car, which will be known as the "K. C. Special," will be of the new "eight in a row" type, with a bore and stroke of 2 11-32 by 3½ inches, giving it a total piston displacement of 122 cubic inches. This is the maximum displacement permitted under the rules of this season. It will be of the one place variety, will weight slightly over 1,400 pounds, and will have a maximum speed of at least two miles a minute.

Fengler, while young in years, has spent four years in the racing game, most of which has been in the capacity of mechanic. He was first with Jack Field, then with Frank Elliott, and later with Harry Hartz, with whom he rode at Indianapolis and Kansas City last year.



ROUTES TO CROWN POINT

SCORES of Chicago drivers who plan to attend the dirt track speedfest today at Crown Point will find 45 miles of fair to excellent pavement and gravel roads leading down to the Hoosier Gretna Green, which is fast becoming an automobile race center of real importance. Here is a detailed chart of the best options recommended by the American Legion officers under whose auspices the races are run.

Use the boulevard system and regular marked route though South Chicago across the Ninety-second street bridge and Ewing avenue to 106th street. Turn left to Indianapolis boulevard and follow either of the two options through Indiana. That via Whiting and East Chicago is a trifle shorter but no better than the Hohman street route through Hammond and the Ridge road through Highland. The route via Merrillville offers an opportunity to view the new Lincoln highway "ideal section" experiment.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question John H. Mueller, 6203 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

What has been the effect of the automobile on crime?

Where Asked.

Detective bureau.

The Answers.

Chief Michael Hughes, 179 North La Salle street — The fact that something like 85 per cent of the major crimes in Chicago are committed by men using autos shows how highly the criminal values the auto for the successful accomplishment of crime. In preauto days it was easy to apprehend criminals, because they could not so easily get out of the neighborhood.

Sergt. Charles E. Egan, 179 North La Salle street — There are two effects — the auto causes more crime, and at the same time it deprecates crime. A criminal's first question is, Where can we get a car? Criminals use autos in their work, but we have high powered cars to go after and capture them. Criminals are afraid of these cars.

Sergt. Thomas E. Burke, 179 North La Salle street — The auto has caused an increase in crime, and in many ways. The master criminal is no longer our most dangerous criminal. The reckless man at the wheel, whether sober or under the influence of liquor — he's our greatest criminal today. Two hundred and ninety-six deaths from auto accidents since Jan. 1!

Sergt. M. P. Naughton, 179 North La Salle street — An auto is like a powerful magnet. It attracts the purchaser, it attracts the criminal, and with it a man can attract girls who would slap him in the face if similarly accosted on the street. The invitation for a ride is gladly accepted and society pays the penalty. How many girls carry the haunting memory of a strange man and an auto no one knows.

William S. Baynes [with rifle squad], 179 North La Salle street — If you were to go back over the record of crimes in recent years you would find that nearly every capital crime — robbery, stick-up, murder — was committed with the aid of autos. And the greatest captures have been done by the rifle squad in autos.

Everybody Rides.

When it comes to the number of persons that can be transported by motor vehicles California leads the world, and for every 3.8 persons in the Golden state there is an automobile. The coast state leads Iowa by one whole person, the rest of the states trailing off down to Alabama, which is last on the list, with an automobile for every 26.1 persons.

Still California is far from satisfied, and the thousands of orders being received from that state is one of the outstanding features of the industry.

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX TOURING CAR

A Real Achievement in Dollar-for-dollar Value

The thousands of Studebaker Light-Sixes in daily use are the best possible assurance of what may be expected next year—or several years hence—of the Light-Six you buy today.

For after all, the best way to judge a new motor car is by what it has done—how it has stood up in service—the satisfaction it has delivered.

We sincerely believe that the Light-Six Touring Car, with its improved all-steel body, is the sturdiest, handsomest, most comfortable, most dependable and economical low-priced car ever built.

Mechanically it is far superior to any car within its price range. The design of its improved L-head motor is an engineering achievement and its manufacture is a series of precision processes.

The machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods, to which is largely due its practical absence of vibration, is a practice used by Studebaker exclusively on cars at this price and is found only on a very few other cars whose selling prices are from three to ten times as high as the Light-Six.

The one-piece, rain-proof windshield with parking lights set in the base, is a joy to the driver—nothing to mar his view of the road ahead. Deep, fat cushions are upholstered in genuine leather. Curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with the doors and provide closed car coziness in bad weather.

The most seasoned driver will find a new thrill in the smooth, quiet, steady performance of the Light-Six—and in its quick response to the slightest touch of the accelerator, in its ease of handling, and in the way it performs in high gear at low speeds—eliminating constant gear shifting.

The name Studebaker has stood for high grade transportation, quality, value and integrity for 71 years.

Graham Credits Motor Success to Advertising

More Roads and Fewer Taxes Needed in Future.

THAT advertising has been a fundamental of progress in the automobile business was the message of George M. Graham, member of the highways committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, speaking before the general session of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Atlantic City. He said in part:

"We sincerely believe that upon the close relationship of the automobile with forceful advertising has been built the incredible advance from about 13,000 vehicles registered in the first year of the present century to about 13,000,000 registered now.

"Through the desire of ownership created by newspapers, magazines, and signboards, 2,659,000 motor vehicles were produced and sold in 1922; one and a half billions of dollars are invested in the automobile plants; purchases of material in 1922 exceeded one and a quarter billions of dollars; we pay in round numbers $400,000,000 to 250,000 employes directly connected with our plants, and our dealers, garages, filling stations provide employment for perhaps 200,000 more.

"The wholesale value of cars, trucks, parts, accessories and tires sold last year exceeded two and a half billions of dollars and a close estimate indicates that motor vehicles used four billion gallons of gasoline.

"A grand total of approximtely $60,000,000 is expended by our industry in advertising its wares to the public.

"Nobody disputes that the motor vehicle is now an essential factor in the movement either of persons or commodity.

"Within the industry there seem four outstanding problems brought about by the constantly increasing use of the automobile.

"First, we must finance and expand our highway systems to take care of a volume of traffic which is fast outstripping their capacity.

"Second, tax and license charges against motor transportation must be so restrained that, while adequate, they must not be restrictive or punitive.

"Third, motor transportation must be fitted into its proper relationship with other mediums of transportation, so that the economic needs of the public can best be served.

"Fourth, a way must be formed to curtail the number of accidents and fatalities chargeable to the automobile.

"There are those who seem to believe that not enough taxation can ever be piled on the automobile, despite the fact that last year in various ways it bore a burden of $35,000,000.

"We want to pay our share, but there is a point when overtaxation of any group becomes injustice."

Single Eight Appears.

Official announcement was made Wednesday by the Packard Motor Car company of a new car to be known as the "Single Eight," which will take the place of the "Twin Six,' which is discontinued. The new car, the advent of which has been preceded by probably more speculation than has been aroused by any event in the automobile industry for sveral years, is a "straight eight," equipped with four wheel brakes. Production is now well under way at the factory.

The cars will carry the following price tags: Five passenger touring, $3,650; runabout, $3,850; five passenger sedan, $4,650; five passenger sedan limousine, $4,700; four passenger coupe, $4,725; seven passenger touring car, $3,850; seven passenger sedan, $4,900, and the seven passenger sedan limousine, $4,950.

FARM AND GARDEN

New Era in Truck Farming Ushered In by Tractors

By Frank Ridgway.

THE putt-putt-putt of the pony-sized engines that pulled the motorized hoes in the onion and pickle patches on Fred Finnern's farm near Park Ridge, Ill., at the national garden tractor demonstration a few days ago marked the beginning of a new era in truck farming.

Draft horse-size tractors have been demonstrated all over this country during the last eight or ten years, but this is said to be the first national garden tractor demonstration ever held in America. Manufacturers with their machines and practical growers in the Chicago trucking section were brought together at this meeting which was arranged by Cook county's farm advisers, L. L. Heller and H. W. Day. These men, familiar with the labor shortage problems in the vegetable growing section around the city and the drudgery of weeding and cultivating truck crops, realize the necessity of supplementing man and horse power with motor-drawn garden tools.

Several different makes of tractors from different states were put to the comparative test before the critical, practical truck farmers of this and adjoining counties. Some of the machines that have been perfected to do the work in trucking sections where special crops are grown were not able to compete favorably with machines designed to meet the needs of local conditions. With most of them, however, the farmers agreed that with the addition of slightly different tools to stir the soil they would be able to use them successfully in this district. It was an education for both farmers and manufacturers who attended the meeting.

Means Much to Gardeners.

The accomplishment of engineers in building a machine that will minimize hand weeding and do away with the laborious task of pushing a wheel hoe by hand will mean much to the women and men engaged in truck gardening.

Some farmers have considered the garden tractor still in the experimental stage, but believed in the possibilities of successfully developing it. Motorizing trucking implements would be a great labor saver for the vegetable gardener, the florist and the nurseryman. Because of their intensive work in growing vegetables, flowers and nursery stock no agricultural group is more exacting than the gardener in his demands upon the engineer in the designing of machinery to compete with hand tools used in cultivating truck crops. Among the growers' outstanding requirements is that a garden tractor must be reasonable in price and eliminate enough hand work to justify its use; it must be built high enough to straddle the rows without injuring the plants; easily steered so that it may be used in plowing crooked and straight rows, small and large plants; equipped with scrapers, shovels, and drills, and be so easily operated that skilled mechanical labor will not be required to run it.

The garden tractor idea is not entirely new, for several attempts have been made to build one to meet the needs of the trucker. But until recently few, if any, have been wholly successful; they have failed to stand the test in the field. Evidently manufacturers have been doing a great deal of hard work since the first garden tractors were brought out. They have studied the demands of the truck gardener and some of them have been successful.

Garden Tractor Exhibited.

At the Cook county demonstration a garden tractor developed in the trucking sections of Wisconsin was exhited which seemed to meet the needs of gardeners. It is equipped with a planter and cultivator attachments and can be used to push a lawn mower. The planter is equipped with an attachment to treat the onion seed with formaldehyde to control smut at the time of seeding. The machine is made with two power wheels that straddle the row and is equipped with cultivator attachments so that either one or three rows may be plowed each time the tractor crosses the field. "Duck feet" shovels are used for mulching the soil and hoes and scrapers for weeding, and they are easily changed. The cultivator tools are controlled with the left hand by means of a handle. The depth of the shovels or scrapers is regulated by means of gauge wheels that trail along behind on each side. A 15 year old boy operated the machine with ease at the demonstration. It has an arch built high enough to give a clearance of from 14 to 20 inches, eliminating the danger of breaking down plants in cultivating.

George F. Grewe of Des Plaines, Ill., has been using one of these machines for two years, and operated it at the demonstration.

"With the three row cultivator attachment I plowed two acres of onion sets in three and a half hours just before loading the machine in the truck to bring it over here," said Mr. Grewe. "The average grower figures that if a man cultivates an acre a day with the wheel hoe he is doing a good day's work. With my garden tractor I am not only able to do the work of three men but I do a much better job than I can do with hand tools. I turn on the motor, start the tractor across the field, and all I have to do is walk along with ease and steer the cultivator with my left hand. I can do a big day's work with the machine, and when I quit at night I'm not half as tired as I used to be when I pushed a wheel hoe all day long and wore blisters on my hands."

Expense of Operation Moderate.

When asked what it cost him to operate the machine Mr. Grewe said that a gallon of gasoline would run the motor about ten hours and a half pint of lubricating oil would last fifty running hours.

"I know of a man who didn't even know what a spark plug was when he got his tractor, and he has no trouble running it," added Mr. Grewe. "I can easily turn this machine at the ends. It has a differential that makes it possible for me to plow down one row and turn around with ease on to the next row, either right or left. I haven't had a hand hoe in the field since I started using my tractor."

Truckers criticised some of the machines at the demonstration because the depth the cultivator shovels go into the soil was difficult to control, making it hard to steer and stir the ground to a uniform depth. Manufacturers no doubt profited by entering the tractor demonstration. While the farmers did not approve of every machine, they were frank in their criticisms and made it clear to the manufacturers' representatives what they needed to make the machines a success. The engineers went back to their shops with a clearer understanding of what they had to build before they could sell garden tractors in the Chicago trucking section. In most cases only minor changes will have to be made. Some of the machines seemed to meet the wholehearted approval of the vegetable growers.

The demonstration was so successful Advisers Heller and Day announced that another one would be held in Cook county again this fall.

MOTORIZED HOES IN ACID TEST.—Some of the machines exhibited in the national garden tractor demonstration held in an onion patch on Fred Finnern's farm, Park Ridge, Ill., are shown here lined up after a trip across the field to show the quality of work they do in cultivating vegetables. Cook county growers are finding that the motorized hoe will minimize the work that has been done by the hand and wheel hoes, eliminating the drudgery in truck farming.

GARDEN NOTES

Avoid planting valuable garden crops near trees, especially large shade trees. Garden crops will not do well if planted near trees because the roots steal most of the plant food and moisture. Oaks and maples are the most injurious to vegetables planted near them.

Chicken lettuce, which grows from four to five feet tall, makes an abundance of feed for rabbits and chickens. Try a short row this year for chickens or pets that eat vegetables.

Poultry Courses Given.

With plans laid to reach thousands of poultry raisers and farm flock owners in Iowa, seventeen poultry short courses in towns located to cover the entire state are taking the place this summer of the annual poultry school at the state college. The schools open next Tuesday, beginning at Ames and closing at Mason City, Aug. 15. Among the other towns where schools will be held during the summer are Fort Dodge, Grinnell, Sheldon, Preston, Emmetsburg, Red Oak, Denison, Centerville, Greenfield, Postville, Davenport, Mount Pleasant, and Anamosa.

Postpone Flower Show.

Lake Forest's combination spring and midsummer flower show has been postponed. According to the announcement of the North Shore Horticultural society and the Lake Shore Garden club, the show was to be held June 16 and 17, but dates have been shifted a week ahead to June 23 and 24.

Expect New Records at Awgwam Goat Sale

Charles A. Stevens at his country estate, Awgwam, near Delavan Lake, Wis., will reproduce the goat auction scene that startled the live stock world a year ago—a scene where dozen millionaires threw their check books and greenbacks at the auctioneer and shot the prices of Toggenburg does to sky limits. Bulletins were flashed around the world within a few minutes after Polly Alpha was knocked down to Arthur L. Farwell, Chicago, for $1,600, the top of the 1922 sale.

Last year's sale of seventy-three milk goats was said to be the largest auction of its kind ever held—at least, in America. There will be almost double this number of goats in the Awgwam goat auction, which is to be held June 30. A "goat sale special" will probably be run from Chicago to Delavan Lake.

Many midwestern millionaires who have started within the last few years to build up milk goat herds of the "fine as silk" variety are expected to be at the sale next week. Mr. Stevens has selected 146 goats from his private Toggenburg herd to be put in the open sale. "At 10 o'clock on the morning of the sale I will hang placards on each goat, giving the price that I am willing to take for the animal at private sale. The private sale will last until 1 p. m., and at 2 p. m. all of the animals not sold privately, if any, will be put on the auction stand and sold to the highest bidder," said Mr. Stevens, who is president of the American Milk Goat Record association."

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, is expected to be at the sale, according to rumors, and, through his influence as founder and head of Mooseheart, prominent citizens will probably buy some of the goats for the Mooseheart farm, Mooseheart, Ill.

Packer Hearing June 18.

Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, announces that the hearing on the acquisition of the Morris meat packing business by Armour & Co. will be resumed here on June 18.

Wisconsin Fair Dates.

Under the direction of the department of agriculture the seventy-third annual Wisconsin state fair will be held in Milwaukee from Aug. 27 to Sept. 1. Railroads have reduced fares from every point in the state. The premium list of the badger state farmers' six day and night exhibition has just been issued.

"Bee Keeping for All" Easy for Amateurs

AFTER buzzing around with honey bees for forty years, taking notes as he went along, Tickner Edwardes has written a book which he calls "Bee-keeping for All." E. P. Dutton & Company is the publisher.

In a chatty preface the author, who also wrote "The Lore of the Honey Bee," does not try to lead the beginner to believe that a fortune can be made in bee-keeping. His frankness throughout inspires confidence in his accuracy. He has written "to help the man with a small piece of land, and whose capital consists, in the main, of the capacity to put in about 300 hard working days in the year." He says that his book is an attempt to show that the poorest, stoniest corner can be rendered as productive as any by putting hives upon it—hives which, except for the few weeks of honey flow, can be largely left to take care of themselves.

In the 134 pages of his book, filled with practical hints, the author takes the beginner through all stages of apiculture, through all seasons of the year from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. His explanations are so simple that they should be clear even to the man who only knows one positive thing about the honey bee—that it has a stinger. Filled with illustrations, "Bee-keeping For All" is designed to help the amateur as well as the professional.

Before You Buy a Truck or a Delivery Wagon—See Them All!

Give every make a fair chance. Look them all over. Examine every feature, judge of their merits from your own investigation.

The W. C. Auble Motor Company wants you to compare every truck and delivery wagon on the market with the Roadking and the Star.

The more you compare, the more you are going to realize that in these two trucks you have the last word in sturdiness of construction, ease of operation and economy of upkeep.

Both are built by Durant—which means that every unit from radiator to tail lamp is a standard unit. You are not buying an experiment when you choose a Roadking or a Star—you are getting a truck or a delivery wagon built by specialists and backed by the name of a maker whose products are known to give the biggest value for the money.

Economical—dependable—accessible—best bearings—selective transmission—complete starting and lighting system—built to keep up the Durant reputation—these trucks and delivery wagons are offered at prices which mean that you will lose money if you don't buy one. If the Durant works were not producing hundreds of thousands of automobiles, the price would be a good deal more. As it is, you get the benefit of a price based on a tremendous output.

There's a style and size that best meets your needs and Auble will show it to you. See all the trucks you have heard about—then come and look over these two great Durant productions. There will be no question in your mind as to what you will buy.

GOLCONDA MYTH LURES CREWS TO QUIT DUTCH SHIPS

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Wholesale desertions from Dutch steamships in this port have caused a strong protest to be lodged with the immigration authorities by the consular officials of the Netherlands.

The protest has resulted in action by the local officials through which it is hoped to apprehend those enticing crews from their berths.

Conditions unlike those of other countries, where the prohibition and ration question has played havoc with crews, the Netherlands protest is directed at glib tongued representatives who lure the seamen from their ships with stories of fabulous wealth to be made in industries.

Stories of Midwest Golconda.

It is alleged that while the Dutch ships lie at their docks in Hoboken a representatives of midwestern industrial interests, explaining the wonderful salaries paid in Detroit, promises them work there if any care to go after it. The result, for the last five or six weeks, has been an average loss of about forty members of the crews.

Particularly hard hit has been the Holland-American line, but other Dutch liners have had losses from their crews in smaller degree. These lines have had to hustle to make up crews when leaving port.

Other Lines Affected.

They include the Java-New York line, Royal West Indian Mail, and a number of tramp liners.

While no one will talk about the matter at the consular office, it was learned today that the immigration officials, recognizing the practice as a violation of the local immigration laws, have arranged decoys to catch the culprits at the Hoboken docks. The desertion involves a penal offense, so far as the Dutch authorities are concerned.

$5,975,000 PUPILS MORE IN SCHOOLS NOW THAN IN 1902

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Over 5,975,000 more pupils are attending schools in the United States at the present time than were enrolled twenty years ago, according to information obtained from the bureau of education of the department of the interior today.

In 1902 the number of pupils in schools in the country was 16,123,050, as compared with 22,100,070 in 1922. The value of property used for public school purposes has quadrupled in this period of time, the amount in 1902 being $601,571,307, in 1922 being $2,409,719,-129.

Enrollment at agricultural, mechanical and technical colleges has also shown big increases in the last twenty years. The attendance at agricultural colleges, including veterinary, science and dairying, was 6,278 in 1902, while in 1922 there were 15,434 students enrolled. Pupils attending engineering colleges totaled 10,145 in 1902 and 27,-40 in 1922.

Architectural institutions had 178 enrolled in 1902 and 513 in 1922, while household economy colleges showed an attendance of 1,216 in 1902, with 6,812 in 1922.

MELLON TO MAKE FINANCE SURVEY WHILE ABROAD

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will go to Europe the latter part of next week and will be away six weeks or two months.

While the trip will be for recreation, Mr. Mellon has told his friends he expects to make a study of European economic conditions, so that the treasury will be in a better position to frame its policies.

It is said that he will hold conferences with European statesmen and financiers, in order to obtain a better understanding of what the foreign debtor powers can do in the way of payments. Undersecretary Gilbert will have charge as acting secretary during Mr. Mellon's absence.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The extent of the dullness in yesterday's stock market was evidenced in the volume of business transacted, in some of the so-called leaders of recent stock market operations. Some of the active stocks did not even appear on the tape and those which did appear were dealt in only to the extent of a few hundred shares. In American Car and Foundry there was only one transaction of 100 shares. The same amount of American Smelting was dealt in. Four hundred shares of Reading changed hands, 200 of Frisco, 1,100 Baltimore and Ohio, 500 Corn Products, 800 American Locomotive, 200 Famous Players and 1,900 Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The suspension of one of the oldest banking firms in the Wall street district and one which has held membership in the New York stock exchange since 1895, was taken more or less as a matter of course, as many reports had been circulated during recent months that the firm was on its last legs and that dissolution or reorganization was contemplated.

The request of the New York Central for the right to issue $100,000,000 new common stock means a remodeling of the financial structure of the road that has long been predicted and expected. At present, the total common stock of the road is $249,-597,300 and the outstanding bonds approximately three times that amount, or $795,-000,000. If the railroad is successful in getting the holders of the $100,000,000 inconvertible debenture 6s, due 1935, to exchange those bonds for the common stock, the totals will be revised to a total of $695,000,000 bonds and $349,397,300 in common stock, so that the ratio will be close to 2 to 1, in place of 3 to 1.

Lifting of the last of the general freight embargoes by the railroads is the subject of much discussion in the railroad circles, coming as it does in a week, in which it is estimated that the car loadings will run close to, if not over, the million mark. Many of these embargoes have been on for as much as six months, and lifting the last of them at this time reveals not only that the roads have recovered from the effects of the shopmen's strike, but they are able to handle all traffic despite its volume.

The last pound of the 400,000,000 pounds of copper securing the issue of $40,000,000 copper export association 8s has been sold. Practically all the copper and brass war scrap in this country and abroad has now been melted up. Large sales have been made for domestic deliveries at 15¼ cents to 15½ cents laid down at railroad sidings. Some business has also been taken at 15⅝ cents.

The General Electric company during April and May booked new business totaling approximately $63,000,000 or a monthly average of about $31,500,000. Bookings of the Worthington Pump and Machinery corporation for the five months ended May 31 were $11,000,000, an increase of 100 per cent over 1922. Unfilled orders are about $10,000,000, almost double those on hand Jan. 1, 1923.

Effective July 2, the Swan & Finch company will take over control of the N. B. Falls Lubricating company of Buffalo, N. Y., said to be the largest independent compounder of lubricating oils in the country. The Southern States Oil corporation and the Western States Oil corporation have taken over the Vitek Oil and Refining company, one of the largest producing oil companies in Arkansas. An equitable exchange of securities has been arranged.

J. H. Kirby of Houston, Tex., who purchased the iron works of George W. Armstrong, Inc., at Fort Worth, Tex., a few months ago, has organized the Texas Steel company with $2,500,000 capital. Using the present iron works as a nucleus, the new company will construct a steel mill with capacity of 5,000 tons of rolled steel a month. The Hydrox corporation plans to erect a plant in New York in the near future, at a cost of $1,000,000.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending June 13 by 268 banks in 25 leading clearing house cities aggregate $1,086,208,000, a decrease of 0.2 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by 239 banks in 31 clearing houses amounted to $1,087,935,000, an increase of 9.0 per cent compared with the corresponding week of last year.

Negotiations are in progress for the financing of the Manitoba Pulp and Paper company, which plans to build a mill on the Winnipeg river at Fort Alexander. It is proposed to capitalize the company at $2,500,000 preferred stock, 50,000 shares of common stock of no par value and authorized bond issue of $6,000,000.

The Transue-Williams Steel Forging corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable July 16, to stock of record June 30. Previously payments have been at the rate of 50 cents a share quarterly.

The Lee Rubber and Tire corporation has made reductions ranging from 7 per cent to 10 per cent in the prices of its tires and tubes.

Two houses at Linden and 6th Streets, Wilmette, Ill.
Built and Designed by Carl Hecker, Wilmette, Ill.

Both walls and roof of these two houses are FLAXLINUM insulated. Mr. Hecker realises the importance of building houses that are 100% weatherproof and entirely comfortable.

The House that is Easy to Heat is Easy to Rent or Sell

What Flaxlinum Is

FLAXLINUM is a felted material made of durable, chemically-purified flax fibre. When built into the walls and roof of a house it seals the interior against outside temperature changes.

For walls it is made ½-inch thick with flanged edges to permit it to fit snugly between the studding. For roofs, sheets 1 inch in thickness are recommended. In applying FLAXLINUM no special construction is necessary. It will last as long as any house built. It will not crack, break or "sift down."

One-half inch of FLAXLINUM is equivalent in heat and cold resistance to 2½ inches of wood, eight inches of brick and mortar, or 13 inches of concrete.

THERE is nothing that puts a house on the black list quicker than a reputation for being hard to heat. Buyers and even renters simply will not tolerate a cold, draughty house. Nor is the house very popular that has hot sleeping rooms in the summer.

There is no excuse for building a house that must sooner or later flaunt a "For Rent" or "For Sale" sign merely because it cannot be kept comfortable. If you want assurance that your new home will be one of comfort and small fuel bills, build into the outside walls and roof a thickness of FLAXLINUM. House buyers and renters should inquire if a house is insulated with FLAXLINUM before they buy or rent. You have a right to expect that much.

FLAXLINUM seals up the interior, keeps the heat in and the cold out. In a few years it pays for itself with fuel savings. Thousands of home-owners say it cuts their coal bills from 30% to 40%.

Twelve years ago FLAXLINUM was used for the first time in a house in Saint Paul. The enthusiastic owner told his friends. They used it. The good news spread. Today 50% of the houses built in Saint Paul are lined with FLAXLINUM. Right here in this section of the country the use of FLAXLINUM is growing just as fast. Call or send for free FLAXLINUM booklet and sample.

HATS OFF TO 'CHI'! BEATING GOTHAM IN EXPORT TRADE

BY SCRUTATOR.

Within a night's ride of Chicago to the south lies a great dark tobacco region, 75 per cent of the products of which are exported. Within the same radius of maximum business efficiency is a hardwood lumber industry heavily committed to foreign trade, a cotton market tied up for generations with Manchester, and now reaching to the farthest east, a rice region competent to fill the maw of many rice eating peoples.

The city's eventual financial primacy even in foreign trade is written to the south, just as plainly as it is pictured in the grain fields and herds of the west. And nothing is plainer in the lower reaches of the great commercial trough that stretches to the south from the foot of the lake to the Mississippi passes than the waning of New York and the rise of Chicago.

For a long time financial ties and historical trends overcame the necessities of trade geography, and New York bulked large in all this region. Twenty years ago probably New York led. All indications are today that Chicago if not already in New York's place is on the point of taking it. With this comes of course increased activity for the city's industries, and increased obligations upon her financial system.

Even St. Louis and Cincinnati do not seem to occupy the place in business that they did a few years ago, not that they have failed to increase their business, but have not kept up with Chicago's pace.

Chicago newspapers rather than the New York press are watched by editors in the lower valley. Chicago stories get a play unknown a few years ago, when it took a national convention or a Luetgert case to put over the city's stuff against the metropolitan glamour that New York enjoyed in Florodora or Prince of Pilsen days. When the movies got their swing and began to be produced on the coast, New York lost heavily in popular psychology.

This has a business meaning. In superwholesaling few things are more important than place names and the origin of goods.

The increased use of machinery tends to develop closer ties with Chicago. When corporations or individuals buy expensive machines they must bear in mind repairs, and the replacement of parts. A machine broken can have a part replaced within a few hours after a wire is sent to the Chicago plant. New York is farther away. So much for express. In freight the difference is far greater. Except for the Carbondale region in Illinois fast freight can almost be rolled down the valley, and there is promise of another line around that bunch of grades. Freight going into the lower Mississippi valley over east-west lines passes over mountains, through congested terminals, and from road to road.

Distances and natural slope are beginning to tell, and New York is becoming a far away city to this country, while more and more the lines of power center in Chicago.

As it is in this region that the agricultural exports of the future will tend more and more to be produced, Chicago's ter" within the radius of her night's ride and in the valley farther down, will throw more and more of foreign trade financing upon the city by the lake.

Of course the St. Lawrence seaway will intensify this.

Things to Consider Before You Invest.

For the guidance of the amateur investor we wish to state briefly some of the factors which we deem essential prerequisites to careful investment. Too many of the inexperienced—and some of the more sophisticated also—invest in haste and repent at leisure. Before making an investment it is of great importance to consider well the following: [1] The place where you intend to purchase securities; [2] the purpose for which the investment is intended; [3] the nature of the security which is best suited to fulfill that purpose, and [4] the standing, character and strength of the particular corporation, government, etc., which is issuing that security.

In the first place deal only with a reputable investment house. Houses which have established a reputation for integrity will deal honestly. They cannot do otherwise and maintain that reputation. Not only that, but, in order to be successful, they must use care in investigating the merits of every security they handle—and they have facilities for doing this, with experienced men. The duty of such a house to the investor does not cease with the sale of a security—its continued success depends on making him a satisfied client. And last, but not least, such an institution is permanent. It is always there when you want it and does not disappear over night as do the fly-by-night concerns.

Having decided on a reliable house, the next thing for the investor to decide is the purpose for which he wishes the investment. Does he want an investment that will bring a steady return over a long period of time, or does he want to invest his funds for a certain limited time and to have his principal free for other purposes at a definite date? For the former purpose a long term bond will be good; for the latter a short term issue of the desired maturity should be purchased. Those who buy bonds low, with the intention of selling at a profit on a rise of the market, are buying for speculation, not investment. The sounder the security the less likely it is to fluctuate widely on the market. Stocks as a rule offer more promising speculations than bonds. We are now discussing investments.

The nature of the security desired should next be considered. The investor should select a security which is the obligation of a concern engaged in an essential industry—one whose product or commodity is constantly necessary to the community or the public. He should ask himself whether the commodity is in constant demand and likely to continue so indefinitely.

The kind of a security having been decided upon, the particular corporation engaged in that industry or business must be considered. Is such and such a company successful in its particular branch of industry? Are its strength, reputation and facilities such that it is practically assured of its permanent share of business? These questions should be answered affirmatively or the company under consideration is not the one you want.

When all these things have been decided there remains to be considered the strength of the security itself. Assuming the security to be a corporation bond—public utility, railroad, or industrial—one should first examine how the obligation is secured. The value of the property in back of it—in the case of a mortgage bond; this should be substantially in excess of the bond issue. The adaptability of this property to other uses is also a factor in considering its real value in the event that a foreclosure sale should become necessary to reimburse the bondholders. In the case of unsecured as well as secured obligations the tangible assets and net current assets are important. The reduction of the debt through a sinking fund also is important as strengthening the safety of the issue by increasing the margin of security over the debt as the issue approaches maturity. The priority of the obligation also should be considered—whether or not there are any prior obligations, and, if so, how much their claim amounts to before care can be taken of the issue in question.

Whatever the form of the obligation may be, whether secured or unsecured, of great importance is the corporation's earning ability. The history of earnings over a period of years should be considered to ascertain whether the company has always earned its fixed charges, whether its earnings have steadily increased, and if they have averaged sufficient to cover the present funded debt by a reasonable margin. The latest year's earnings should be considered especially in connection with those of preceding years and in their relation to the present funded debt, as indicative of the margin of safety reasonably to be expected for interest, sinking fund, and maturity payments on the company's obligations. Earnings pay interest and, in the last analysis, retire all indebtedness.

Careful consideration of the above factors and strict adherence to the principles of procedure indicated—before you invest—will largely eliminate the element of risk from your investments.

RAILROAD NOTES

Loadings of revenue freight continue to establish records for the time of year with many roads, according to the officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis. The general merchandise movement is heavy, and in but few cases is any abatement shown. Railroads are handling the enormous volume of freight tonnage in excellent shape, there being surprisingly little congestion. No radical change in operating conditions has taken place, according to officials of southern lines. The movement of general merchandise is liberal, showing but little change in the buying demand of the south.

"Judging from the first four months' earnings, it is evident that the Union Pacific will have the best year in its history so far as gross is concerned," says President Carl R. Gray. "The first four months car miles per day averaged 61, as compared with 41.9 last year. The car situation, both as to refrigerators and ordinary cars, is normal in the west, and the crop movement will be well taken care of. May earnings will be very close to those of March and April, so far as gross is concerned, but net will be decreased because of maintenance."

The Western Maryland railway applied for authority to issue $1,500,000 6 per cent equipment trust certificates, to be sold to J. S. Wilson & Co. of Baltimore at 95.875 per cent, the proceeds to be used for purchasing rebuilt equipment.

The Chicago and Northwestern railway is receiving large consignments of new equipment ordered during the last year. A total of fifty locomotives, 5,700 freight cars, and forty passenger cars, all of the latest design, will be added during the year.

The interstate commerce commission has sustained terminal charges of $3 a car, in addition to the Chicago rate on live stock, when shipped subsequent to Aug. 26, 1920, for movement between land haul carriers and the Union stockyards, Chicago, on shipments from points in western mountain, Pacific, and southern territory. It dismissed complaints filed by the American Farm Bureau federations and other organizations.

Pending further investigation, the commission suspended from June 18 until Oct. 16 the operation of certain proposed increases of ½ cent per 100 pounds in the freight rates on fresh meats from the upper Mississippi valley crossing and related points to eastern destinations.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1923: By Fairchild News Service.]

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The men's clothing manufacturers here deny the woolen and worsted market will be able to boost prices for spring goods. If there are any changes they will be to lower levels, the local producers declare.

ZURICH, Switerland.—Depression in the Swiss embroidery industry still is severe. Hundreds are out of employment and many are emigrating. Some important firms are reported in financial difficulties.

NEW YORK.—While Egyptian prints lie heavily on the broad silk market, French manufacturers are experimenting with new Egyptian prints for the Paris fashion houses, according to private market reports. The result of this initiative is causing some American holders to keep their prints for a better time to sell.

BERLIN.—British manufacturers are bartering motorcycles, carpets and woolens, for which there is a big demand here, for German made knitted jumper silks. Airplanes are used for the traffic, and enterprising Cologne merchants are contemplating further development of this traffic.

NEW YORK.—Jewelry manufacturers, who had been worried by the introduction for fall of so-called "Broadway cuffs" [single button] on men's shirts, now are breathing freely again. The innovation has failed to catch on to any great extent.

NEW OFFICERS FOR PIERCE OIL.

NEW YORK, June 16.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Pierce Oil company will be held next Tuesday, it was announced today, to fill vacancies caused by the removal of Henry Clay Pierce, Henry L. Doherty, Alton B. Parker, and A. B. Leach. These four men were removed by a decision of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, which held their election illegal.

1st Mortgage Real Estate Gold Bonds Secured by Property on the Near North Side, South Shore District, in the Loop

OUR list is in admirable shape at the present time to provide an unusually satisfactory selection of well-seasoned bonds secured by property in widely separated territories in Chicago. A good loop issue is always an excellent buy—a bond from the South Shore district needs no introduction to the experienced investor—Near North Side issues reflect the security of one of the most rapidly developing sections in the city. We heartily recommend these issues for safety, for sound investment, for satisfying yield.

THE PARK VIEW BUILDING

This property is secured by a closed first mortgage on the ground and building. Faces Lincoln Park—contains 22 apartments, the income from which exceeds by nine times per annum the total interest charges on this issue. Callable at 102 on interest dates. Price upon application.

The Constance Court Apartments

A 32-apartment building in the active South Shore district, close to Jackson Park, with an income return more than four times per annum in excess of interest requirements. Bonds retired serially each year increase the margin of safety on the later maturities. Price, par and accrued interest, to net the investor 7%.

THE REGAL BUILDING

An issue protected by income seven times in excess of interest requirements—maturities from 1924 to 1929. The loan is only one-third of the appraised value of the property, inclusive of the 99-year lease. Price, par and accrued interest, to yield 7%.

With 3,000 fewer arrivals than were expected yesterday, hog market opened strong to 15c higher, on choice grades, while others ruled weak to 10c lower. Top advanced 10c, at $7.35, standing highest in nearly two weeks and 50c above previous Saturday, while general average price at $6.85, equaled Friday and gained 20c, as compared with a week ago. Lack of quality held average cost down, causing a widening of the range of prices. Yesterday's top and average prices were 45c apart, being the widest "spread" since April 24, comparing with only 15c a week ago. Pigs were steady to unevenly higher.

Hog receipts last week at 183,000, and 32,800 smaller than previous week, but show on increase of 12,100 over a year ago and stand 28,000 above the ten year average. The general average price of hogs at $6.65, dropped 30c below previous week, being $3.70 under a year ago and $5.35 under the ten year average. Estimated average weight at 239 lbs., stands 2 lbs., lighter than a week ago, equals a year ago and stands 4 lbs. above the ten year average.

Closing cattle prices were highest of the week and 10@40c above the low finish of the previous week. Top steers at the close reached $11.25 equaling the high point opening day of the previous week. Good beef cattle for the week averaged $10.60, being 5c below previous week, $1.10 higher than a year ago and $2.05 higher than two years ago. General competition was brisk, especially late in the week.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Last week's sheep receipts at 43,300 were smallest since the holiday period in July, 1921, and among the smallest on record during normal market conditions. About 20,000 of the week's arrivals were forwarded direct to local packers from markets in the south, principally from Louisville and Nashville. Under active competition, lamb values advanced fully 50@75c for the week, with instances of $1.00 gain, considering quality and "sorts." The only range lambs offered this week, sold Tuesday at $16.25, being the first Idaho stock at Chicago this season. Top natives at the close reached $16.35, which was high time of the week. Aged and yearling sheep advanced 15@25c.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 18,000 cattle, 52,000 hogs, and 14,000 sheep, against 15,402 cattle, 60,213 hogs, and 8,611 sheep, a week ago, and 23,430 cattle, 54,623 hogs, and 15,077 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 175,000 hogs, and 50,000 sheep, against 58,549 cattle, 174,112 hogs, and 64,013 sheep a year ago.

Probable hog run for Monday ranges from 47,000 to 70,000. F. W. Waddell marked 47,000, W. H. Overman, 48,000; G. M. Nichol, 50,000; George Chandler, H. H. Moore, and W. S. Nicholson, 55,000; John T. Brown and A. G. Welhner, 58,000; J. M. Waters, 61,000; R. W. Oake, 62,000; M. Minteer, 68,000, and William Trotter, 70,000.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in local unlisted securities was on a somewhat smaller scale, although prices with but few exceptions ruled steady throughout.

Kellogg Switchboard and Supply changed hands mostly in small lots between 46¼ and 48. Butler Brothers closed at 35½ bid, 36 asked. Some improvement was noted in Hurley Machine common at 46½ bid, 47¼ asked. Northwestern Yeast was quoted 195 bid, 198 asked, ex-dividend $3. Burroughs Adding Machine gained 2 points at 128 bid, 130 asked. Elgin National Watch at 46@47 reflected a loss of 1½ points. Some transactions of Interstate Iron and Steel preferred were recorded at 67 and 68. National Grocer issues were fractionally lower 7@7½ on the common, and 86@88 on the preferred. Bucyrus common, which had been active the last few weeks, was neglected, a few trades being reported at 39½ and 40½. The preferred sold at 105 and 106. Fairbanks Morse was traded in at 54 and 55. By-Products Coke was quoted 57 bid, 59 asked, with no eported sales. Beatrice Creamery was wanted at 64 with few odd lots offering at 66.

Fractional losses were noted in the Chicago Railway Equipment shares, the common being quoted 30@31, off 1 point; preferred, 24¼@25½, off ½ point. Avery common was again offered at 6 without definite bids and the preferred was quoted at 28 bid, 31 asked, with no actual sales. Moline Plow second preferred changed hands at 4½. Some few sales of National Tea preferred were reported at 98 and 99.

Ford of Canada was in good demand, improving some 12 points to 437 bid, 440 asked. Page was also a point higher at 19¾ bid, 20 asked. Timken Axle relinquished a major fraction at 9¾ bid, 10 asked. Firestone Tire and Rubber was weak, declining 2 points at 75 bid, 76 asked. Sales of Edmund Jones again ranged between 34½ and 35½.

Some demand developed for the sugar shares, and as a result fractional gains were general throughout the list. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 5¼@5¾; Godchaux preferred, 86@88; Holland-St. L., 5@5¼; Michigan, 5@5¼; Utah Idaho, 3@3¾.

The public utility group was spotty, gains in many issues being offset by declines in others. American Light and Traction common broke 4 points to 117 bid, 119 asked, but the preferred was ½ point higher at 90 bid, 91 asked. American Public Utilities common was quoted 36 bid, 38 asked, with little stock changing hands. Cities Service issues continued lower at 146 bid, 148 asked on the common, and 67 bid, 67½ asked on the preferred. Commonwealth Power Corporation was fractionally improved at 67¾ bid, 69 asked. Consumers Power 6 per cent preferred was 2 points higher at 86 bid, ex-dividend, while the 7 per cent preferred was up 2 points at 99 bid. Grand Rapids Railway preferred was neglected and 2 points lower at 35½ bid, 37½ asked. Illinois Traction common at 49½ bid, 50½ asked reflected a 2 point loss. Trading in Northern States Power Railway and Light shares was on a small scale, between 94 and 96 on the common and 91 to 93 on the preferred.

Argentine Grain Man Inspects Corn in U. S.

José Firpo, former president of Bolsa of Commerce of Rosario, one of the largest shipping ports in Argentina, is in Chicago on a trip around the world, accompanied by his son. The latter is his interpreter. They visited the Board of Trade and conferred with President John J. Stream and Executive Secretary John R. Mauff. Mr. Firpo is a retired grain merchant. He examined samples of corn and said United States corn is called horse tooth corn in Argentina. President Stream, however, said that it was only the long, slender corn that has that name. The Argentine corn is a small kerneled flinty corn and differs materially from that in the United States.

Argentina has great possibilities, says Mr. Firpo. Some of the best agricultural lands are selling at $10 an acre. Wheat generally averages above 60 lbs to the bushel. Large immigration is looked for from Italy and Germany owing to restrictions in the United States.

BEARISH VIEWS FORCE DECLINE IN GRAIN MART

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A bearish summary of the agricultural outlook, based on the European situation with increased pressure of new crop winter wheat from Illinois and Indiana more than offset the effect of unfavorable crop comments from the southwest and northwest and wheat broke sharply after being firmer early, closing with net losses of ⅞@1⅛c, the latter on July. Houses with eastern connections sold corn heavily on an early bulge and the finish was ¼@⅞c lower with July leading. Oats finished ¼c lower to ⅛c higher and rye ⅝c lower.

Weather conditions were the dominating influence in the wheat market the greater part of the week, but the deterioration in the southwest and dry weather talk from the northwest failed to increase speculative trading to any great extent and at the last prices were ⅝@1¼c lower as compared with the previous week. Corn was ⅛c lower to ⅝c higher, the latter on December with oats ⅜@⅝c lower and rye off 1⅞@2¼c. Provisions showed more resistance to pressure and lard gained 5@7½c with ribs up 47½c.

July Wheat Weakens.

July wheat showed the most weakness with cash and commission houses active sellers of the nearby delivery against purchases of September and the difference narrowed to around 1c against 2c the previous day. Some of the local bulls bought wheat here and sold in Winnipeg, but the undertone was heavy the greater part of the day with the finish about the bottom. Country offerings of new wheat to arrive from Illinois increased considerably, and the Fuller Grain company of Kansas City had advices of a car of new wheat having been shipped from Grand Field, Oklahoma.

No export business of consequence was reported at the seaboard and aggregate sales were small. Dry weather continues in parts of North Dakota and eastern Montana with some damage complaints received, but weather and other reports lost their influence toward the last.

Corn Breaks 2 Cents.

It took but little buying to lift July corn to 83c early, offerings being light and there was good commission house buying of September and December. The market, however, practically collapsed later after shorts had covered and pressure increased, and a break of around 2c from the outside figure on the July followed. It went to a smaller premium over the September. The country sold little grain to arrive early and receipts are expected to decrease shortly.

Oats showed moderate resistance to pressure and, despite the break in corn, failed to get into new ground for the season on the September and December. July acted a little tight at times and went to a slightly wider premium over the September. Routine news counted for little.

Light Trade in Rye.

Trade in rye was light, but on the breaks there was a fair class of buying and the market made only a moderate response to the break in wheat. The two northwestern markets received 50 cars. Export demand limited.

Provisions were firmer early, but eased off later in sympathy with corn and on scattered selling. Lard closed 5c lower and ribs 7½@10c higher. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the summer season to date aggregates 2,552,000, against 1,930,000 last year. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 200,000 bu wheat were reported at the seaboard, including 80,000 bu of nearby hard winter at the gulf at 12c over July, a drop of ½c in premium. Late June and early July loading was offered at 13c over.

Chicago handlers sold 5,000 bu wheat, 85,000 bu corn, and 105,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Purchases of new crop winters to arrive were estimated at 90,000 bu, largely from Illinois and Indiana. Shipment by July 20 brought ½@¾c over July, and by Aug. 15 brought ⅝c over September.

Basis on cash wheat at Chicago showed little change, with No. 2 hard 1½@2c over July. Receipts, 19 cars. Outside markets were unsettled, with St. Louis 1@2c lower and Kansas City unchanged to 1c higher, the latter on high protein wheat.

Basis on cash corn at Chicago was unchanged to ¼c higher, with No. 2 mixed 2@2½c over; yellow, 2¾@3c over, and white, 2½@2¾c over July. Receipts, 80 cars. Outside markets ½c higher to 1c lower.

Demand for cash oats was a little slow and the basis easier, with No. 2 white 2@2½c over July and No. 3 white ⅜@1½c over. Receipts, 75 cars.

HAY TRADE GOOD

Stocks of old hay back in the country are said to be moderate, and some call them light. Arrivals of timothy were 39 cars, which met a good demand at full prices. Choice timothy, $24.00@25.00; No. 1, $23.00@24.00; No. 2, $18.00@21.00; No. 3, $15.00@18.00. Clover mixed, $17.00@23.00 for light, and $13.00@20.00 for heavy. Grass and timothy mixed, $14.00@22.00. Southwestern and Nebraska prairie, $17.00@20.00; feeding and packing, $12.00@15.00. Rye straw, $12.00@13.00; oat and wheat, $11.00@12.00 per ton. Arrivals were 1 car packing hay, and 2 cars oat straw.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Wheat traders ignore all bullish conditions and paid more attention to those of a depressing character. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's statement that too much grain has been raised was the big feature. All grains were regarded as a sale on sharp bulges.

In most instances operators in grains were so bearish that it created the impression in some quarters that possibly they were too much so, and that a good part of the depressing features had been discounted by the present price levels. "It happens that way at times," remarked an old trader.

A conservative commission man is advising his country clients to sell cash corn on all bulges. Traders estimated that 1,000,000 bu long corn was sold for eastern houses, which depressed July from 83c down to 81c. Buying on the break was by wire houses who were bullish on crop prospects and reduced stocks.

A Winnipeg message said the absorbative power of our July wheat is wonderful. One house with southern connection has sold 500,000 bu July against purchases of Chicago July at 6⅛c difference. They have taken it all and want more. Our July can do anything. Buyers of No. 1 northern say their bids from the east do not warrant any premium over July, with the July closed strong relative to other months. The best bid was ½c over against 1c over Friday.

Fort William wheat stocks are 12,653,000 bu compared with 16,650,000 bu a week ago and 19,182,000 bu last year. Reports on the flour trade are unfavorable. One of the big Kansas mills is to close down for want of demand, owing to stocks having piled up. The flour situation on the whole is the most peculiar known in a long time.

Wheat receipts at primary market from July 1, 1922, to date aggregate 423,676,000 bu, compared with 399,531,000 bu last year. Chicago has received 49,606,000 bu, or 2,380,000 bus less than last year.

London cables report weather in France more seasonable and crops improved, especially oats and barley. Rains are reported in New South Wales, Australia, and the government has agreed voluntarily to pool wheat next season.

"Present prices of wheat are too low," says Bartlett Frazier, "and ultimately good advances will be recorded. Receipts of corn continue light and the underlying situation is growing stronger daily. The outside buying power will not be attracted to oats until the critical period of the new crop is reached."

The Price Current's annual of statistics with all the information most attractively arranged for the year 1922 has made its appearance.

A gain of 695,000 bu was made in primary receipts of grains last week, although the movement was the smallest at this time in more than five years, but it also showed the largest in a month. Cars are plentiful, and despite the small gain for the week, show a loss of 4,838,000 bu from last year, and 21 per cent under the five year average. The big reduction was in corn, 3,346,000 bu, as compared with last year. The movement of the latter, however, as well as oats, showed fair gains for the week. A good supply of cars has been stored in the west and southwest for the movement of new grains, although the latter is not expected to be of any size for about a month.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"Saline to Delphos, wheat averages good," wired B. W. Kinyon to Jackson Bros. & Co. from Concordia, Kas. "A few fields lodged. Very few dead spots. With favorable weather will average 15 to 17 bu per acre. Delphos here, many fields light stand and short heads. Will average 8 to 10 bu. Harvest in ten days to two weeks. Corn late. Many fields weedy."

"Well developed black rust very generally present in Anthony and Harper territory," wired B. W. Snow to Bartlett, Frazier & Co. from Harperd, Kas. "Infection is breaking out on head straw. Think crop too near maturity to be injured materially, but a few late fields may suffer. Crop generally has been hurt by excess rainfall and is drying up rather than ripening. A great deal of head scab and blight. Yield will be lower than reported June 1, but there is a local tendency to exaggerate the situation. Harvest will begin as soon as ground will carry the binder. Further rains would produce cumulative damage."

The J. Rosenbaum Grain corporation had a Wichita, Kas., message saying: "Best opinion is that rain and floods have damaged wheat 26 per cent in Sendwick, Sumner, and Crowley counties. Rust reported in all sections of southern Kansas. Still think Kansas will do well to raise 90,000,000 bu if conditions elsewhere are like southern Kansas."

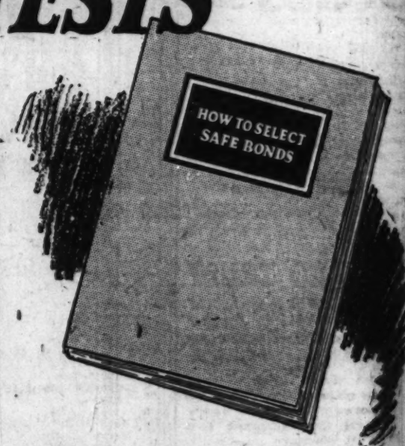
THESE 8 TESTS of Safety Have Prevented Loss for Thousands of Investors



Apply These 8 Tests to Your Investments

COVERING a period of 38 years, George M. Forman & Company have handled the investments of thousands of investors so successfully that not one of them has ever lost a dollar of Principal or Interest. This unsurpassed record has only been possible through the scientific application of certain unfailing tests to every investment. To be perfect in features of safety, it has been found that every investment must meet 8 specific requirements. Any investment that does not meet all of these 8 requirements may be said to be lacking in safety. If an investment does satisfactorily pass every one of these 8 tests, it is safeguarded in such a way as to leave no doubt of its safety.

Every person who has money to invest, whether the amount be large or small, should know and apply these 8 tests to every investment. No investor should be satisfied with an investment that does not meet these 8 requirements, because it is possible to secure investments that do pass every one of these tests.

George M. Forman & Company have published a book called "How to Select Safe Bonds," that will show you exactly how to make these tests. By knowing these tests you will be able not only to select investments that are 100% safe, but you will also be enabled to select securities of attractive yield without making a sacrifice in the element of safety. We have a limited edition of this book. It will be sent only to those who request it on the appended blank. Fill in, tear it out and mail this blank immediately.

The New York Times.

NEW YORK, June 16.—[Special.]—Announcement of the failure of an old and well known banking house had no effect on the stock market except to bring business to a halt. In so far as this failure was a result of recent declines in certain speculative stocks, the occurrence had some bearing on the stock exchange position.

The circumstances of the case and the absence of any commoion in he day's market sugested that the process of forced liquidation had been pursued in advance of hte suspension. The day's transactions, amounting to less by one-third than the previous smallest Saturday in 1923, left prices at the close about equally divided beween fractional advances and fractional declines. None of the changes was important; most stocks hardly stirred.

German Mark Slumps Further.

The German mark again attracted attention because its action indicated a situation which in all reasonable probability cannot last. Failing during the day from 9½ ten-thousandths to 8 1-16, the price reached a point at which 123,000 marks would be needed to buy a dollar. Last Friday the dollar commanded 109,590, last Tuesday 102,500, a week ago 83,330.

The "stablized rate" of March, at which the Reichsbank bought up great quantities of paper marks or paper mark credits, paying out its gold reserve for the purpose, was 20,800 to the dollar. During this period of intervention in the market the Reichsbank, by its own accoun, has parted with 247,926,000 marks of its gold holdings, or inAmerican money $59,000,000. The question now is whether the government at Berlin will not be compelled to take steps in budget and currency regulation which ought to have been taken more than a year ago.

New York Bank Reserves Rise.

The New York clearing house statement showed loans decreased $1,816,000 this week. As compared with the previous week demand deposits decreased $43,742,000, time deposits decreased $8,304,000, and surplus reserve gained $30,191,450, now standing at $24,368,530. N. Y. C. TO PUT OUT $100,000,000 IN COMMON STOCK

The New York Central railroad applied to the interstate commerce commission yesterday for authority to issue $100,000,000 common stock. According to the application the stock will be exchanged from time to ime for the company's twenty year 6 per cent convertible debenture bonds of 1950, of which $100,000,000 are outstanding in the hand of the public.

The New York Central at present has common stock issues aggregating $268,377,730, and is authorized by its corporate charter to issue $400,000,000 at par in common stock. Owners of the debenture bonds are entitled under the agreement of sale to exchange these for common stock of the railroad at any time they desire, paying $105 a share.

To help finance a government loan recently extended to it, the Seaboard Air Line company asked the commission for authority to issue $3,000,000 in 4 per cent refunding mortgage bonds of one of its subsidiary companies, the Florida Central and Peninsula. In addition it asked the commission to aprpove a further issuance of $646,500 in similar securities of the Florida Central, which will evidence investment by that road in new equipment. When the issues are completed, the Seaboard will acquire $5,146,500 in securities of the Florida Central, which it will pledge with the government. The balance of the issue not covered by application is already held in the railroad's treasury.

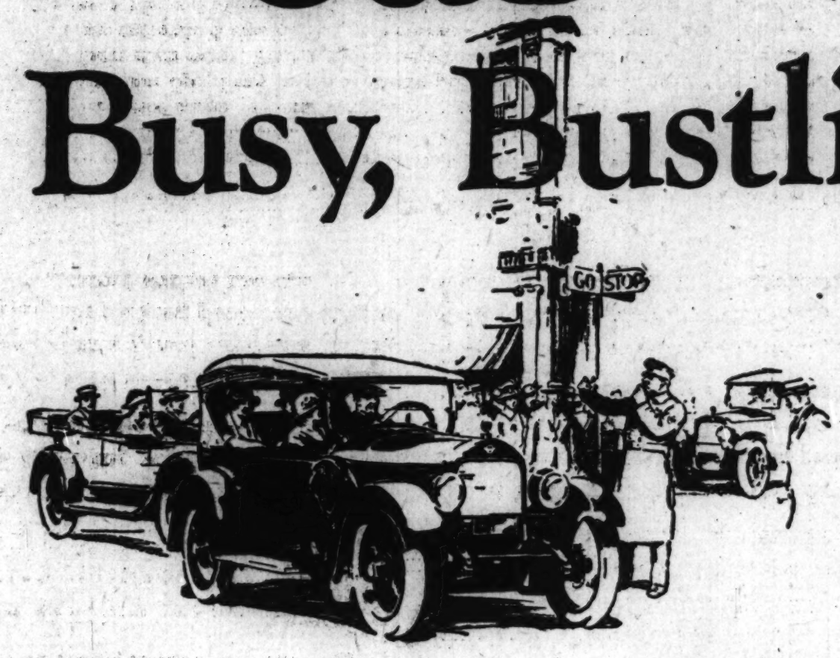
it's a great car

For the Busy, Bustling City



STUTZ SIX

Pickup and brakes!—an easy gear shift, and a wheel that responds to a touch. That's what you need to hold your own in traffic-ridden city driving.

And these you get when you buy a Stutz Six. It's as easy to manage when traffic's the thickest as when you open it up on the clear highway.

Full 75 horsepower are at your beck and call with the merest pressure on the accelerator. Controls work like magic without the slightest strain.

The wheelbase, too, is ideal—120 inches—which, combined with the extremely short turning radius, solves many a traffic and parking problem without a single sacrifice of comfort within the car.

Compensating springs 100 inches long, provided with special shock absorbers, assure delightful easy-riding. And so great is the economy in the use of fuel and lubricant that in city driving—with all necessary stopping, starting and idling—the Stutz Six delivers as much mileage per gallon as one usually expects when traveling the open road.

Oil-pressure lubrication—the finest the market affords—keeps out the squeaks easily, while typical Stutz sturdiness here again is proof against rattles and wear and attendant depreciation.

The Stutz Six is a value unequaled in the quality field today. You owe it to yourself to investigate it before you buy. It is a compelling value.

For Those Who Want a Higher-Priced Car

In the magnificent array of Speedway Series Stutz Cars are to be found values quite as compelling in their field as are the Stutz Six models among cars selling in their price range. Priced somewhat higher than the six-cylinder cars, the famous Stutz Speedway models utterly pre-empt that aristocratic market so peculiarly their own. Without counterparts among cars of extreme distinction they are recognized everywhere as America's pre-eminent sport cars. Prices at the factory from $2450 to $3490. Eight body styles. Wide choice of colorings.

INDIA PRINT IS NEWEST BATHING SUIT MATERIAL

by Mary Homer Howell

NEW YORK. — (Special Correspondence.) — Having a figure and showing it is the ABC of beachcraft. Any devotee of fashion can tell you that. But the supreme art this year will be to have a lot of figures and show them in the gayest of colors imaginable.

That's the way the India cotton prints got their work blocked out for them. They will lead the procession in the panorama of the beach this year. There isn't anything more colorful than they.

After them will come the batiks. Figured taffetas will be next in favor, with gay ginghams doing practical stunts; and, if anybody has a plain knitted or other suit, say black velvet for a coolish day, will she please cover it up with the gayest terry bathing cape procurable? Thanks! Now we are ready for the photographer.

Let me deal first with the innocent bystander on the right, who is in the picture as a representative of the linen combined with English eyelet embroidery vogue of the summer season. As she moves on and out of the bathing scene we note that her lavender linen is of the heavier type, that the trimming is silk in large black and white checks, and that her belt buckle is of cleverly carved black and white ivory.

To return to our prints: Bather No. 1 wears quite the gaudiest hand blocked India print the market affords, in mustard yellow, green, and red. It is bound with red jersey, side ties with red jersey strips, and has knickers of red jersey, banded with the Indian cotton.

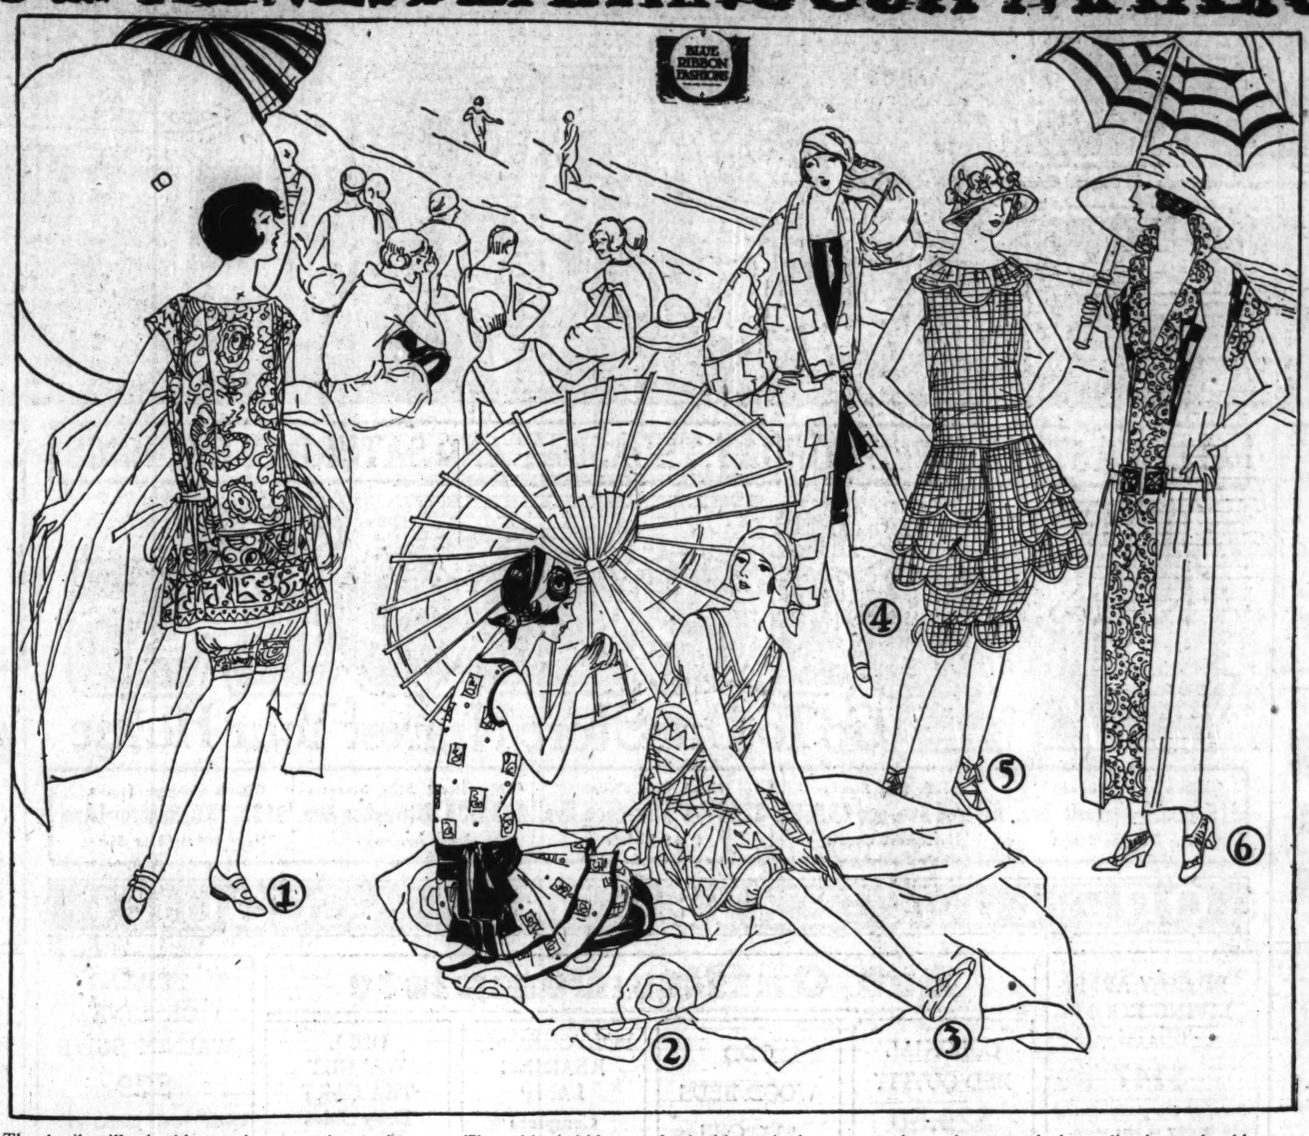
Next to her, sitting on the towel cape with the huge blue circles, is a maid in figured red taffeta, a bathing suit which boasts of a two tiered skirt. All edges are bound in black satin, and there is a satin sash.

Her mate is in batik vogue; and do cast a glance at the big Japanese umbrella that shelters them both. Should you happen to arrive at the seashore without one at least in the family, summer will be spoiled.



The batik silk, in blue and green, is made in surplice style, you will observe, and has binding and ties of lacquer red silk.

The ankle-tied bloomer for bathing suits has not come in as yet with 1830 styles, but look who's here, right next to her mother, probably in lavender—a lass who conceals knee dimples under bloomers, something quite recent under the sun. The little red and white checked bathing suit is of taffeta, its scalloped bertha and skirt flounces bound with plain silk.

The gay yellow bathing coat behind is in the new season's favored color for beaches. Of Turkish toweling or terry cloth, its dominating hue is varied with white blocks, and, further, with a rich blue lining. Such beach capes or coats, of toweling, rubberized satin, and other materials, couldn't carry more riotous color tones if they tried.

For gingham bathing suits, in blue, green, red, or other color, checked with white, the red and white checked silk above described would make a good model to copy. Or any of the others shown, for that matter. The blocked India prints are very often bound with cotton tape, in white or color, which forms a practical and easily applied finish.

Some of the cleverest bathing suits worn at the resorts last winter were black with a satin check. Long knickers came below the knee, and there was a long overblouse with a narrow sash tied low. The sleeve was long and the cuffs narrow and tight. Moire silk for bathing dresses is an excellent fashion choice.

Judging from the number of sleeveless bathing frocks shown by good houses, the scarf, of one sort or another, will be much in evidence on the beaches. The Deauville handkerchief is going to play a big part in this year's revels on northern sands. If it hadn't been invented, our summer suns would give it birth. Or some equally good covering substitute. Not sleeves, of course. That would be too reasonable.

Knitted bathing suits, both silk and wool, must not be forgotten. They come in black, cross-barred in red, for example, or with Roman stripes high upon them. And in gray and sand colors they are very good looking.

Stockings and bathing caps must match, by the way. The bathing cap will usually be the bandana or some compromise with it.

EXCESSIVE PERSPIRATION

Six Glasses of Water a Day and a Daily Bath Are First Aids to the Perspiring

"AND she never knew the reason why——". So read the advertisements in calling attention to remedies for the unpleasant ill of excessive perspiration.

It is true that a great many persons are unconscious of unpleasant odors given off by their skins, but it is a very serious matter, as it affects the attractiveness and happiness of a girl.

Odors are caused by acids and other chemical materials which exist in the natural secretions of the body, the perspiration, breath, and other secretions.

Few people realize that the less water there is in the human system the more will these chemical odors pervade the atmosphere surrounding the girl.

Lack of Plenty of Water.

Dr. William Lee Howard emphatically states that "it is the lack of plenty of water that causes the skin to give forth odors. If you have exercised to the extent of bringing on profuse perspiration and have not drunk plenty of water before, during, and after the exercise, no amount of bathing will prevent an odor coming from the skin. If you are going to a dance or any place where you will be in a warm room, you will not be able to disguise the chemical odors coming from the skin. But if you have filled your system with water two or three hours before going out, your skin will have a delicious, natural odor."

At certain times most girls experience extreme discomfort from excessive perspiration. It is noticeable in some of the most careful cleanliness and habits. Perfumery only makes matters worse; the attempt to cover the natural odors is too marked. During this period the skin throws off an extra amount of perspiration and the glands under the arms are extremely active. But you can so saturate your system with pure water that the fatty and acid odors become highly diluted and scarcely make their presence known to those around you.

The habit of at least six glasses of water a day is recommended as first aid in minimizing the trouble.

Daily Bath Imperative.

It would not seem necessary to advise the daily bath as a further measure of precaution. The afflicted, given ordinary common sense, would know the necessity of it. But those who perspire too freely may not know that the tendency may be diminished by the lukewarm bath and not the too hot. Those who take a lukewarm bath perspire less than others on warm summer days.

It is only logical, too, that special attention must be paid to cleanliness in those parts that have the greatest number of sudoriic glands, such as, for example, the axillae and the toes of the feet. These may be bathed in alcohol and water, one-half to one-third of the latter; also with vinegar and water. Alum and baking soda added to the water are helpful remedies.

When the feet perspire freely, hot water must be used—but followed with the use of cold water so that the opened pores will close again. Pouring cold water into the bathtub over the feet will effect this—but it should be done quickly. (Incidentally it might be noted here that this foot treatment is recommended by a medical man in cases of headache and insomnia, draining the blood from the brain.)

Change Stockings Daily.

It is essential that fresh stockings are put on daily and shoes aired after each wearing. Even though it necessitates washing out the stockings over night, which only takes a minute or two anyway, it should be done. Because clothing of any kind once affected with an odor of perspiration can be rid of it only with soap and water. Woolen dresses were better not worn at all by one until a remedy is effected. The odor clings to them in many cases after the dress has been sent to the cleaners.

Dress shields, too, should be washed after each wearing, as they are the worst offenders in repeating the offense.

However, there is a remedy which I have a great deal of faith in, which is simple and comparatively inexpensive. It is a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water. Dab it gently on the affected part every second or third day and allow it to dry on. It is usually sufficient to make three such applications, then wait for a recurrence before resuming treatment. Or one application a week may be made to ward off recurrences. But this will cause a rapid amelioration of the excessive sweating.

Apply Remedy at Night.

Dress shields may be discarded after a few applications. In using this remedy I must caution you not to use it excessively, or it may cause a sharp itching or stinging senation which, however, will spontaneously subside if the part is not scratched. If you find it irritates despite following directions, splash water on the parts first before applying the solution to dilute its strength. Only a very tender skin, however, will find this necessary. And here is something you must be sure to do: Allow the lotion to dry on thoroughly before clothing is permitted to touch the skin. It is best to do it at night before retiring.

This remedy acts as an astringent. The idea that the general health will suffer if perspiration in the armpits, hands and feet is stopped is erroneous. The sweat glands will be provided outlet on the skin in other parts of the body, and no ill effects can possibly occur as a result of the use of the perspiration astringent as above described.

Before using any preparation for preventing perspiration be careful to cleanse the parts and rinse the soap therefrom thoroughly.

Another remedy for perspiration is to wash the armpits and feet night and morning in lukewarm water and soap; rinse well and dry. Then apply freely the following solution: Alcohol, one pint; salicylic acid, two drams.

Beauty Answers

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

WORRIED: WHEN YOUR nerves begin to bother you, it is time to look to your diet. I'll wager half the nervous disorders are due to impoverished blood condition. What kind of food are you treating yourself to? Do you get fresh vegetables every day? You should have at least two such for dinner every night, and a green salad in addition. At noon eat a salad made of fresh fruits or vegetables. You simply cannot run along efficiently on a diet that provides no energy fuel. Your luncheon is wrong for one who works. Suppose you order every day a great big bowl of combination salad, and drink milk or half milk and cream. Better eliminate tea and coffee for a while and then slip me the request to provide you with the pamphlet on gaining weight, as you unquestionably are in need of at least ten or fifteen pounds to help build you up to the wholesome girl of "way back when you felt fine and happy."

DEBUTANTE: YOU ASK THE SECRET of personal magnetism? I should say offhand good health. Without vitality there is no enjoyment of life's activities; there is no optimism. The magnetism of children is their overflowing vitality. And I think it applies as well to grownups. With it, play is a delight and work is certainly no drudgery.

JESSIE: AS A GENERAL THING, the healthy person who feels stupid and wants from eleven to fourteen hours of sleep is not suffering from mental exhaustion, but from lack of exercise and torpid digestion. Eight hours is probably a reasonably full allowance for the average adult, with one hour extra for good measure if you have been up unduly late the evening before.

Pays to Be Polite.

Recently my daughter was married at one of the large hotels in Chicago.

Many out of town relatives and friends of the groom whom I had not met were invited to the reception.

Being hostess, I felt responsible for every one having a good time. After the wedding dinner, the tables were cleared, and the reception guests began to arrive. Seeing a man come in, who looked anxiously around, I came forward to greet him.

"I am Mrs. C, the mother of the bride," I said, holding out my hand.

"I am Mr. A, the headwaiter!" replied the man. C. U.

Upsetting the Game.

My husband was expecting a subpoena to be served and wishing to avoid being called had told me to refuse the subpoena by telling them he was out of town, which I did.

At the time he was sleeping upstairs, so I considered it safe. While I was talking to the officer my 5 year old daughter came into the room and called, "Mother, papa sent me down stairs for a clean collar." There was nothing to say, so I said it. O. L. S.

Not a Silver Lining, Either.

I was out with my sweetie. Having had my hair bobbed the night before I had not had time to pad my hat, so I took an extra lining and just stuck it over the other lining.

We went to the theater and I removed my hat. Turning around to see if I knew any one, I noticed everybody grinning. I couldn't imagine why until putting my hand to fix my bobbed hair, I felt the extra lining sticking high on my head. I soon removed it, but caused a great laughter from the people behind me. M. N.

Exposing the Bride.

It was my initial marketing trip with a newly acquired husband. Giving the vegetables a shrewd appraising glance that I thought would deceive the public, I said to the grocer:

"And how much are these heads of lettuce?"

"Those heads of lettuce are cabbage, ma'am, and they're 15 cents," he unfeelingly replied, and that beast of a husband of mine laughed as hard as anybody. M. B.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

Black crepe de chine dress with apron of gold, emerald, turquoise blue, and vermilion.

Coat in peignoir effect made of brown alpaca with edging of deeper brown.

Peignoir coat of black and white printed crêpe and black satin collar and lining.

Dress of black crêpe marocain with red poppies on crêpe de chine and green suede stems.

SPOTS ARE THE MODE.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—How much our dresses of today look as if the designer herself had been inspired by her own peignoir. Straight, slim bathrobes wound round one in lines that are long—but not too long. You can almost name that as a principle on which one entire genre of dress is constructed. As for decorations; as we were saying the other day, patterns are ugly and color combinations cause goose flesh to crawl the frame. The leopard ought to be the most fashionable of all the animals, with invitations to his salon sought after, for spots are the mode. Pieces of crêpe de chine and even green suede leather are sewed on at random. But the leopard really to be ultra ought to have his spots appliqued on. None of them as worn round Paris look as if they had any connection with anything that had gone before and I am afraid on the whole the leopard's color scheme is too conservative and artistically blending to be really of the mode. All spots that are not appliqued on are embroidered in the material. As for movements, beside the peignoir, the only one conspicuous is the apron; and the correct thing is to get an apron bordered o'er with a pattern as conspicuous as I have indicated that the styles dictate.

The first offering shows one in all of its perfection.

There is really nothing to the dress that is worth the mention except this apron covered with the decorations from the Chinese restaurant, with scrolls and conventionalized flowers in it. The designer is Vionnet and even her staff admitted that the pattern was in the spirit of modern Chinese art—if that is what you call it. As to colorings it is turquoise, emerald green, gold and vermilion. The background is so unobtrusive you wouldn't know it was there [that is to say the dress proper], and it is in black crêpe de chine.

I think if instructions went as to how to wear the second costume, they would go something like this: "Look as if you had thrown on your peignoir in a hurry to go down the aisle to the dressing room in a Pullman sleeping car." It must have been the peignoir look to it and you the peignoir attitude toward it.

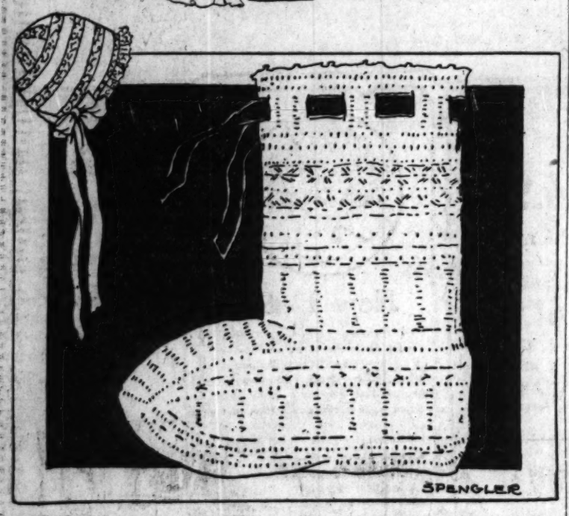
I have seen some of your American girls coming over here with the silhouette all right as turned from the dressmaker's hands, but you are wearing the coat formally, straightly, stiffly, as if dressed for the day. You must have a before 9 a. m. aspect to your bearing. That is only, naturally, as far as the throat line. You must, if possible, get your hair to look as if arranged for one of our more formal evening functions at home. No French woman ever looks as if her hair came easy. The coat is tailored and is in brown alpaca, with an edging of deeper brown. It is severe and simple. Really the chic comes from the way it wraps round one, and thus you see that in wearing it you have definite obligation, lest you betray the creator of it by not wearing it right.

The third mantle is indebted to something beside the manner in which it is worn for its chic. All other things failing, the combination of printed crêpe and black satin in which it is made would carry it—the crêpe being white with black figures over it, and the lining black with a hood collar turning back from its V neck. The hat is of black straw trimmed in gray curled feathers which the artist signifies as being put on in an "amusing" way. I should say they were in the way of a question mark.

The fourth model is a very effective one of Vionnet's, in black crêpe marocain, garnished in red conventionalized poppies with long stems appliqued down the front of the skirt. The flowers are of crêpe de chine with stalks of suede.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



KNITTING BABY'S BOOTIES.

THE knitting of fancy socks or bootees for infants is well worth the trouble involved, and the following directions are so simple they might be followed by anyone who has never attempted knitting any more complicated than a plain sock or stocking.

They may be made of silk, wool, or cotton. No. 16 needles should be used by a loose knitter, while No. 14 will be best if one knits tightly.

Cast twenty stitches on each of three needles, and work twenty-four rounds of ribbing, forming a fine rib of one purl and one plain; or two purl and two plain, according to fancy.

Arrange the stitches so as to have twenty-seven on one needle, sixteen on the second, and seventeen on the third. The pattern is worked on the needle with the twenty-seven stitches, and consists of two rows which are worked alternately until the toe is commenced.

First row: One turned stitch (a plain knitting stitch, but the needle is inserted at the back instead of at the front, and this twists the stitch so that it stands up more prominently and helps to form a ridge), *one purl, one turned stitch, wool in front, slip one, knit two together, draw the slip stitch over the new stitch, wool in front, then one turned stitch. Repeat from * to the end of the line.

Knit the stitches on the two remaining needles plain, with the exception of the first stitch of the third needle, which must be purled until the heel is turned, so as to form the seam stitch.

Second row: One turned stitch, one purl, one turned stitch, three plain. Repeat until all the stitches on the needle have been knitted. Alternate these rows regularly until the toe is reached.

When six rows have been knitted beyond the ribbing, decrease by knitting two together on each side of the seam stitch—leaving a distance of one plain stitch between the decreasing and the seam.

Repeat the decreasing at the ends of the next six rows, and continue the fancy knitting in the front, and the plain knitting in the back until the pattern has been worked twenty-four times — namely, forty-eight rounds beyond the ribbing.

Work the heel on the needles that have been used for plain knitting by working alternate rows of plain knitting from the front, and purl knitting from the back—always slipping the first stitch of purl or plain, until a strip of knitting having ten loose stitches down the side has been made.

Turn the heel by purling one past the seam, purl two together, purl one. Turn, slip one, knit one, purl one, knit one, knit two together, knit one. Turn, slip the first stitch, and purl until the stitch before the gap caused by turning is reached; purl two together [namely, one on each side of the gap], purl one. Turn, and repeat the same in plain and purl alternately, taking two together [namely, one on each side of the gap], and working one beyond until a gusset shaped piece has been knitted, which brings the stitches in a line with the loops down each side of the heel.

Pick up the loose stitches down the left hand side, and knit them on to the same needle as the stitches already in use. Continue the pattern on the front needle. Pick up the loops on the other needle, and knit them on a third needle, together with half the stitches at the guesset turning of the heel, until the seam stitch is reached. Count the stitches on the two back needles, and make them even in number.

The decreasings for the ankle, which are done by knitting two stitches together, must be worked at that end of these two needles which is nearest to the fancy front, allowing one plain stitch to separate the decreasings from the openwork. Knit two plain rows between the two sets of decreasings until the stitches on the two back needles are together equal in number to the stitches on the front needle; then continue plain knitting at the back and fancy knitting at the front until the foot is long enough to commence shaping the toe—that is, about two or two and one-half inches from the turning of the heel.

Knit one plain round so as to discontinue the fancy pattern. On the front needle knit one, knit two together, knit to within three stitches of the end, knit two together, knit one.

Knit one, knit two together, and continue plain knitting until within three stitches of the far end of the third needle, knit two together, knit one. Knit two plain rounds, and repeat the decreasing round, and continue this set of three rounds until only nine stitches remain on the front needle.

Cast off by knitting a stitch from the front and a stitch from the back together and passing the stitch thus obtained over the stitch next to it—obtained in the same way—until but one stitch remains, which must be fastened off by passing an end of wool through it, which must afterwards be neatly run into the sock with a darning needle so that it will not give way and lead to the unraveling of the knitting.

HOME TRANSFORMED.

SOME weeks ago we heard from a young wife who was about to celebrate her first wedding anniversary and the arrival of a little one, and what a dismal celebration it promised to be! Her husband had been hurt in an accident and was out of work for months. They were living in a scantily furnished room, were heavily in debt, and in despair over the future.

The following letter, written from the new little four room home the happy couple is now occupying, shows the transformation brought by generous thoughtfulness:

"I must stop scrubbing and cleaning long enough to tell you how wonderfully we are provided for. We received a comfortable bed, dresser, chairs, dishes, heater, and other things keep coming one by one. It seems that all I had to do is just wish hard enough for something, and pretty soon some one is sure to come, bringing it right into the house!

"I am trying to write and thank all of them for their kindness to us, and I want you to know how deeply grateful I feel to you and every one, though I simply can't begin to tell it in a letter."

There you see what helpfulness can do! An article from this person, another from that one, and the couple had furnishings for a little home. With the furniture burden lifted, the husband's earnings can care for the rest, and the baby, instead of coming into a home of destitution, worry, and hardship, will be welcomed into the joyous happiness which breathes through every line of the young wife's letter. Isn't that worth while—and haven't you some articles about the house that will work a similar transformation for some other friend in need?

Health Hinges on Hammock.

I am a middle aged woman working on a farm. I have had heart trouble for a long time and my room is too hot for me to get any rest at night. I would like to sleep out of doors, provided I had a hammock. I would be very grateful to receive one from some one who no longer has use for same, and I would be glad to pay the express charges. Miss M. R.

Can any one respond to this request? M. R.'s address is at your service.

Lack Shoes, Clothing.

You have helped me in the time of need before, and I wonder if you could be so kind as to help my baby boy and myself, who are in great need of clothing. If any of your readers have boy suits, size 6 or 7, or shoes size 7 that have been outgrown, I would be pleased to call for them. I am in need of clothing for myself, size 44, shoes size 7. I have just returned from the hospital, having undergone an operation, and it will be some time before I am strong enough to work. M. A. W.

This request will send some good reader rummaging through the clothes closet for outgrown clothing for Mrs. W. and her boy.

Braces for Invalid Child.

I have a little boy who is in need of braces, and I cannot afford to buy them right now, because I spent a terrible lot of money for doctors trying to help him walk, and if you would be so kind to even let me use them, I would gladly return them when he has recovered. My husband does not work steadily and is laid up ever so often with rheumatism, and there are four of us to be fed and clothed. Mrs. M. T.

As brave a fight as this mother is putting up deserves encouragement and help. I hope to be asked for her address.

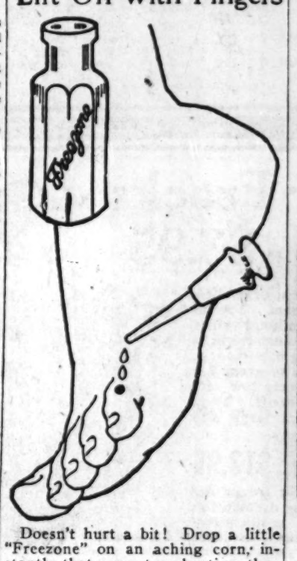
Ice Box, Baby Clothes Desired.

I have a baby 9 months old that I raised on bottle milk, and I can't buy an icebox. I wonder if among your readers there is a kind hearted person that can give me an icebox and some old clothes for my baby. Mrs. V. B.

I am looking for an early response to Mrs. V. B.'s appeal.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Kenney CURTAINLESS Shower

"Beats a Tub Bath 40 Ways"

Cleaner—You don't finish in dirty water. Four sparkling invigorating streams envelop you.

Quicker—No waiting for the tub to fill. There's time for every member of the family—every morning.

Cheaper—Saves one-third on water consumption—hence lower water heating bills.

Nicer—A daily shower is fine—and healthful. Children love it. And a Kenney Shower is best of all.

The SIX BIG Reasons:

1. No overhead deluge. No wet hair.
2. No unsightly, cold, clammy curtain. No pools of water on the floor.
3. If you want to fill the tub, a valve turns off the shower.
4. Portable models—fit any tub. You can attach or detach in five minutes.
5. Stationary models for permanent installation. Ask your architect to specify and your plumber to install.
6. All models brass, nickel plated. No rubber hose.

Hair Kept Beautifully Wavy, Indoors or Out!

Your hair will have a prettier wave and curl than probably it has ever had if, just before doing it up, you will apply a little liquid Silmerine with a brush. The waviness will look perfectly natural, and the hair will be sleek and glossy like plush. It will remain in curl the longest time, regardless of heat, wind or moisture, and you won't have to be continually fussing with loose strands or flying ends.

Liquid Silmerine is, of course, entirely harmless. It leaves no stickiness or streaky trace. It is also an excellent dressing, keeping the hair delightfully soft and silky. A few ounces from your druggist will last for weeks. It is fine for bobbed as well as long hair.

"Two Seconds a Bed"

See this Remarkable Piece of Furniture

NOTHING has been invented in the last twenty years that will bring more comfort and happiness into modern homes than the Adams Chair! See what a luxurious, easy chair it is; notice its inviting proportions; its roominess; its altogether beautiful appearance. What a surprise then to find that it can be opened instantly into a wonderful bed with box spring and thick, soft mattress—not a pad, but a regular mattress as comfortable and rest-giving as you could desire.

Place an Adams Chair in your sun-parlor, living-room, alcove or dining-room and you have added an invisible bedroom to your home. With the Adams Chair you can get 24-hour service from any room in your home, for it can be the regular sleeping apartment of any member of your family.

The Adams Chair decreases your rent for it enables you to get along with fewer bedrooms—or without any at all! The saving in rent will quickly pay for your Adams Chair. It is modestly priced, costing no more than any good easy chair. In the Adams Chair you get two pieces of furniture for the price of one! In the Adams Lounge a full size double bed.

We have just opened our new salesrooms on the 8th floor of the Republic Building. Come in and see for yourself this wonderful piece of furniture. Look over the many beautiful samples of tapestry, leather, velours and mohairs in which the Adams Chair can be upholstered—or it can be covered in the same material as your other furniture. If it is not convenient for you to call, mail in the coupon below and we will mail you our booklet telling you more in detail about the Adams Chair.

Nemo Vacation Sale TO MAKE JUSPUL CORSETS "JUST THE THING" for SUMMER and SPORTSWEAR

Particularly when away on a vacation a dependable corset is an absolute necessity. At that time many women are over-active in outdoor sports and do not consider the undue strain to which such strenuous exercise subjects their bodies. In that case, instead of being a period of recuperation a vacation might prove a source of much physical discomfort, and often even actual physical disability.

The Juspul Corset is neither front nor back-laced; yet combines the utmost in comfort and hygienic support with the much desired natural figure effect. If accustomed to any other Nemo model do not change; but buy the one to which you have grown used. Nemo Juspul Corsets are sold in all progressive Corset Departments and Shops where graduates of the Nemo Hygienic-Fashion Institute are in attendance. They furnish an efficient and scientific corset service entirely free. Consult them about your corset problems.

NEMO JUSPUL No. 575 (illustrated) is for slender to medium figures; pink coutil; sizes 22 to 36—$5.00.

NEMO JUSPUL No. 475 is also for slender to medium figures but with a very low top. Pink silk-striped batiste; sizes 24 to 32—$4.00.

FIFTY OTHER NEMO MODELS $4.00 to $13.50.

CIRCLET MORE THAN A BROCHER

CIRCLET JR. No. 1002 most effectively controls the bust. Pink silk with cluny lace. Sizes 30 to 36—$1.00.

CIRCLET No. 1511 is particularly desirable for warm weather. All-over lace and batiste. Sizes 34 to 46—$1.50.

"Crepey silks are ultra correct for summer daytime and evening wear," says Fashion, and these frocks cleverly follow her decree, in fabric, and in line and embellishment.

Frocks of printed crepes, georgette, canton crepes, $45 Frocks of flat crepes and of crepe de chine

They are in summer-cool colors, as well as navy, black and white. Beads and braid, real Irish lace and ribbon plaiting and panels, add distinctive touches. Two women's and two misses' styles are sketched. Fourth floor.

THE POTTERS

ILLUSTRATIONS - BY - J. H. STRIEBEL

BLUE RIBBON COMICS

by J. P. McEvoy

PROLOGUE.

Well, well, here is our old friend Red Miller . . . what a familiar, comfortable, and altogether satisfying appearance he makes here in his own pet corner of the Potter sofa . . . and who should be sitting beside him but Mamie . . . and, of course, it is evening . . . and Bill is out gadding around—with Annabelle, no doubt—while Pa and Ma are in New York and the Baby is in bed . . . what could be fairer than that?

SCENE I.

Surely Red and Mamie must have a great deal to talk about now that Red is in the advertising game, and is doing quite well, thank you . . . let us tune in . . .

RED (confidently):

. . . and I says to him, "Do you know what's the matter with your prune business? You haven't been running it right. Here you've been in business fifty years, dogging along. It's a wonder you haven't failed long ago." He says, "What would you suggest?" And I says, "More advertising. Prunes need advertising as well as anything else."

MAMIE (enthusiastically):

That's right. Then what did he say?

RED:

O, the old stuff that he couldn't afford to advertise, that business wasn't good, and I says to him, "You're like the fellow in Arkansas whose roof leaked. He never fixed it because when it was raining he couldn't fix it and when it wasn't raining it didn't need fixing. Of course you can afford it, I says to him. "How many prunes in one of those little packages?" And he says, "About twelve." And I says to him, "Well, only put in eleven; that will save one prune out of twelve—that's 8½ per cent. Put that 8½ per cent of your gross sales into advertising." And then he says, "What'll I put in the box instead of the prune I take out?" and I says, "Put advertising in it, of course. Get up a nice circular showing prunes printed in four colors, and

"I'll make that Gleason guy step."

. . . all the ways prunes can be used, like pie, and jelly, and—well—whatever you use prunes for. Think of it," I says to him, "the advertising goes direct to the consumer. It goes to him when he is in the most receptive mood. He has just bought your prunes; he is eating your prunes, he is thinking your prunes, and then he opens this circular and he reads prunes—your prunes, mind you. How could he resist buying more of them?" Well, I got the account.

MAMIE (admiringly):

No?

RED (suppressing gloat):

Yes! I'm going after that CloseUp Sardine account tomorrow, and I'll get 'em, too, believe me.

MAMIE (startled):

Why, that's one of Mr. Gleason's accounts.

RED (meaningly):

Fine! All the better. I'll make that Gleason guy step. He's a false alarm anyway . . .

(O, he is, is he? Well, Mamie doesn't think so.)

MAMIE (enigmatically):

O, do you think so?

RED (confidently):

Say, listen, by the time that guy comes back from Europe I'll have all his accounts. When is he sailing, anyway?

MAMIE:

He said today he might be going sooner than he originally planned.

RED:

Fine! He can't go too soon to suit me. (Watching Mamie closely.) I suppose you wish he was coming back already, don't you?

MAMIE (he'll have to use a little neater technique than that):

O, I don't know. Mr. Gleason is a nice man, and he's terribly smart. He's going to see all the big accounts in England and France before he comes back, and he's going to investigate business conditions over there, 'n everything.

RED (palpably glad):

Well, I hope he finds a lot of business over there to investigate. We'll do some investigating of our own over here. Gosh, it'll be a relief not to be running into him at every corner. Just think, we can run around together here all summer. Won't we have fun?

MAMIE (softening . . . after all, she hasn't been treating Red so awfully nice):

You bet; we'll have a wonderful time.

RED (putting his arms around her impulsively and drawing her to him):

Sweetheart!

MAMIE (after sufficient pause, suitably employed):

Wait a minute; I hear the door bell.

(It is the door bell, sure enough . . . a telegram, addressed to Mamie Potter.)

HAVE HAD GOOD LUCK WE ARE ALL GOING TO EUROPE START PACKING AT ONCE LETTER FOLLOWING LOVE.
MA.

MAMIE (incredulously):

Red! Look at this!

"I'll throw the darn things out the window."

(Red reads amazing telegram, and they both look at each other in petrified astonishment . . . what are mere words on such an occasion?)

RED (first to break the silence):

All going to Europe?

MAMIE (beginning to realize full import of message):

Yes, to Europe; all of us. O, Red, isn't that wonderful? Pa must have made a killing in that radio stock. (Jumps up and dances around, waving telegram.) Europe—whee!

RED (blankly):

But . . . but . . .

GREEN-EYED MONSTER (to Red):

It was a frame-up; she knew it all along . . . now she can be over there with Gleason, where you can't watch her.

CONSCIENCE:

You know that isn't so. You should be ashamed of yourself.

GREEN-EYED MONSTER:

It is, too—look how happy she is.

MAMIE:

O, Red, Red—I'm so happy!

GREEN-EYED MONSTER:

There; what did I tell you? Is she sorry to leave you alone here? Ho! Ho!

(Conscience leads with its left. Green-eyed Monster blocks cleverly and crosses right on Conscience's chin. Conscience goes down and out for the count . . . poor Red . . . just when he and Mamie were getting along so nicely . . . and such a wonderful summer in prospect . . . dear, dear.)

SCENE II.

(Mamie and Bill receive special delivery letter):

"Dear Mamie and Bill: You will be surprised to know that Pa was lucky with his radio stock. It went up and down and up and down, and then Pa sold to Rankin and made over $23,000 profit, but Rankin went out and sold it and made $24,000 more; but we made enough, so we haven't any kick coming. Isn't it wonderful? About time we had a little luck; and now we are all going to Europe. Me and Pa have decided that we'll stay down here and save the carfare back home, and you and Bill are to pack, and get Grandma up to take care of the flat, and you bring the baby down with you with the trunks. Be sure and bring only your best clothes, because we will buy most of the things we need down here in New York before we sail. Write to Grandma and tell her to come up right away, and be sure and pack Junior's sweater, as he will catch cold on the boat without it. Bill, be sure and don't pack all your junk. We are not allowed only so much baggage, as there is only so much room on the boat for baggage.

"I think it would be best to let Mrs. Phelps have the canary, as Grandma is not used to canaries—only cows and chickens—and tell Mrs. Phelps to be sure and put fresh gravel on the bottom of the cage every morning, and give it a little apple and lettuce every once in a while. Be sure to tell Grandma to fasten the catch on the back door at night and not to leave the storeroom down in the basement unlocked. You better put a notice out to cut down the milk, and stop the paper, as Grandma's eyes are not any too good anyway and she complains about the small type. Pa and me are going to Washington from here, and we will meet you there one week from today; and we will get our passports there, as it will be much quicker. We'll save a lot of time. I will let you know later where to meet us in Washington, as we don't know yet where we will stop. You can find out what train to take at the station. Now about the ferns. If you think Grandma can take care of them, leave them; otherwise the Owens will board them for us. She has had ferns and knows all about them. Be sure if you carry them over, Bill, to be careful, as ferns don't stand much handling . . .

Green-eyed Monster: "She knew it all along."

BILL (interrupting at this point):

I'll throw the darn things out the window.

MAMIE (decisively):

You'll do nothing of the kind.

BILL (unkindly):

All right, Silly. We'll take 'em to Europe with us, if you say so.

MAMIE (ignoring uncouth remark and continuing letter):

". . . tell Bill to don't forget to pack Pa's bottle of liver pills, and that package of razor blades on the top shelf in the cabinet. You also better bring that last prescription for Junior's rash . . . be sure and bring my black taffeta and that blue cape. Hope Junior is well; be sure and don't let him have too much candy. Love. MA.

"P. S.: Never mind about the black taffeta; it's in rags, anyway.

"P. S.: Be sure and bring the hot water bottle—the dark one that doesn't leak.

"P. S.: Don't forget to bring Junior's little taxi. He will want it to play with on the boat, and there's no use buying another one. I guess you better bring the black taffeta, after all. It still has a lot of wear in it.

"P. S.: Never mind the hot water bottle. I forgot; it leaks, too."

(Well, it looks like the Potters are off for Europe sure enough . . . all they need now are reservations and passports and visés and routes and guides and exchange and a few hundred other trifles . . . first the passports.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

Selling Out Entire Stock

Going Out of Business Sale

F. N. Matthews & Co.

21 East Madison Street

Between State and Wabash

Sale Starts 8:30 Tomorrow

For over 22 years the name F. N. Matthews & Co. has been synonymous with quality merchandise. Chicago women have learned to look to us for the correct vogue, and while the Going Out of Business Sale is disagreeable to us, it means enormous savings to our customers. This sale is inaugurated with a view to reorganizing the company.

This announcement will no doubt be read with startling surprise by our thousands of customers, but surprise will turn to joy with the realization that the entire stock of F. N. Matthews & Co. must be sold immediately regardless of the loss and sacrifice. Tremendous crowds will undoubtedly attend this sale, and thoughtful women will be here when the doors open

Entire Stock of Wraps-Frocks-Capes-Suits-Gowns

Now stop long enough to consider what the name F. N. Matthews & Co. has meant to the fashionable women of Chicago. For over 22 years this store has enjoyed the patronage of the most fastidious and an opportunity to select from our wonderful stock, in some instances, at less than 50 cents on the dollar means more than mere words can express.

The fact that we must Go Out of Business comes as a surprise to us as well as to our customers. We were prepared for continued business; in fact, our late spring and summer stock of Wraps, Suits, Frocks, Capes and Gowns has only just been received and this forced sale makes it necessary for us to dispose of every garment no matter how great the loss. You'll find the prevailing prices are positively ridiculous when you consider the high quality of the merchandise. You'll find values that your good judgment will tell you mean a tremendous loss to us. But we have no choice. We must sell our entire stock immediately. The F. N. Matthews & Co. Going Out of Business Sale starts promptly at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow, and it should not be necessary to urge your early attendance.

How to Be Happy Though Married

By Doris Blake

What Is the Ideal Age for Marriage? Does Disparity in Ages Mean a Couple Cannot Be Happy?

IS age a real factor in the happiness of married life?

Does disparity in ages between husband and wife militate against the happiness together.

Are the odds against the woman who delays matrimony until she is thirty or over?

What are the chances for happiness of the very early marriage?

What is the ideal age for marriage?

These are a few of the questions the report of the bureau of social hygiene on answers of one thousand women to the Rockefeller questionnaire give rise to.

Age and Happiness.

It is interesting to note that only three of the women of college or high school education to whom the questionnaire was sent mention disparity of age as reason for their married unhappiness, while a comparison of ages revealed a considerable number of cases where disparity was great and yet the marriage was said to be happy.

The first comparison made by the bureau between the happy and unhappy groups was regarding the age at the time of answering the questionnaire. Which shows that the average age for the happy woman was 37.5 and for the unhappy woman 42.9, making the unhappy woman, generally speaking, 5.4 older than the happy one.

However, this comparison could not be applied directly to the question of age at the time of marriage and happiness, since among the women who admitted unhappiness there were various reasons given which could not be construed as age factors.

More Happy than Otherwise.

In order to make a more comprehensible study of the factor of age differences and their effect on married happiness, the bureau took a group of 116 who were happy and whose age and education corresponded exactly to another group of 116 who admitted unhappiness. Then they selected from each group of 116: first, all those cases in which the husband was more than ten years older than his wife; second, a group in which the wife was more than three years older than the husband. To these was added a small group where both man and wife were under 21 at the time of marriage.

It was learned that while among the unhappy there were eight cases where the husband was more than ten years older, there were fourteen such cases among the happy. Where the wife was more than three years older than the husband, there were four cases among the unhappy, and two among the happy.

Of the five instances where both the partners were under 21 at the time of marriage, four resulted unhappily.

How Wives Summed Up.

Comparison: Age of wife at marriage in entire group with happy and unhappy 116 (in five-year periods).

The difference in the average ages of the various groups in the two tables is too slight to be significant, but a study of the dispersion of these groups in charts made by the bureau develops their conclusion that in all age groups the age of the happy 116 women at time of marriage is greater than that of the unhappy 116.

*Second marriage; widow five years.

The numbers considered in the study of the age factor and married happiness are small, after all, and the group selective. Still the study does raise the important question of the age at which two people are best able to adjust themselves compatibly to each other and which we shall take up tomorrow.

Considering likewise the age of the husband at the time of marriage, the study of the two groups of equal size and of the same age and education shows that the happy group on the whole is composed of women whose own age and that of their husbands was greater than that of the unhappy group.

Marital Reefs

What was the greatest stumbling block to happiness in your married life? Did you have to struggle with too idealistic and too romantic a viewpoint toward maid and matrimony? Was it incompatibility of temperament or interests? Was there an economic reason for the reef you nearly struck? Was your stumbling block age disparity? Religious differences? Too much mother-in-law? Poor housekeeping? Extravagance? Jealousy? Unfair division of the pay envelope? Husband unfaithful, thoughtless, unkind, alcoholic, lazy, deceitful? Perhaps it was some other stumbling block about which you can tell us and which may help some other couple about to embark upon the good ship Matrimony. Tell us about it, won't you? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Abode of Unreason.

I have been married six years and, as in most cases, the first six months were were very happy, but after that my husband began to find fault with everythin gI did.

I had been raised in the city, while my husband had always lived on the farm, and though I knew how to keep house, and was considered a good cooker, I knew nothing of doing farm chores, and my husband was most unreasonable, expecting me to carry on these duties as had mother, who had always lived on the farm. But I was determined to learn and, after carefully watching others, came to do them well.

My husband is very high tempered and will quarrel over nothing, but I find that a soft word will usually turn away wrath. We have one little girl, whom we both adore, and she has been the greatest factor in keeping our home together. I have had to do without nice clothes, and sacrificed many things since I married, and I would advise girls to consider well before they marry, in a different station of life as I have done. L. L.

Vacillating Affection.

My husband was a kind man and a good provider, but he simply lost his head over every pretty girl he met. He would neglect me in public to dance attendance on each new flame. His infatuation invariably cooled in a short time and he would assure me he was only amusing himself for the time. But soon he would begin to run after a new attraction. I knew his love for me was deep and sincere, but I could not stand the humiliation of being slighted and neglected by him every time we appeared in public. I packed up, left him secretly, came to another city and obtained a divorce. I never regretted it, for my mind at last was at rest. A. R.

Love That Soon Perishes.

I was considered a pretty girl and Joe certainly was a handsome man when we both fell violently in love. When we were married we thought we had reached the peak of happiness. But the descent from the peak was rapid and rough.

Before three months I discovered that it was physical attraction and not love that bound us together—and physical attraction wanes quickly after marriage. We had no tastes, pleasures or interests in common. It is easily imagined how unhappy we were. We both hated the idea of divorce and decided to make the best of it. I think one of the greatest mistakes is to marry for the love of a handsome face or form. Mutual tastes and interests are far more essential to happiness. J. T.

Unhappy Amidst Love.

Although I love my husband and children, I can not say that I am satisfied with married life. Not earning enough wages to provide the needs for the family is the cause. I am not a woman to envy any one or to live extravagantly. I am convinced that my way of managing expenses is sensible. I do not want luxuries. I would gladly help my husband, but being that I have two small children and a little home to look after, it makes it almost impossible to see a way out, so it is just a continuous worry and a lot of hardship that make me feel uncomfortable. For the love of my children, and to make my husband feel contented, I keep all of my sorrows to myself. Perhaps I am not doing the right thing. If not, I wish some kindly reader would point my error. M. S.

Unhappily Married—for a While.

The ship of matrimony was almost wrecked during its first year out on the rocks of jealousy. Not jealousy of the other girl, but of my husband's "job." He was extremely conscientious, the quality that has made him the big success that he now is, and that brought him a "rising vote of appreciation" at a recent big banquet. But it was a quality that I couldn't quite understand during our first year of married life, especially when it took him away from home on the evening of our first wedding anniversary, when I had planned to have guests for dinner.

And so I took my outraged feelings upstairs with me and set them up on my dresser, where I could use them for a motive, and began to pack my trunk preparatory to going home to mother. If my husband cared more for his old "job" than he did for me he was welcome to get all the joys in life out of it! And then, in the midst of my orgy of self-pity, the man who lived in the next apartment, whose wife was then visiting her old home, came over and told me a few things. When he finished I unpacked as quickly as I could, so that my husband would not find me doing it. Of course, I wasn't cured, but it wasn't long until I reached the state of convalescence.

That was eleven years ago, and I give thanks daily for the friend who showed me that a man with a sense of responsibility to his employer and with courage to fulfill it was a prize in the matrimonial lottery that a woman of my age and experience should have sense enough to appreciate! If I hadn't had that friend then I probably wouldn't have for a husband now a man who is universally respected and honored in the community.

I have been able since then to pass on that little lecture to a few other women who were bent on making their husband's business and future possibilities subservient to their own whims, and they have thanked me for it, even as I have thanked my friend. M. B. M.

Deception That Was Foolish.

My next door neighbors are continually fussing and all caused by the wife deceiving and lying to her husband, which he later discovers, much to his disgust. I've argued with her, showing her the dreadful abyss she is falling over, and, for the sake of her children, to always tell her husband the truth, be it good or bad. I then told her my little story, which taught me a great lesson. I had fallen desperately in love with a man so far above me in the world that it seemed my life was to be one of endless tears. I was one of a dozen women in his office—had been there three years. I had just come out of college, for which my parents had saved and skimped and sacrificed. I had often been invited to other girls' homes, furnished so beautifully mine looked like a log cabin in comparison. When my employer invited me out for dinner I did not know how to appreciate them. My lesson for truth was taught, and my home is the happiest in consequence. If wives would not deceive their mates in words or actions there would not be so many divorces. C. T.

Saving a Youth Astray.

"Dear Miss Blake: While at a party last summer I met a boy who became very interested in me. We became the best of friends. He told me he loved me dearly and could never give me up. But this did not last long. He told me that his father objected to his going around with girls, and then we parted. Lately he has been going reckless and goes with rough company. I wrote him to be friends, but he did not answer. This was a long time ago. I still believe he loves me and I find it impossible to forget him. I find that he is keeping an eye on me and asks every one of my friends if I go with another. Shall I write to him and tell him to be friends again?

"BLONDE."

You might write the boy and tell him you are sorry to learn that he is going out in company which is not good for him, and that you do not want to see him do anything which would affect your excellent opinion of him. Inspire him to make something of himself. But do not make the issue one of resuming his attention to you. Let that rest with him. Perhaps the knowledge that you have faith in him may give him cause for reflection.

Going Through "a Spell."

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16 and considered rather good looking. There is a boy one year my senior of whom I am rather fond. But, let me tell you, Miss Blake, we grew up together and ever since I can remember he has told me that he liked me very much, but last Christmas he made a visit to some relatives in a distant city and since the time that he came back till now he doesn't seem to care any more. When we are alone he tells me he still cares for me as before, but, Miss Blake, he never offers to take me out and I often see him with other girls. Now, Miss Blake, what I want to know is, is he keeping me on a string or do you really think he cares. I like this fellow and am waiting for your answer. DAISY."

I would not be surprised, Daisy, but you would win out in the long run if you just keep your head while the boy is going through this spell. Perhaps he may have met a girl on his visit who turned his head and heart for the moment, but you just be the old school pal you have always been, ignoring any seeming change in him, and hope for the happy denouement.

No Easy Life

But a girlish beauty still

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have lived 40 years in the limelight—been 32 years a stage star. Have worked night and day, slept on cars, boarded at hotels.

For nearly five years I served France in the war. I even scrubbed hospital floors. Yet today, at a grandmother's age, I look like a girl of 19. Millions marvel at my youthful bloom. I still play young girls' parts.

That is due to four helps which France gave me—the best beauty helps in existence. Now I offer them to all. Every girl or woman who wants more beauty or perennial youth may get them as did I.

White Youth Clay

I owe my baby-like complexion to a new-type clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today, but a clay perfected by 20 years of scientific study. A refined clay, white and clean and dainty. A clay with added factors which bring multiplied results.

I apply Youth Clay twice weekly, to purge my skin of all that clogs it. To remove the cause of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. To bring the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. To bring that rosy afterglow.

Then it firms my skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women in 30 minutes seem to drop ten years.

Youth Clay made me a famous beauty. It has preserved my bloom. It will bring you results amazing and delightful, and at once.

My Facial Youth

I cleansed my face with a liquid cleanser which I call Facial Youth. Leading beauty experts the world over now employ this formula, but they charge too much.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat, so it cannot grow hair on the face. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs, and all the grime goes with it.

No cleansing cream you ever used cleans like my Facial Youth. This will bring you a new conception of what a clean skin means.

My Youth Cream

This is my cold cream which French scientists perfected. It contains both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster the skin's texture.

I apply it nightly, and every morning finds me blooming like a girl. I apply it after my clay. I use it daytimes as a powder base. I and all my stage friends have found Youth Cream the best cream in existence.

My Hair Youth

My hair is luxuriant, thick and lustrous. It has never begun to turn gray. It grows finer every year. This is due to a tonic which I apply with an eye-dropper directly to the scalp. That method does not muss the hair.

It combats hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots, stop the growth and reduce the flow of pigment. It stimulates and fertilizes. It has brought to me and to countless friends remarkable heads of hair.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply my helps exactly as I use them. Youth Clay at 50c and $1 per tube. Facial Youth at 75c. Youth Cream at 60c. Hair Youth at 50c and $1 with eye dropper. My Beauty Book comes with each.

These helps will do for you what nothing else can do, I think. They have for me and mine. You will always thank me for them when you know.

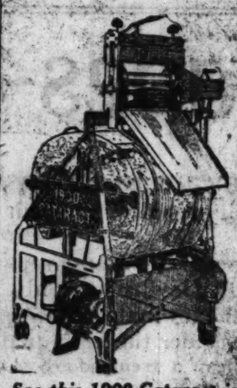
CATARACTION

Is Hot Weather Comfort On Wash Day—



The 1900 Cataract Electric Washer eliminates the rubbing, back-breaking wringing and shortens the time spent in the laundry.

The 1900 Cataract, plus cataraction, will wash the family washing spotlessly clean; no tearing. Extra large copper tank, easy to clean, with gas burner to keep the water hot, sterilizes the clothes while washing. During this month we have extended our cash terms to 90 days, or if you want to you can take 17 months to pay.

See this 1900 Cataract in action; see Cataraction in our stores nearest to you.

An Unusual Oriental Rug Purchase and Sale

$126,000 Stock at the Lowest Prices Quoted in Many Years

AND now after the largest month of domestic rug business in the history of this store, we inaugurate the opening of our Oriental Rug section with this wonderful disposal of

Most Beautiful Rugs from the Orient

ALMOST 1,400 newly unbaled Oriental rugs will be included in this exceptional selling; 116 bales brought over by the S. S. Egremont direct from Persia. These beautiful rugs were purchased at far below their actual market value, and the savings are passed along to you. It will be well worth your while to attend this display on the opening day of our sale. It is not only an exposition of the wonderful Persian art of rug weaving, but also an example of American mercantile science in their distribution. Remember, in view of the demand we anticipate, it will be impossible for us to send these rugs on approval.

Persian Mahal Rugs for Dining or Living Room

THESE rugs are without doubt the most fitting for the above rooms, not only for their great durability, but because their coloring and design adapt themselves so well to the decorative requirements. We have an excellent assortment of these rugs in the sizes quoted below:

Persian Kirman Rugs of Exquisite Beauty

THE Persian word "selef" (meaning the acme of perfection), accurately describes these wonderful pieces. These Kirmans are produced under special supervision, which explains why they are distinctively different from the stereotyped and conventional Kirmans of the past. In richness, harmony of coloring and wealth of ornamental detail they are considered beautiful specimens.

Patterns by Clotilde

1739—Woman's apron. Sizes 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 36 inch material.

1721—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 36 inch or wider material.

1745—Woman's dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 44 inch material.

How to Use the Patterns

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

IDEAS for aprons are always welcome to women who wear them, and pattern No. 1739 is a little different from the usual ones. There is a straight gathered skirt attached to a deep bib. This bib is shaped at the bottom so as to reach the underarm, and at the ends is laid in plaits and attached to a band. There are shoulder straps attached to the upper edge of the bib, and they extend over the shoulders and down to the waistline in the back, crossing and fastening to the band that goes across the back. The sash pieces are set on over this band.

There is nothing really better than percale for an apron that is to be worn when working, and it will be pretty if made plain. A white ground with some design in colors is always attractive looking. There are pretty finishing braids in cotton that will look well if one prefers to have the apron trimmed.

If the apron is being made to wear over a nice dress when it is necessary to serve a meal, sateen in some pretty color—or black—will be as pretty as any material one can choose. Then if some embroidery in cross stitch is worked on both pockets, no further trimming will be needed. One very attractive design seen recently on the pocket of a light blue crepe apron was a rather large ring done in several colors, and hanging or rather standing on one side of it, near the bottom, was a gayly colored parrot.

Pattern No. 1745 is a dress, closing at the left side, and there are one piece sleeves that may be long or short. The one piece skirt is gathered at the top and attached to the lower edge of the waist. The opening is on the left side. The width of the skirt at the lower edge, for size 36, is about one and three-quarters yards.

This is an attractive design for a little afternoon dress. A black or dark blue cotton voile showing small white dots would be smart looking. Measure your waist and skirt lengths before cutting out and allow for a four or five inch hem on the skirt. The waist seams are sewed together (and after being sure it fits well make French seams). The front edges of the waist are turned under and stitched. One can buy most beautiful bandings made of net and lace combined, and these come in different widths. The vest, collar, cuffs, and tops of the pockets can be made of this banding, using a straight piece across the tops of the pockets. Or the vest may be made of the material, and if the sash is a wide piece of ribbon the vest could be trimmed with several bands of matching silk. And, instead of two, one pocket could be used—setting it on the right side of the skirt and tying the sash just a little to the front of the underarm seam on the left side of the dress.

Mercerized cotton poplin would also make up well by this design, and some effective embroidery in cross stitch, or the laid embroidery would trim beautifully.

The one piece slip on dress, pattern No. 1721, is an interesting sort of design to work on. It is all cut in one piece and nothing could be more simple, but if made of the right material the dress should be graceful and pretty.

As can be seen from the diagram that accompanies the picture of the dress, the pattern is laid on a fold of material. The skirt parts are perfectly straight and the waist and sleeves are so in one that it is difficult to tell where the sleeves end and the waist begins. The lower edge of the sleeve ripples gracefully and extends to the waist line. The skirt on each side extends out at the waist line and is slashed in towards the middle—perforations showing just where to. Then the upper edge of the skirt is gathered and set on to the lower edge of the waist part. In doing this part of the work a narrow seam should be taken in gathering, running it off to as narrow a margin as possible, where it ends. Then a strip of the dress material should be cut, making it about one inch longer and wider than it is to be finished. All four ends should be neatly turned in, basted down over the seam, and then stitched. Then a similar piece should be set on the outside; and this may be just a shade wider so the stitching of the first will be covered. In trimming the dress, if embroidery is decided on, it will be very pretty to embroider a design on the bands that will cover pretty well; or if braid is used as a finish for the neck and sleeves the band can be treated likewise.

A soft material like crepe or voile will make up well.

My Nicest Compliment

The Rare Jewel.

When a little child—mother impressed the beauty in truth-telling at all times, regardless of the cost to all concerned. My nicest compliment came from mother when I had been wrongly accused of doing something by some grown person. "When my little daughter comes home, I shall ask her; whatever she says I shall believe her for she has never told me an untruth."

To me, no wealth can compare to the beautiful faith mother had in me. E. W.

Learning Her Own Worth.

I am a household arts teacher in one of the high schools in this city. One day in the cooking class we were discussing the household arts teacher of another school and I said:

"I think they have one of the best cooking teachers in the city."

Whereupon one of my pupils exclaimed: "Why, I don't think so. I think we have that honor." E. Z.

Beauty That Is Heart Deep.

A friend of mine was sick in a hospital for several weeks and I visited her every afternoon. I always read something cheerful or told little jokes to help her while away the long and painful hours. The day she left for her distant home, she kissed me and said: "Bettie, I never thought before that you were even pretty, but now to me you are beautiful." I considered this a nice compliment, as I am far from being a beauty, and, furthermore, I know it. B. L. G.

Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger. People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and cathartics may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause lassitude.

You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Texas, suffered from constipation for six years and found no relief until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. Gus Anderson of Ball, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I want you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

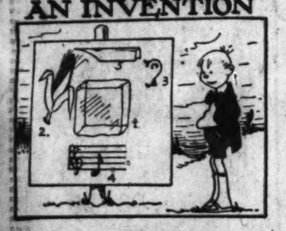
SUMMER GIRLS

Two little girls are just getting acquainted. Take all the letters in both names and arrange them to spell the full name of a famous female swimmer.

HARDWARE REBUS

Each of the four pictures represents an article of hardware. Can you guess what they are?

AN INVENTION



Five numbered objects are shown here. Print the names of the objects, one under the other in their proper order, and then see if you can make new words out of each of the five words you have by adding one letter in front of each word. If you add the right letters before the words you will have as the initial letters of the new words the name of one of the greatest inventions of modern times. What is it?

ANSWERS TO RIDDLES.

1. He's often turned down.
2. They are more partial to yarns.
3. A gossiper knocks before entering your home, and also after she's inside.
4. A ragman's. His business is always picking up.
5. They are usually hair raising.

NAMESTERS

Can you make up a sentence out of your first name? The first letter of each word in the sentence must spell your own first name. Here are two examples: [PHILIP.] Perfect Happiness In Life Is Pleasant. [PHILIP.] Doctor's Orders Rule in Sickroom. [DORIS.] The Tribune will pay $1 for every sentence published. Mail your sentence to NAMESTERS, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

RIDDLES.

1. Why is a young man courting a girl like the lights in the parlor where he courts her?
2. Why do girls like stories better than men?
3. Why is a gossiper the most polite person in the world?
4. What kind of business is always getting better and better?
5. Why do bald headed men like thrilling stories?

ANSWERS TO PUZZLES.

An Invention.

Answer: The names of the objects are Ice, Corn, Ear, Re, and Pen. The new words are R ice, A corn, D ear, I re, O pen. The invention is Radio.

Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club

THE MYSTERY BOX

By Raymond Kelly

SUCH a sniffing and smelling as went on around that box that the Gravel Pitters dug out of the sand in their new club-cave!

"How in dogdom shall we ever get at its insides?" asked Ginger.

"Unlock it," suggested Granger.

"But we haven't the key."

"I can get some keys," said Toodles. "The baby at our house has a lot of them strung on one of my old neck ribbons. You know; the ones I used to wear when I was a house pet instead of a regular dog. I'll get those keys, and we'll try them on this box."

So Toodles skipped away home and came back carrying that ribbon with all the keys jingling on it as he ran. But not a single one of them would even go into the keyhole of that box.

Then Wiggler the monkey had an idea. "If you please, sir," said he to Carlo, "I wouldn't want you to think I was forgetting my place, but why don't you keep the box for a club mystery? Then nobody would ever know what was in it, and everybody would wonder a lot about it. When you're wondering about something, you're never bored. That's the trouble with grownup humans. They know everything and haven't anything left to wonder about, and they're bored to death all the time. I know, being almost human myself."

"Yes, Wiggler," answered Carlo. "We've all noticed that, but I'm sure that no real Gravel Pit pup would be so unkind as to remind you of it. You are not to blame for your misfortune. We thank you for suggesting a mystery, but I for one will never be satisfied until I know what's in this box."

"I have it!" barked Wolf. "I have it! We'll take the box up to the edge of the pit and push it over. Then it'll break open and we'll see what's in it in a hurry."

"That's the idea," cried Ginger. "Come on, fellows. Let's get a rope"

They tied one end of that rope to the handle at one end of the box, and every mother's pup took hold of it with his teeth and pulled like a good fellow. The box was heavy and the path was steep, and every once in a while the box would catch on a stone, and then they would all have to stop and rest. Once, too, Toodles had to sneeze, and then of course every doggy sneezed, and when they did that they all let go of the rope and the box slid clear down into the pit again.

But finally, by pulling and hauling and then pulling some more, they got the box to the top of the path, and all sat down to rest a while. When they were all through panting they pushed and pulled and rolled the box to the place where the side of the pit was straight up and down, and where there was a big flat stone at the bottom.

"Heave," barked Carlo then, and every pup pushed as hard as he could. Over the cliff flew that box and landed on the rock with a big bang. The wood was so old that that blow turned it to powder and it blew away, and what was in the box lay there in a pile. And what do you think that was?

Bones. Lots of bones. Just dry bones. And there was a picture of a very cross looking dog with a patch on one eye. He was holding a long knife in his teeth, too On the picture was written:

"Pete, the pirate pup—his hoard. Paws off!"

"Whee!" said Ginger. "I bet that fellow never wagged his tail in his life. But these bones are away too dry to gnaw. What shall we do with them?"

"I move," said Granger, "that we plaster them into the fireplace. Then we'll always have them to remind us of what good times the pirates must have had." And that is just what the Gravel Pitters did.

Bright Sayings of the Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Joy had sadly missed her father, who had been east for a month. At last the morning came when she accompanied mother to meet her absent parent, and as the train drew into the station, daddy stepped from the coach clasping a joyous small daughter in close embrace. Joy breathlessly exclaiming, "O, daddy, this is the day I've lived for forever!" V. M. B.

Little Billy was especially fond of fried eggs. One day when company was present, this favorite dish of his was served. One egg remained and he wanted it, but he wanted to be a little gentleman, and so suffered in silence. After a while some one noticed him looking unusually thoughtful and apparently downhearted.

"Why, what's the matter, Billie?" inquired the sympathetic one.

"O, nothing," answered the heartbroken boy, "only I'm so lonesome for that other egg!" G. C. E.

Betty has blue eyes and yellow bobbed hair. We bought her a doll with blue eyes and yellow bobbed hair. One day while playing on the porch she laid the doll on the railing and it fell to the ground. When she picked it up she noticed the dirt that adhered to the doll's face and dress. Shaking it vigorously, she said: "Jimmie Jane if you weren't the perfect image and likeness of your mother, I'd spank you good." G. S.

Jackie had stumbled and hit his head against the table, but not wishing any one to think he was hurt, turned around and, patting it, said, "Poor ole table." J. H.

On her first visit to her cousin, Jean was served with a glass of red pop; after tasting it a few times, she asked:

"Have you a well that pumps like this?" A. A. H.

The twins were playing when quite suddenly Jane uttered a shrill scream, and an anxious aunty asked John if his sister was hurt. "O, no," he reassured her, "that's just the nature of her to scream." V. M. B.

Happy complained of his fingers hurting, and upon being questioned as to the exact locality of the pain, replied: "In the bendings." E. A. H.

Janie came to her mother and said she liked her little friend, Edward, who was very quiet, much better than she did George, who was boisterous. Her mother said, "Why do you like Edward better?" Janie said: "O mamma, he is so much tamer." C. J. W.

My daughter came into the kitchen for me to dress her, and, noticing that the weather had turned warmer, said: "mother, may I wear my bare knees today?" DOT.

There is a dairy farm near our city and the name of each cow is printed at the door of the separate stall. One day out there 5 year old Freddie looked up at the printed names and asked, "What is that?"

His father answered, "That is the name of the cow that belongs in each stall."

Said Freddy: "O, so they'll know where to go!" M. M.

Little Jim lived near a lake surrounded by shrubbery, where at times an echo was very distinct.

Soon after they moved there he was discovered out on the back steps giving an Indian warwhoop, then silence, then another blood curdling yell. His mother stepped hastily to the door and said, "Jim, what on earth are you yelling about?"

"Why, mother," he answered, "I was just trying to make my echo eek!" E. H. P.

Mother came home one day and found several boys in her yard. The inroads made on her cherry tree had already been considerable and would have increased to a damaging extent had she not appeared when she did. Mother spoke quietly and without impatience to the little fellows. Struggling to be calm, the smallest one said: "Lady, it's so hard to be good." L. E.

The LAND OF ELATION

HAVE you ever felt the elation of a complete change—in scene, in climate, in peoples, in even being beyond national boundaries? It's way beyond the feeling you get when just journeying from one city of the United States to another.

The elation of a complete change is what distinguishes

CANADA
—the country of irresistible summer resorts

Ask one who has sailed at Muskoka, canoed on Lake of Bays, camped at Timagami, fished in Algonquin Park, run the rapids of the St. Lawrence or parlez-voused in Quebec.

A vacation is only as joyous as the change it brings, and, on top of that, only a reasonable expenditure can crown the adventure.

The Grand Trunk Railway leads you to elation—to Canada—and provides very low tourist fares. If you'll give us your name we'll send to you a free guide to happiness and quote round-trip Summer fares.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

REPASTS OF THE SEASON.

At this season of the year there are endless spreads and luncheons given for school boys and girls, college boys and their girls, besides the bridegroom and his girl. Many of these are planned to honor a person or group of persons, and something unique is sought for the occasion.

At all times the real hostess likes to surprise her guests. By "real" I mean one who has become skilled in this sort of entertainment, by doing much of it, so that she knows what she can do well, what she can carry off well, and what she dares safely undertake. Those who are inexperienced sometimes rush in when neither their experience, their equipment, nor the help they can command is equal to the occasion.

Whether it has been hostess or host you will find in the annals of dining and banquet giving that they have liked to have the unusual. How to get it? Sometimes they will seek the advice of some one doing such work as I do, though the purpose of such work is to help as many as possible, and not to strive to help just one to do some original and unique thing.

Serving Something Different.

To the end that I might give some suggestions that would enable many a hostess of this hour to get up something out of the ordinary for the repast she is serving. I have read through a large number of pages giving accounts of freakish or more or less sensibly fantastic menus, under such titles as "Fantasies of Party Givers" (at different stages of the world's history), the ideas in which, in some cases, are coming into popularity again.

One of the first ideas that appealed to me was that of serving a bouquet of strawberries at each plate in this strawberry season. Years ago a wealthy man in New York who wanted to serve a tropical dinner in Lent had such, and each bunch of ten stems cost him $10, the whole dinner costing $175 per person or cover, with twenty courses. Quite barbarous, we think today, but there is another idea in the account that I think we might use for sun parlor luncheons. It says: "There was no cloth on the table. A beautiful palm leaf fan was placed on the table before each guest, and in these the plate rested."

We do not need to get beautiful palm leaf fans, but quite ordinary 10 cent ones for doilies and four for a center piece. This might be quite an idea since the fans might serve as place cards as well, and also be used for a type of souvenir—the autograph—that has always pleased school boys and girls—each guest writing his name on each fan.

"Notions in Ices."

Under the head "Notions in Ices"—a notion of forty years ago or so—is this: "At a Cinderella ball the ices, of the biscuit glacé form in paper cases, each contained a gift, either a small coin, a tiny thimble, a ring, or some of the pretty toylike patterns in silver brooches and watch charms, cornelian hearts, sparkling flowers in jewelry, all of the smallest description. The gifts were wrapped in transparent caramel paper, and pushed down at one side of the ice, and the outside of each case bore a motto."

It seems to me this sort of thing would be much appreciated by young boys and girls, but for that matter I have known of college youths and maidens, just a short time ago, being quite delighted with surprise ices not at all like this, but quite as childlike in conception.

Biscuits and Biscuit Glaces.

As to serving ices in the biscuit molds or forms, there is no way that is more convenient or economical. It is the way they are served at receptions, where hundreds or even thousands of guests are to be served. The unstirred ices, like the mousses, make the best "biscuits," because they can be manipulated well, and a quart might be made to serve twenty people, as against six in some other fashion, extended a bit with whipped cream or with a tiny layer of cake or how you will.

Finely crumbed macaroons, finely chopped nuts, bits of fruits, or something equal to a paste or puree of nuts or fruit—perhaps in a thick sirup—may be mixed with a rather common ice cream to make these cold biscuits, which are defined as "ice cream of any kind in a mold; especially small biscuits or cakes of ice cream in paper cases." Besides the fact that the word "biscuits" has several meanings, the term "biscuit glace" has two. One refers to these little cakes of ice cream, baking powder biscuit shape; the other to little sponge cakes, iced or glazed.

Decorating the Table.

There is a great difference of opinion about how to decorate tables, some of us particularly disliking almost any blossom save the rose, and any foliage that might harbor insects or have any odor. Just the other day I noticed a big bunch of gypsophila at a florist's, and thought of it as far lovelier than ferns for table use, and then I ran across the following forty-year-back description of "a pink rose dinner":

"One of the notions in table decorations is a pink satin tablecloth of the palest tone. Only eight inches of this are, however, visible, merely enough to allow room for the plates. All the rest of the table is hidden by gray gypsophila. In this is intermixed all tones of pink roses, from the lightest to the deepest shade. Those who have never tried the grassy gypsophila for decorating tables are recommended to do so, for it is both beautiful and durable."

A pretty white paper tablecloth would do well enough with such a cover for a children's party, and would go well with bouquets of strawberries. Instead of the strawberries sweet cherries on their stems might be used as the appetizer, and for entertainment there might be a little bouquet of toffe cherries. [See recipe below.]

Sweets May Predominate.

Since the sweet things are acceptable to the young, and since only a few housewives can make or command the services of those who can prepare elegant and surprising meat and vegetable dishes, these may seem to predominate, but by introducing as much fruit as possible into the repast it is made safer and less thirst provocative. One simple meat and one vegetable may accompany half a dozen gay sweets.

The pink lemonades are always delicious, and the means to make them pink are plentifully at hand in the shape of strawberries and cherries. To get the strawberry flavor and color clean and hull the berries, and for each cup allow one-fourth of a cup of powdered sugar. Put it over the berries, cover closely, and allow to stand for one hour. The berries may afterwards be cooked unless it is desirable to crush them, and have a punchlike drink, with oranges, etc. A little lemon juice may be added with the sugar to emphasize the flavor, and in the old days some wine was used and a bit of cinnamon, but only rarely, it seems to me, would there be any one who would like it as well as with strawberry as the plain sugar and lemon drawn juice.

Color for Lemonade.

One may get the cherry color and flavor for a lemonade in two ways. Cherry stones covered and allowed to stand with water give flavor and color, or the stoned fruit may be treated in just the same way that the strawberries are, and after the juice has been drawn out they can be cooked in a sirup.

It is important in drawing the juice out of fruit in this fashion that they be closely covered. Besides the possibility of dust settling on them if in the open they will weather or rust to some extent. In the case of apples and peaches we can see the rust or weathering, and taste it as well. Exposure to air just as surely weathers other cut or broken fruits as it does the apple and peach, as you can surely tell if your taste buds are observant.

Kisses.

There are many ways of getting surprises in kisses. One of them is by filling them with ices, and they are even baked with ices and called hot kisses and other names, and the facts about their origin disputed, but there is an idea in the following old recipe which might be varied by using a portion of cooked cream or candied fruit. The ancient recipe reads:

"Beat the whites of four eggs till

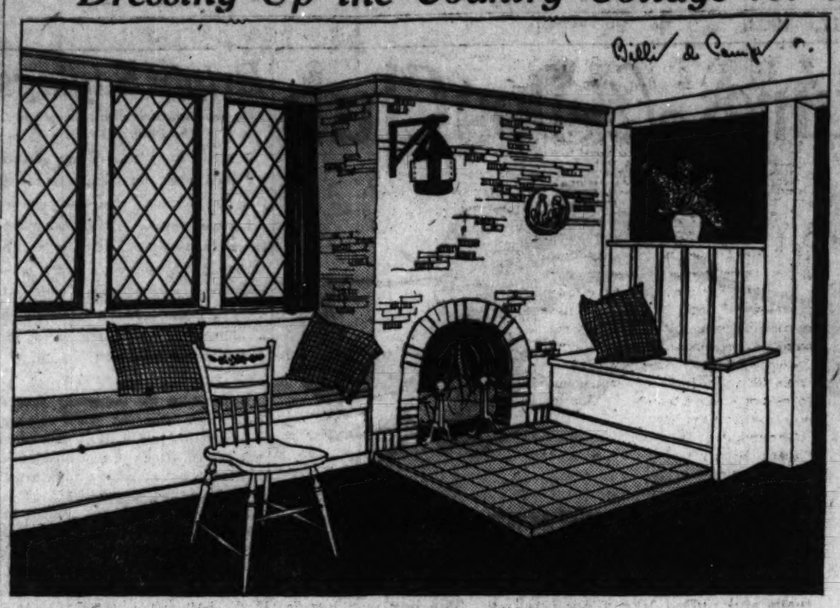
Dressing Up the Country Cottage for the Summer



Dining room fireplace lends note of hospitality.

By Anita de Campi.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

QUITE joyously we turn to the pleasant task of dressing up the country cottage. Its blinds are thrown open to the sunlight, and its doors opened to the cool, fresh air. We have decked its interior with gay colors and new materials, and it will be our playhouse for many gloriously happy days. No elaborate pieces of furniture, delicate colors, or fine silk and lacy materials have been introduced. Following the good example set by the English, we have coördinated sturdy fabrics and furnishings, and have congruously attained a homelike atmosphere.

Throughout the ground floor, except in the kitchen, the woodwork is painted American flag blue, and the walls are done in silver gray oatmeal paper, with pearl gray ceilings. In the little reception hall there is a quaint hatrack, painted to match the woodwork. Funny little steep stairs, leading directly from this room to the upper floor, have their uprights painted blue, and their treads a deep taupe, matching the color of the floors. There is a hall bench set against one wall, and a little table is placed just opposite the entrance door. A vase, filled always with flowers or branches from the surrounding woods, is kept on this table. Suspended from the center of the ceiling is an unusual, three sided, brass lantern.

In the living room there is a large carpet, woven of ore inch strips of sand colored canvas braid. Several wicker chairs have been painted jade green. A secretary desk is placed in the center of one wall space. There is a day bed, a trifle wider than the average, so that it may be used comfortably for sleeping purposes. It is painted black and has a cover of deep blue mohair. Accessory cushions for this and for the seats of the painted chairs are of gayly flowered chintz. Holding seven large sized candles is an old iron candelabrum which is kept on a narrow table.

The view around the cottage is unsurpassable. Opaque window curtains or draperies would be a crime. In order to save the room from the sense of bareness which the entire absence of window curtains usually gives, extremely transparent curtains have been used. These are made of bright yellow tarlatan! They are gathered at top and bottom on plain brass rods and stretched tight. The effect is quite pleasingly unusual.

Today's illustration shows one corner of the dining room. In this room there had been two pairs of double sash windows. These have been taken out, and changed for diamond paned, casement windows, in groups of three. One group faces an old apple orchard. Another overlooks a wide expanse of the deepest blue water, beyond which a velvety green island is just visible. Purely for the sake of decorative finish, a casement cloth curtain, edged with jade green and dark blue worsted fringe, hangs at the ends of each group of windows. A note of cheerfulness and hospitality is afforded by the big brick fireplace in one corner of the room. There is a square table, with dropleaf ends, so that it may be made quite long when both are raised. An old fashioned dresser advantageously displays a delightful set of china, decorated with a pleasant floral design. All of the furniture is painted straw color, with jade green edgings. Across the upper splat in the back of each of the chairs, a decalcomania floral has been transferred. This method of decorating has been regaining considerable favor lately. It is really quite effective, and simple to accomplish. The designs are bought on strips of paper and are transferred by means of a hot water process. Accessory cushions are of green and white checked gingham.

White oilcloth covers the walls of the tiny kitchen. Woodwork, table, and chairs are painted green. Instead of glass in the cupboard doors, wire screening, painted white, is used. The table has a white enameled top. Green and white linoleum covers the floor. The stove and cooking utensils are enameled white.

Upstairs there are four bedrooms, each opening on to the central hallway. In the hall is a white lambs' wool rug covered with flat embroidery in a Persian design, done in dull colored, fine worsteds. There is a huge cedar chest for the storage of bedding, table linens, and draperies during the winter months when the cottage is closed.

All of the bedrooms are attractively furnished in a delightfully summery style. The woodwork in each is painted old ivory. Both of the back rooms overlook the water. In one of them sheer ecru voile curtains the windows, so that the view, though it is slightly softened, is not obstructed, but is made even more mysteriously fascinating.

For the sake of privacy, there are roller shades, made of glazed chintz, in a floral pattern. They are scalloped across the ends and, during the day, are pulled down just far enough to serve as decorative lambrequins. The bed cover is of deep rose colored rep, matching the dominant note in the chintz. There is a double bed, a chest of drawers, a quaint little dressing table and bench, a comfortable wing chair, upholstered in glazed chints, and small bedside table. All of the furniture is painted sage green, high lighted with dull gold. The carpet is deep taupe.

For the windows in the other back room, the same ecru voile is used for curtains. The roller shades, though, are made of striped linen, in ecru, mauve, turquoise and lemon, edged with ecru linen fringe. In this room the furniture, which consists of a wardrobe, dressing table and chair, double bed, and large, comfortable wicker arm chair, is enameled a deep, dull turquoise. Floral motifs are painted on the panels of the wardrobe doors, on the dressing table drawers, and on the ends of the bed. Mauve colored rep is used for a bed cover and for a cushion in the wicker chair. The side walls are painted ecru, and there is a deep plum colored rug. Lemon silk lamp shades, edged with turquoise, are used on the dressing table candlesticks.

Majestic evergreen woods beyond a field of colorful wild flowers are viewed through the windows of the front rooms. In one room the walls are covered with tiny pink roses in a diaper patterned paper. Glass curtains are of white voile striped with pink, just matching the roses in the paper and the wild roses in the field beyond. The roller shades are of plain spring green glazed chintz and the bed cover is of green and white striped heavy linen. All of the furniture is painted old ivory and the rug is a deep moss green.

White voile with a small embroidered allover pattern in buttercup yellow curtains the other front bedroom. Blocked linen in gay colors on a strong colored ground is used for window shades. The furniture is painted corn yellow edged with leaf green. Peacock blue rep, trimmed with ecru and green upholsterers' fringe, is used for covers on the twin beds. The floor is covered with a deep peacock blue rug.

CERTO
(Surejell)

Crushed Strawberry Jam

For this jam it is necessary that each berry be broken up. Therefore, crush about 2 quarts ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is mashed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb the sugar during the short boil. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into large kettle, add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute, remove from fire and stir in ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) CERTO. From time jam is taken off fire allow to stand not over 5 minutes, by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime skim, and stir occasionally to cool slightly. Then pour quickly. If in open glasses paraffin at once. If in jars seal at once and invert for 10 minutes to sterilize the tops.

Use same recipe for Raspberry, Blackberry or Loganberry jam.

Pineapple and Strawberry Jam

Crush well about 1 qt. ripe berries. Put pineapple through food cutter, or chop very fine. Measure 2 level cups (1 lb.) of each into large kettle. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute, remove from fire and stir in ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) CERTO. Skim and pour quickly.

MEN'S FASHIONS

ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR BATHING

By A. T. Gallico.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—Along with the discovery of a new crop of germs to make us eye our drinking water suspiciously and breathe with caution the bug-laden atmosphere, one of the latest pronunciamentos is to the effect that the so-called "healthy coat of tan" isn't healthy at all. This seems quite reasonable in view of the fact that we consider it injurious to the system to sit for any length of time in a burning building. Why we should think it healthy to subject the skin to all the early stages of incineration is more than we can say. At any rate, the hotel luggage label is more and more replacing the sunburn as evidence of an expensive vacation. Hence the beach robe.

But wait! These same medical savants have excommunicated the sniffle. The cold, it seems, is the root of all evil, and the sneeze is the warning honk by which you recognize the presence of someone you are going to avoid. Avoid colds, say the doctors, and you destroy the foundation of much physical misery.

Hence, once more, the beach robe. I might go on to suggest that an attractive appearance on the beach is as important as a sterling front on Michigan boulevard. Gay colored garments brighten up the dull sands. As much color as a bathing suit or a beach robe will take is not too much for the water front, and conservatism drops away as soon as sack suit, collar and tie are exchanged for a swimming suit.

Not all of us are fortunate enough to live where either our front lawn or our back yard runs down to the water's edge. We must travel for our swim, and when we leave the house ready for bathing, a beach robe is the best protection, whether we walk or motor. Let it not be supposed that a beach robe is some strange and unusual piece of wearing apparel differing radically from the average bath robe. The same terry cloth garment which shelters you from bedroom to bathroom in your home may serve as protection before and after your swim. One merely calls it beach robe instead of bath robe when it passes the threshold of the front door.

However, there has been anaugurated this season a new note in outer garment for the bathing costume, and one which is so sensible that it will doubtless take root and stay indefinitely. The difference appears immediately with the name itself. This new affair will be called a beach coat instead of robe. I saw some at a shop which caters to men who are partly responsible for the creating and adopting of new styles—Palm Beach visitors, and such. These beach coats were of terry cloth, but knee length and double breasted. The effect was much trimmer and more remote from bedrooms and bathrooms than the longer article. It is the shoulders and back that need the protection of a wrap, not the lower legs, and so the difference in length should not matter.

However, the full length robes will still prevail at the beaches, for it takes men a long time to catch on to new things, and there are some who would not change at any price. The most practical and most popular materials for summer robes are terry cloth or flannel. The terry cloth is especially good for beach purposes, because being of the stuff that bath towels are made of, the robe acts as a drier as well as a covering, and so takes away that uncomfortable post-swim dampness to some extent.

The disadvantage of terry cloth is that it is bulky and takes up a great deal of space in a suitcase or trunk, if you are planning to take your swims while away on a trip. Flannel comes to the rescue in the case of limited packing space. It takes up much less room than terry cloth, and yet is warm and an adequate protection. Flannel robes are obtainable in such attractive colorings and patterns that in this respect they are as desirable as terry robes. I have seen flannel gowns in gay wide stripes of red and white, or blue and white, or other vivid stripings, that rival the beach awnings in their festive appearance.

Robes which take up still less space in a suitcase are those of mohair and silk, but they are not as popular a beach wear as the aforementioned terry cloth and flannel. Mohairs are neat and come in attractive color schemes, but they are not water absorbing, nor do they offer much warmth when one is chilly after a swim. Silk is hardly any protection at all as a beach robe, if one is going into the water.

It is not necessary to have a robe especially for the purpose of beach wear. If you use a regular bath robe, it can serve double duty as beach and bath robe. Especially if you are vacationing and saving trunk space, you will not want two robes along with you. Terry cloth, flannel, silk, or other summer robe is correct for beach, Pullman car, or hotel corridors.

The Queerest Boss I Ever Had

Close with His Eggs.

For fifteen years I have worked as switchboard girl in a large factory. My boss' hobby is raising fancy chickens on the rear grounds.

After hours I gather and sort the eggs, sometimes as many as twelve dozen a day. In all these years he has never offered me so much as one egg. Once I hinted that in order to keep on the job the doctor said I should eat fresh eggs. Whereupon my queen boss gave me the name of a place where I could buy them. C. G.

Hobby Is Firing.

Mine is certainly a queer boss. During my two years' employment here he has had about twenty other stenographers besides myself. One time I asked him what the idea was in firing all these girls, who were all experienced in their line of work, and keeping me all this while, who was only a beginner. He said they weren't good in their work, but told the girls themselves when they were leaving that they were satisfactory and that he would give them a good reference. Still he keeps on firing them, and it certainly is beyond me to see why he does so. P. D. C.

Paging Lady Luck.

My queerest boss had the habit of walking around his chair when things were not going just right. He would get up in the middle of an important conversation to do this stunt. His business associates all knew of his superstition, but I could hardly suppress a giggle when I first saw him. He believed that if it brought luck in cards it would work in other ways. J. B.

Are the Psychiatrists Missed.

The queerest boss I ever had made all of us in the office each afternoon rise from our seats and bow to him, then to one another, then sit down and rise again, repeating the same for a half hour. S. W. G.

One Necessary Qualification.

My queerest boss had an office in St. Louis. Every employé had a wrist watch. I remember when I inquired for a position the first question asked was, "Have you a wrist watch?" There was no office clock. He himself had a tiny wrist watch. The reason for the watches never was apparent. F. R. G.

A Definition—

"CELLUCOTTON—a very soft absorbent made of Cellulose fibre; similar to ordinary cotton in its whiteness, but absorbs much more rapidly and holds sixteen times its weight in moisture. First used in field hospitals in France, and proved so hygienic and efficient that it is now used in a majority of hospitals in the United States. Kotex, a superior sanitary pad, now available to women everywhere, is made of this wonderful absorbent—the most important recent contribution of science to women's welfare."

Kotex (the only sanitary pads made of Cellucotton) are easy to dispose of and cheap enough to throw away. Sold in good stores everywhere that serve women.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

LONELINESS.

MY WONDERFUL BOY: The short time that you have been away seems an eternity to me. For the hours have rolled so slowly, and the days have seemed so long. Each ray of sunshine is a remindance of your sunny presence—and, O, Dan!—how my heart longs for you. But I am trying hard to be brave, for I know it is for me, dear, that you are away.

Through the day, as I roam with "Black Beauty" among these great western hills, I try to scan their vast distance to that far away eastern city where you are, and wonder; do you ever have time to think of me in its hurry and flurry.

As I write these sacred words the golden sun is sinking behind the far distant hills, and it is twilight, Dan, the hour when I want you most. And often, when the stars have sheathed the heavens and the moon is reigning in its celestial glory, I wander down in "lovers' lane"—as we did, you and I, Dan—and in my dreary loneliness my lips seek the little sparkling ring—that is the light o' my life, and the sunshine of my day, and I pray in my heart, God bless you and keep you safe, my love, until you enfold me again in your strong, tender arms.

Your lonely sweetheart,
ALAINE.

More Beautiful— and Less Expensive

Your baby can have a lovelier carriage today than ever before. Not only is it more graceful in its curving, unbroken lines, and flawless in its weaving; it is less expensive.

The remarkable Lloyd Loom—the invention of Marshall B. Lloyd—is responsible for this transformation in baby carriages. It weaves a smooth, strong, endless strand of finest wicker into a graceful bowl shape, without seams, corners or short ends. And, because it weaves thirty times as fast as hands, a Lloyd Loom Carriage can be bought for a lower price than has ever before been asked for a fine baby carriage.

The only carriage woven in desired shape from one endless wicker strand.

Don't accept a substitute. Find the Lloyd nameplate on the seat.

Every feature contributes strength, beauty and convenience—the resilient, oil-tempered springs; fifth wheel reversible gear; continuous steel pushers; special wheels; patented automatic hood adjustment; sturdy construction to resist hard wear; handsome corduroy upholstery; lasting enamel finish.

Good dealers everywhere can show you Lloyd Loom Carriages.

stiff and then stir in one pound of powdered sugar [sift it] one table spoon at a time, and add twelve drops of essence of lemon. Lay a wet sheet of paper on a square pan, and drop at equal distances a teaspoonful of stiff currant jelly with a little sugar and egg under each one. Then pile the froth so as to cover each lump of jelly, as round as possible. Set in a cool oven, and when colored they are done. Place the two bottoms together, lay them lightly on a sieve, and dry in a cool oven until they stick together."

The way to learn to make kisses is to begin with one egg white, and if you want to be sure it will be palatable mix a few chopped walnuts with it and flavor with a few drops of vanilla. Once get started and you can work infinite variations from rocks to meringue shells or imitation mushrooms, etc.

Toffie.

The old fashioned toffie has new life in the lollipop on a stick. It is one of the quickest of candies to make, and while it is hot you can manipulate it in various ways, making little rounds that look like cherries into which you can stick a toothpick, which will come out readily when the knob is eaten. Toffie made of the lightest moist sugar, which is really canary color instead of brown, has a delicious flavor made by this genuinely old recipe: Melt three ounces of butter in a stew pan, add one pound of moist sugar, stir well over a slow fire, boil one quarter of an hour, pour out on buttered dishes, and mark in squares. This will granulate if you try to use any water, and you must know when to stop stirring. If it should granulate, melt it up to a sirup for pudding sauce, or save for scrap caramels.

Grilled Almonds.

There are reasons why grilled almonds are better for party use than salted almonds, and they are exceedingly palatable, and keep well in a tin box, from which you get a most alluring odor when it is opened. Dry thoroughly one cup of blanched almonds. Cook one cup of granulated sugar with one-fourth cup of water to 238 degrees or until it threads, and then put in the dried almonds. Stir them occasionally, as they cook, until they take a delicate golden brown color before the sirup begins to change color. It changes so quickly that it should be closely watched and taken from the fire at the first sign, then stir the almonds rapidly in the sirup until it sugars. The almonds will be irregularly covered.

10 Big Stores and a Monster Fleet of Trucks Are Required to Handle Our Immense Patronage

Thirty-one years ago, at 4614 Wentworth Avenue, we opened the little store shown in the circle at the center of this advertisement. Today we are the largest retail furniture dealers in Chicago. Ten big stores and a monster fleet of fast motor trucks are kept busy supplying our tremendous patronage of over half a million satisfied customers. The GENERAL FURNITURE COMPANY operates Chicago's Greatest Chain of Furniture Stores, an institution that has grown to its present greatness while others have seemed to stand still. And the end is not yet in sight, the day is not far off when the GENERAL will be the largest furniture concern in America. Two more stores are now under construction and their locations will be announced as soon as they are completed. Moreover, other stores will be added as fast as our ever-increasing patronage justifies us in doing so. A GENERAL FURNITURE COMPANY truck at your door is a sign of economy; it means high quality of merchandise delivered on time at prices you can well afford.

Do Some Touring HERE

Drive into these new highways at any point, Toronto to Chicago, and you'll find new beauties and summer pleasures to attract you.

2000 Miles of New Paved Roads

Not till this summer have fine roads been available through this delightful region, north of the older east and west highways. Whether you plan your main route here or elsewhere, include some part, at least, of this charming summer playground.

The Lake Erie-Niagara Falls Trail: From Toronto to Niagara and Buffalo—each of the three cities a centre of a great vacation territory—is but the beginning. Through the lakes and resorts of Western New York and of Northern Ohio are hundreds of attractions on both main routes and by-paths. Cleveland is another inviting point; many famous beaches and lake resorts are in easy reach as you drive on to Toledo and the north. At Detroit are innumerable playgrounds, and here is the door to the wonderland of Michigan resorts on The Michigan Trail. Any of these places will easily provide a week's—or a fortnight's—delightful vacationing.

The Tour-Book, with Good Maps, is Free

Write for it today—before you do any further planning for your vacation. A post card will do—to The Great Lakes Tours Association, at Detroit, or at Buffalo, or at Petoskey, Mich.—whichever is nearest.

A Thousand Vacations in One

The Most Glorious Experience of a Lifetime

For gratifying a love of adventure in foreign lands—there is nothing to compare with

A Cruise Around the World

Life, as it has been lived for centuries—as it is lived today by strange people in strange lands—opens wide before you. Such a Cruise is a thousand vacations in one—more fascinating, more satisfying, than all other vacations put together.

A venturesome journey a few years ago, fraught with infinite question and questionable pleasure, except to the adventurer. Today, under the experienced management of the American Express Travel Department, a Cruise Around the World is luxuriously comfortable, wholly delightful, easily attainable; and at a cost little more than expense covering the same time at home.

All that is necessary is the desire to go, and a little personal anticipation and forethought in making arrangements as to time and expense.

The S. S. FRANCONIA, newest of the Cunard Liners, built especially for long distance cruising with all the luxuries of an exclusive club, has been chartered by the American Express Company for its next Cruise Around the World. Sailing from New York the 15th of November, the Cruise covers 30,000 miles—leisurely—in 133 days; returning to New York, March 27th, 1924.

Details, deck plan, prices and illustrated book of the Cruise are now ready. Secure this literature. Look it over carefully. It will fascinate you. See how easily all arrangements are made. Experienced travel representatives of the American Express will answer all your questions and give you every assistance in perfecting your plans.

The perfect facilities of the American Express Travel Department, with its own offices and local representatives around the world to prepare the way, must convince you of its ability to carry out the idea as it should be carried out, and give you the most glorious experience of your life.

Get the full details now. The Franconia party will be limited—a party of unusual prominence assured.

Thirty years of use around the world have made these Cheques the insured money of all nations. Acceptable everywhere, spendable anywhere, they are never questioned, never discounted. SAFE, convenient, simple, and handy to use, they are an absolute necessity to the traveler abroad.

Besides, they are your business and your social, as well as your financial passports—since they command the world wide service of the American Express chain of international offices—a service so varied, so helpful, so personally American, that 90% of American travelers abroad always use it.

American Express offices are the American's headquarters abroad. Thru them his mail and cables find him quickly wherever he is. They are his banking centres; his travel bureaus of information, where railway, steamship and hotel reservations are secured, passport intricacies settled, possible legal difficulties straightened out, etc. In fact, the seat of a seeming magician, so marvelously has their power and will to serve been developed. Socially these offices are the American's Club the world over—making it possible for him to know who is who wherever he is.

As an additional safeguard, and for greater convenience, use the $250 and $500 American Express Travelers Cheque Exchange Orders. These Orders are convertible into regular Travelers Cheques of smaller denominations without extra cost at American Express offices.

'Our Gang' at Funniest in 'Pleasant Journey'

"A PLEASANT JOURNEY."
Produced by Paine.
Directed by Robert McGowan.
Presented at outlying theaters.
THE GANG.
Sunshine Sammy, Mickey Daniels, Jackie Davis, Jackie Condon, Mary Kornman, Little Farina.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

Maybe Sunday isn't any day to be chronicling the doings of the terrible kidlets who play in the "Our Gang" comedies, but I haven't had as much fun in a long time as I did watching "A Pleasant Journey." SO, it didn't—doesn't—seem a bad idea to slip the good [bad?] word along to you — don't miss these baby dreadfuls when they come to your neighborhood!

That you may know them — "Sunshine" Sammy is a small, black, fast worker, with his Aunt Jemima's own smile; Little Farina is a wee Topsy, also a fast worker, guaranteed by the press agent to know only three words, "Whoa!" and "Hot Dawg," which he picked up during one wonderful afternoon, when he was permitted to watch an animal picture being filmed.

Mickey Daniels is the proud possessor of more freckles and less teeth than Wesley Barry. Jackie Davis, brother of Mildred Davis, is usually at swords' points with Master Daniels regarding same, it being a matter of pride in the Davis family that if the Davis freckles were counted, including those on the neck, they would stack up as more than the Daniels galaxy.

Jackie Condon, 3 years old, is the wistful baby. Little Mary Kornman is the wee vamp.

Supporting this remarkable cast are a number of animals, headed by a sad faced bull dog that can do everything but speak the human language.

Gang Supplants the Runaways.

In "The Pleasant Journey" the gang, through the medium of low cunning, find themselves on a Pullman in charge of a bachelor who does not like children.

"Sticky little things!" he says to the lady of his heart, who, much to his disgust, finds her favorite indoor and outdoor sport in children's welfare work.

The lady, about to return with four runaways to their home, falls over a roller skate, spraining her ankle. To her fiancé she intrusts the little darlings.

Now the runaways don't want to go to San Francisco and "the gang" DOES.

Realizing that the fiancé has never seen the children he is to chaperon, a great impersonation takes place whereby the runaways remain in town and the gang are loaded on the train. Including the sad faced bulldog, which is ordered to and put in the baggage car, from which he escapes to the Pullman by means known only to himself and his master.

Those given to making journeys don't half appreciate the possibilities of a sleeping car. My goodness, the things one CAN do to enliven a dull trip if one happens to have the ears, the hands, the feet, and the ingenuity displayed by all members of "Our Gang"!

Also—is business dull? "Sunshine" Sammy and Little Farina can give you the low down on how to "stimmelate" it.

And are you down-hearted? Shucks! What's the use of even taking time to think about what makes you that way, when there are so many marvelous things one CAN do instead of think—which may, perhaps, make the other fellow think, but then, you should worry about his mind working overtime.

You certainly have to hand it to Mr. McGowan, the Hollywood's Elite Adorn Los Angeles Kennel Show

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—The gay and thrilling note of summer was reached Saturday afternoon in the Hotel Ambassador at the dog show of the Los Angeles Kennel club and in the scenic open air plunge near by.

A garden of colors it was—bright enamel colors to vie with the white of the sunshine. Sports costumes of every brave shade, bits of chiffon tied around the ankle. Streamers of green or scarlet fluttered from turbans. Sunshades from France and Japan. The gaud of the west and the gaud of the east.

DORIS MAY.

Not even the arena filled with barking pedigrees could take from the splendor of the sight.

The film famous came toward tea time, as they have but a half holiday, along with their lesser sisters. That means only those who are working—but everybody is working now. The colony resembles the 1919 boom, with salaries boosted until you wouldn't believe the real figures.

Of a chic, as the fashion magazines say, was Doris May in a blue sport model, trimmed in cut steel beads, with a black straw hat boasting a rosette of white. Blue slippers and stockings completed her costume.

Elinor Fair, who was playing nursemaid to her pet chow, looked quite lovely in gray with a fox scarf of a deeper shade.

A lettuce green sports costume was seen on Ella Hall. It was a three piece affair, with a contrasting lining to the short cape.

Bessie Love wore a hand drawn dress of white voile, a rose taffeta hat, and blue slippers and stockings. White gauntlets with the sleeveless gown added a note of interest.

Producers Exhibit Thoroughbred Dogs.

Marguerite de La Mott was dressed entirely in white, a small turban, a one piece frock, and a huge white fox scarf.

Al and Charles Christie, comedy producers, and Buster Keaton offered prizes. They also exhibited thoroughbreds from their kennels.

The bathing suits offered novel accessories. A cunning rubber duck in which to carry the wet suit was used by Jacqueline Logan.

But not all filmdom may attend dog shows, however interesting. A few loyal souls must watch the home fires around the hearths and hearts of Pola Negri and Charley Chaplin.

Volume 1, chapter 56, of this romance tells Pola's admission to an interviewer that all was well and that the reason her portrait by Tad Styka hung in her home, not Charley's—she had given the picture to him as a gift—was that they were awaiting the building of their own home.

Pola understands Americans better now, and the next picture she makes she will throw her arms around the electricians and warble, "O, what nice lights you make!"

The twain startled all Hollywood recently by taking a chaperon to Cocoanut Grove!

This chaperon business startled the cinemese. Would they all have to hire chaperons, even the betrothed? Dorothy Devore and Vera Stedman couldn't decide which of the two would officiate in that capacity. They are going to New York, and Dorothy claims that she is a traveled young lady—came all the way from Texas to Hollywood alone. Vera has never been outside the mountain walled city, but is the mother of a year old daughter.

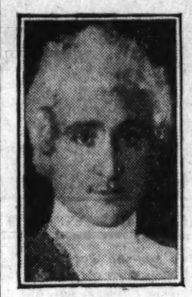
Lovely Ravinia's New Season Near at Hand

By Edward Moore.

RAVINIA'S opening for the new summer season is close at hand. To be exact, it will be next Saturday night, and the golden throated singers, the famous conductors, and the great Chicago Symphony orchestra are assembling, ready for the first notes of the ten weeks of great joy that is about to transpire at the lovely garden of art on the north shore.

Circumstances over which neither Mr. Eckstein nor any one else hereabouts had any control have, however, made a new opening bill necessary. Elisabeth Rethberg was to have made her first appearance in this part of the country as Mimi in "La Boheme," but instead of that attraction, Graziella Pareto, Tito Schipa, and Giuseppe Danise will sing in "La Traviata." At that, it is an inaugural well worth your attention, even though it is not the one originally planned.



GIACOMO LAURI-VOLPI,
Newcomer to Ravinia from the Metropolitan.

The full story of the change rests upon nothing greater than a single letter of the alphabet, a matter which might almost have made a theme for a story by O. Henry. Miss Rethberg departed on her own affairs for Europe some weeks ago, as soon as her engagements in the east had been completed. Shortly thereafter Mr. Eckstein cabled her to the effect that the Ravinia season would open June 23, that she was down for the first performance, and that a rehearsal would be necessary a week in advance.

Ravinia Gains by Complications.

Now, June, in German, is "Juni" and July is "Juli." After considerable cabling to and fro, it finally developed that when the original cablegram reached Miss Rethberg it read "Juli," and that she had made her plans accordingly. Meanwhile, there had been some intervening complications of passports, steamship passage, and what not, and by the time the clouds had all been rolled away Miss Rethberg discovered that June 26 was the earliest date that she could reach this country. So she will be a deferred pleasure for Ravinia.

But, as I have just said, "La Traviata" with Pareto, Schipa, and Danise is nothing at which to uplift an eyebrow in scorn. Miss Pareto won a few regiments of friends by her performance of Violetta at Ravinia last summer; so did Mr. Denise as the elder Germont; while Mr. Schipa has proved several times at the Auditorium that he outranks the rest of the world as the younger Germont. Gennaro Papi will conduct, and Louis d'Angelo, Anna Correnti, Paolo Ananian, Giordano Paltrinieri, Philine Falco, Louis Derman, and Max Toft will comprise the rest of the cast.

The second night of the season will also be of high importance, for Florence Easton and Morgan Kingston will be the Elsa and the Lohengrin of the Wagner opera that takes its name from the tenor rôle. It is to be in German, with a later performance coming in English. Lohengrin is counted to be among Mr. Kingston's best rôles, and Miss Easton is declared by those who have heard her at the Metropolitan to be probably the best of the Elsas. She has never sung the part in this section of the country.

First Appearance for Telva.

Another interesting first appearance will take place in this performance. Marion Telva, Metropolitan contralto and never before heard in this neighborhood, will be the Ortrud. She is said, also on the authority of ear witnesses, to have a voice of richness and power, and to be as much at home in Wagnerian as Italian rôles. Mark Oster, who sang last winter with the Civic Opera company at the Auditorium, will be the Telramund, and Desiré Defrere, of long service in the

Romance of Theater Still Flourishes, Critic Holds

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The anxious lady who writes to protest that the romance of the theater is fading; that all plays are men's plays; that not once in a blue moon is she thrilled in the playhouse, as once she was, when men were heroes and women were worth their winning, is not without a reasonable argument.

But neither is she altogether fair to the theater and the writers therefor. It is still a woman's world inside the playhouse. Not one play in a dozen is without its romance of the very type the lady believes she misses, though many of them are more artfully disguised than they used to be.

JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS.

Of the ten plays we selected as representing the best of the theatre's contributions this season, not one of them is without its romance, though none of them is juvenile or foolish.

In "Rain," for example, the lady is one who wears a scarlet letter into the South Seas, where it attracts the attention of a bigot in missionary clothing. Thereafter this heroine is forced to fight for her soul. In the end the lady wins and the missionary, damned by his contact with the world and the flesh, slashes his own throat and goes forward in the spirit to make his peace with God.

There is not much of the romance that is sweet and pretty in this story, I'll admit. Such as there is concerns an honest marine who is willing to marry the scarlet heroine without question; to take her "as is," so to speak. And yet "Rain" has the most definite romantic grip of all the season's plays, and probably gave the protesting lady the thrill of her middle years.

"Loyalties" One of Ten Worth Whiles.

"Loyalties" is another of the ten with little of the old time romance in its story. And yet there is nothing finer than the particular type of loyalty declared by the guilty captain's young wife, who is willing to stick to him through to the end of everything, even after his guilt as a thief is proved.

In "Icebound" the romance is more familiar, being that of a poor relation who inherits a family fortune, together with a letter asking her to use the money to help the black sheep of the flock find himself. She keeps the boy out of jail and at work until he becomes a fairly decent sort of critter. But he still is what the West knows as an "ornery cus" when she marries him, and she admits she is taking a chance with her happiness. It may last a month or a year. But she is game. Here again, I think, is romance with a newer and saner twist than the older plays used to give us.

In "You and I" there is a splendidly romantic story. But instead of seeking to interest his audience in the conventional love affair of a pair of excited young animals come suddenly upon the mating season, Philip Barry, the author, presents the case of a young girl who realizes that if she marries the boy next door he will give up a career in architecture, for which he is admirably fitted, and go in for the manufacture of soap, as his father, who had wanted to be an artist, had done before him. She gives him up rather than have him make the sacrifice—gives him up, at least, until the last act. And there is a deeper thrill in their romance than in most, because it has the vitality of truth.

"Why Not?" Stuffed with Romance.

"Why Not?" is Jesse Lynch Williams' amusing story of the two husbands who legally traded wives, and two wives who traded husbands, that all four might be happy, and it is stuffed with romance.

'Peter Weston' Wins Vote for 'Best Play'

By Sheppard Butler.

TWO weeks ago readers of this department were invited to express their views as to the merits of the season's theatrical offerings. Opinions were asked regarding the identity of the six best plays, the six best musical entertainments, the worst play, and the worst musical entertainment.

The polls are now closed (though ballots are still coming in) and the votes have been counted. Here is your verdict:

FRANK KEENAN,
actor of the name part in "Peter Weston," voted the year's best play.
[National Photo.]

THE BEST PLAYS.

1—"Peter Weston," the drama by Frank Dazey and Leighton Osmun, in which Frank Keenan acted for twelve weeks at the Harris.

2—"He Who Gets Slapped," the curious fantasy by Leonid Andreyev, which the New York Theater guild imported from Russia and which Richard Bennett acted, in Chicago, at the Playhouse.

3—"Loyalties," by John Galsworthy, which had a brief and financially disappointing engagement at Powers', but evidently was keenly appreciated by those who saw it.

4—The Moscow Art Theater's four plays at the Great Northern, which, for the purpose of this vote, it seemed fair to group under a single heading.

5—"Thank-U," Winchell Smith and Tom Cushing's comedy of small town types, played for twenty-two weeks at the Cort.

6—"For All of Us," William Hodge's play, acted by him for twenty-eight weeks at the La Salle and the Studebaker.

THE BEST MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

1—"Sally," Mr. Ziegfeld's gay musical comedy for Miss Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol, not long since departed from the Colonial.

2—The "Music Box Revue," the lively pageant which occupied the Colonial earlier in the season.

3—"Bombo," Al Jolson's show at the Apollo.

4—"Blossom Time," the operetta based on Franz Schubert's life and melodies which came first to the Apollo and is now being sung at the Great Northern.

5—"Shuffle Along," the musical comedy written and performed by colored folk, for many weeks an occupant of the Olympic.

6—"The Perfect Fool," Ed Wynn's background for his own nonsense at the Illinois.

THE WORST PLAY.

"The Rubicon," Henry Baron's adaptation from the French of Edouard Bourdet, played at the Olympic early in the season by Miss Estelle Winwood and some others.

THE WORST MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT.

"Spice of 1922," briefly visible last December at the Studebaker.

Not All What You Might Have Expected.

A diverting cross section, here, of playgoing preferences, characterized by a number of curious matters, such as—

That "Loyalties" should have been acclaimed by popular vote, though its sponsors thought Chicago sadly neglected the play when it was in town;

That "He Who Gets Slapped" should run second, though Mr. Bennett, when he played it here, berated his audiences nightly for lack of appreciation;

That "Thank-U" should have been included among the six best, to the exclusion of Frank Craven's "The First Year," which they esteemed in the east a far better comedy, and

That "The Cat and the Canary," which had the record run of the season and, presumably, was seen and liked by more people than any other play, should find no place among the winners at all. This amiable thriller is well down among the also-rans—in twelfth place, to be exact.

After the six "best plays," Clemence Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement" rolled up the largest vote. Next, in order, came "The First Year," Somerset Maugham's "The Circle," O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape," and the Vincent Lawrence

Old Reliable Secures a Tenant on the Crop and Credit System

By Harris Dickson

OLD RELIABLE had the Colonel foul, his head thrown back and helpless.

"Better quit yo' wigglin'," Zack warned him. "You's liable to git cut. Shet yo' mouf." One swipe of a shaving brush kept his victim's lips closed tighter than a bear trap, while the planter dared not speak for fear of getting his mouth full of soap. This was Zack's hour of joy, an hour to uncork his bottled-up conversation and dish out a monologue:

"Cunnel, I done fixed all 'rangements to let Wash Miller have twenty acres o' yo' bottom land. Wash say dat hill land which he been 'tendin' is so po' 'twon't make bricks. He's plum wore out wid hoppin' clods an' pullin' de bellcord over a mule whar it's onpossible to raise cotton. Huh! He can't even raise a disturbance on dat land. 'Sides dat, Wash says deducks gits al his cotton."

"Ducks?" the planter sputtered a protest. "I never heard of ducks eating cotton. I——"

A swath of foamy lather stopped his mouth while Old Reliable resumed:

"No suh, Cunnel, Wash never claimed de ducks et his cotton, not 'zackly et it. Here's how 'twas: Y'onderstan' Wash ain't got no land of his own, so he's bound to rent some an' make a crop on credick. Furthermo' him an' de fambly is got to eat ontil dat cotton gits picked. Durin' de fambly is got to eat ontil dat cotton gits picked. Durin' de fambly is got to eat ontil dat cotton gits picked. Durin girl, who takes the enamored Merton from the prairies and makes a successful comedian of him when he thinks he is being a serious actor, is romantic to the hilt. The dramatically fantastic "R U R," relating the adventure of a young woman who visits an island whereon artificial human beings are manufactured, and falls in love with the superintendent of the works at the end of the first act, is admittedly precipitate and decidedly different—but it still is romantic then and thereafter, when the mechanical people rise and completely wipe out the human race.

Romance Still the Main Theme in the Theater

So there is romance in Don Marquis' "The Old Soak," in the patient martyrdom of the bibulous one's wife.

And there are three romances, or the framework of three, in Rachel Crothers' "Mary the 3d." The romance of the grandmother Mary, who grabbed a husband and happiness at the expense of her "independence"; the romance of mother Mary, who took a commercially promising youth and began an artist chap get away, and, finally, the romance of the present day Mary, who seeks constructive experience by starting on a camping trip with two of her boy admirers, unchaperoned, that she may judge what sort of husbands they would make under adverse living conditions.

Some Robbed of Charm.

These are different romances than my correspondent has been used to in the theater, admittedly. And I agree with her that frequently the strain to evolve a new and startling situation robs the play of a possible old fashioned charm.

In "Fools Errant," for example, Louis Evan Shipman, the author, became involved with a story in which "A," the hero, being in love with "B," who was married to "C," decided to marry "D," who was "C's" mistress, to make "B" happy. After which he took the mistress "D" west, where minds are broad, and fell so deeply in love with her himself that when "B," having been widowed between acts, came to claim him she found him tagged and taken. A unique twist to romance, this one by the editor of Life, but far too complicated to stand the test of a restless audience.

Then there was that twisted but true romance Arthur Richman worked into "The Awful Truth"—the one in which the divorced wife played by Ina Claire, wanting to marry a gentleman with a puritanical aunt, must send for her divorced first husband to give her a character. That was rather neatly done, and should have satisfied any one. And still it was new. True, it was the divorced first husband the lady wanted to win back all the time, but even that has a suggestion of novelty.

James Forbes tried to give a new twist to an old fashioned domestic romance and the infernal triangle by letting the wife, in "The Endless Chain," offer her soul for sale to her husband's employer. Thus she hoped to buy her husband's advancement with the firm. But having put the wife in that situation he could not find any convincing way of getting her out again. To bring about a needed climax the husband had to catch her with a blank check in her hand signed by the employer, just after she had spent one entire emotional scene convincing him (the husband) that he had no reason to suspect her. And this was a little more than the audience would accept. The straining for drama snapped the interest and the play went to pot.

Extravagant Romance Fatal.

There was another romance that was too extravagant to live. That was in a comedy called "Banco," produced by William Harris Jr., with Lola Fisher and Alfred Lunt playing the leads. In this one a wife, growing tired of her husband's passion for playing baccarat, decided to pit her stubbornness against his and sent him word she would not leave the Casino until he ceased to play. She stuck it out for eighty-four hours. Then, as he was still seemingly as fresh as ever, she gave up and divorced him. A year later, out of pique, she married another man, but her gambling first husband forced himself into her rooms on her wedding night and refused to leave. To keep him respectably quiet she was obliged to sit up all night playing bank with him, and she wound up by eloping with him next day. This probably is the sort of romance our friend objects to most strongly.

Thompson Buchanan tried for a novelty with a heroine who divorced her husband, she said, because she loved him. She knew he was longing to be with another lady—was with her, in fact, a good share of the time. So she gave him his freedom, without guessing him for alimony, but stipulated that in lieu of alimony that he MUST marry the other woman. The wife's scheme was to win him back again after he had learned his lesson. And this she did. It was not the sort of novelty romance that had any appeal for this public, however, and lasted but a fortnight.

Dearth of Scarlet Ladies.

There were not many scarlet ladies engaged in the luring business this season. That should have pleased our friend. And what there were seemed to me to be rather decently presented. The rough Sadie of "Rain" is really the worst of the lot. The Camillelike person Florence Reed played in "Hail and Farewell" was promiscuous but genteel. Being of the type that maddens men by casting upon them the languorous, half-closed eye and tapping them softly with the tips of their fans, she sought a reasonable income for the sale of her attractions. But when she met a beautiful young French count while she was searching for an American millionaire along the Riviera, and realized that for the first time she really was in love, she acted nobly. She kept the boy with her for a season and then, realizing he was being ruined for diplomacy, took poison and expired in his arms.

There were a few good old fashioned stories, however, that none could deny. "The Fool," I feel sure, was to the lady's liking, being the adventure of a zealous young rector seeking to live the Christ life in the midst of corruption and the sort of worldliness that goes with high living for the boss and low wages for the poor workmen. There was drama and romance both in this study of human nature in its reactions to conventional orthodoxy, and a good dramatic thrill in its third act, when the sinners are confounded.

Ravinia Ready to Launch New Season Saturday Night

Chicago company will be the herald. Louis Hasselmans will conduct.

More Distinguished Strangers.

Even so, the changes made necessary by Miss Rethberg's cablegram are not yet complete. Another appears in the offing, and one that at this distance looks to be to the advantage of the Ravinia patrons. "La Boheme" will be given after all on Tuesday night with a talented newcomer as Mimi and another as Rodolfo.

Thalia Sabanieva, a young Greek soprano from the Metropolitan, is coming here to take up a few extra performances until Miss Rethberg can arrive. They call her a singer in whom the spirit of youth is dominant, with high rating in voice, personality, ability as an actress, and the long list of rôles at her command. She was on the point of sailing for Europe, where concerts await her, but Mr. Eckstein induced her to delay her departure. She will sing opposite Giacomo Lauri-Volpi in this performance, and on Saturday night with Mr. Schipa in "Manon."

Mr. Lauri-Volpi, also from the Metropolitan, has become one of the season's sensations as a lyric tenor, specializing along the lines of what the elder generation calls "the almost forgotten art of bel canto." "La Boheme" is a favorite opera with the audiences, and Rodolfo is a favorite part with Mr. Lauri-Volpi, all of which looks like a happy combination. Léon Rothier, Vicente Ballester, and Margery Maxwell, all well liked at Ravinia, will also appear in important rôles.

Back to another school of opera, Miss Pareto and Mr. Schipa will sing the soprano and tenor parts of "Lucia di Lammermoor" the next night, with Virgilio Lazzari, the famous basso of the Chicago company, making his Ravinia debut in the same performance. On Thursday night Ina Bourskaya will appear as Carmen in the like named opera, an event that in itself would make a visit to Ravinia worth while if it were not that in addition Josephine Lucchese will make her first appearance here as Micaela, Mr. Kingston will appear as Don José, and Mr. Ballester as Escamillo.

Then follows "Madama Butterfly" on Friday night, with Miss Easton in the name part, another rôle for which she is famed; Mr. Lauri-Volpi as Pinkerton, Mr. Ballester as Sharpless, and Miss Telva as Suzuki. The week will end with Miss Sabanieva and Mr. Schipa in "Manon," and with Mr. Rothier as the Comte des Grieux.

Be it not forgotten that there will also be concerts on Monday nights for the adults and Thursday afternoons for the children. The first Monday includes such items as an orchestral concert under the baton of Mr. Hasselmans, Jacques Gordon, concertmaster, playing the first movement of the Mendelssohn concerto, and vocal solos by Miss Telva and Armand Tokatyan, another new tenor, who, it is predicted, will be liked by the Ravinia audiences.

It ought to be a pleasant week.

Opera Elsewhere.

There may be a few more kinds of opera next season in addition to those most commonly talked about now. Among other possibilities, Siegfried Wagner allowed it to be known in the news columns the other day that he would come to this country to conduct his father's music dramas, as well as concert excerpts therefrom, if the proper offer should be forthcoming. He regards $2,000 a week as about the right figure—a sum in which he and local American managers will probably be at variance. However, he desires to apply the sum not to his personal account but for the benefit of the theater at Bayreuth.

There is also Andreas Dippel, a somewhat romantic figure in operatic management, if for no other reason than the success that used to attend him and the persistent ill luck that has haunted him during the last half dozen years. He would seem to have fought his way out of the wreck of which he was the storm center last season and to be ready for another venture in coöperative opera-giving. News from Pittsburgh holds that there is another United States grand opera club that has had a business meeting and paid off its subscribers 100 cents on the dollar, and that Mr. Dippel plans the performance of several operas that are not Wagnerian.

An official communique from the opera company at the Auditorium informs the world that 70 per cent of last year's patrons have renewed their subscriptions for the 1923-'24 season. Coyly withholding, according to its custom, the most interesting part of the statement, it does not tell how many people are represented by this 70 per cent, but urges the remaining 30 per cent to hasten with their renewals before the remaining seats are thrown open to the nonsubscribing public that is even now storming the doors of the subscription department.

With the Melody Makers.

Works of two members of the League of Composers have been chosen for the programs which the International Society for Contemporary Music has just announced for its festival of modern music which will be held in Salzburg, Germany, early in August. Emerson Whithorne's composition, "New York Days and Nights," has been selected to represent American music by the international jury of this society, which met abroad in the spring. The work was among the compositions of five Americans chosen by the American section of the society and submitted to the jury for further choice. Arthur Bliss, the young English composer, who has come to America for a year's sojourn, is among the British contingent to be represented at the festival. The work chosen is a "Rhapsody" for chamber orchestra and voice. The festival will comprise six programs, the programs being ultra modern in tendency. Among the composers represented are Stravinsky, Honegger, Milhaud, De Falla, Schoenberg, Ravel and Busoni.

Albert Coates, who is conductor of the London Symphony orchestra when he is at home and comes to this country to conduct in New York, will make a longer stay in the United States next season. He made a hasty trip hither a few days ago and went back with the announcement that he is to be the director of the Rochester Philharmonic orchestra.

Mildred Brown, violinist, will be the soloist of the Sunday noon recital at the Chicago theater today and will play Wieniawski's "Souvenir de Moscow." Jesse Crawford, the organist, will present a Russian program from the works of Rachmaninoff, Tschaikowsky, and Rubinstein.

Willy Burmester, the German violinist, stopped off in Chicago a few days last week on his way home from Japan, where he has been giving recitals. He will make a tour of the United States next fall, after an absense of twenty-five years.

Haydn's "The Creation" will be sung by the choir of the Normal Park Presbyterian church Tuesday night. Richard B. DeYoung is the director. The soloists will be Leola Turner, soprano; Floyd Jones, tenor, and Herbert Gould, basso. Edgar A. Nelson will be the organist.

Paris heard the first of two concerts devoted chiefly to American composers and composers residing in this country last night when the Colonne orchestra under Lazare Saminsky, the violinist; Helen Teschner Tas, and the singers, Raymonde Delaunois and M. Alexandrovitch, gave works by Bloch, Elkus, Whitborne, and Saminsky at the Salle Gaveau. Mme. Tas, who will be heard in Chicago next season, introduced a concertino after Ariosti by the San Francisco composer, Albert Elkus. Emerson Whithorne's "New York Days and Nights" and Ernest Bloch's "Hebrew Poems" were the principal orchestral numbers.

At the second American music concert to take place Friday Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass," Frederick Jacobi's "Eve of St. Agnes," violin pieces by Jacobi and Saminsky, and songs by Loeffler, Carpenter, Kramer, and Engel are to be presented. More American music will be heard in Paris when Mr. Saminsky, aided by Mmes. Delaunois, Tas, and d'Alvarez, gives a lecture-recital on "The Celtic Element in American Music," under the auspices of the Ecole Normale de Musique. The lecture-recital will be repeated in London.

'Peter Weston' Leads Vote on Season's Plays

comedy, "Two Fellows and a Girl."

Rather the most illuminating thing about the verdict, I should say, is the choice of "Peter Weston" as the best dramatic entertainment of the year. It was not much more than a mediocre piece of playwriting, and its fable was deeply enshrouded in gloom—a circumstance which, according to some of the managers, should have sounded its death-knell. But it was acted up to the hilt, in thumping, forthright fashion, and folks loved it, finding it most satisfying when Mr. Keenan and his associates were most hopelessly plunged in woe. So much for the theory that the public "wants something cheerful."

That it is hopeless to try to reach any general agreement as to what is best in the theater is oddly emphasized by what the voters did to Mr. Burns Mantle's favorite plays, discussed by him elsewhere in this section. Of these Chicago saw three—"Loyalties," "R. U. R.," and "Why Not?" "Loyalties" found favor aplenty in the referendum, but "R. U. R." landed far down on the list, and "Why Not?" received practically no votes at all.

Divergent tastes are amply manifest, too, in the votes for pet aversions. Of the six plays accounted "best" by the majority, three were set down by various voters as the "worst" of the year. Among the musical entertainments, every one of the winners was accorded the same dubious distinction.

Well, there it is. Make of it what you will.

The individual list which coincided most nearly with the result of the voting was that of Reynold Hillenbrand of 1844 Hammond street, Chicago. He will receive, therefore, the promised autographed portrait of any player he may select. His list included ten of the fourteen entertainments chosen, and in four instances the rank given was the same as that indicated in the final verdict.

News of the Theaters.

The week in the standard playhouses is utterly without incident—no arrivals, no departures, no new prospects. Seven shows remain in eighteen theaters, which is rather less than one would expect for a June that began with cool weather. Mr. William Courtenay still rehearses the comedy called "Dangerous People," which he hopes to reveal soon. At the Playhouse they are still pondering this and that manuscript, planning a production to follow "Chains" some time during the summer. The Garrick, desiring to open its doors again, still hopefully awaits a tenant. Things are, as they say, in statu quo, and the season seems near its nadir.

Nevertheless, the few plays that have lingered are doing surprisingly well. "Rolling Home," which languished at the Harris, perked up and took a new lease on life when they moved it to the Cort. "Chains" and "Steve" continue to prosper; "Up the Ladder" stays from week to week at the Central, reluctant to depart while profitable business is to be had, and the things with music—"Blossom Time," "The Passing Show," and "The Dancing Girl"—are dividing a considerable patronage. From New York, which is in the doldrums, the managers eye us wistfully, wondering whether it were wise to send us something more.

Van and Schenck, the blithe balladists at the Palace, begin today the last lap of a four weeks' engagement, which, in vaudeville, is the equivalent of a record run elsewhere. Nothing like it has ever been attempted in the local varieties. The singers' popularity is enormous; they have so many songs that a voting contest has been necessary to determine what they shall sing—they promise twenty this week!—and the management solemnly avers that there has not been a vacant seat at any performance during the engagement.

Miss Grace George looks with favor on a play called "All Alone Susie," and thinks she will act it next season. The author is one Lea D. Freeman of New Orleans, who has done some things for vaudeville, but never before a full length play.

For Miss Nance O'Neil there is "The White Villa," a play by Edith Ellis, based on Karen Michaelis' novel, "The Dangerous Age." It is not strictly new, but has been held in abeyance since it was given some experimental performances two years ago with Miss Lucile Watson in the rôle to be acted by Miss O'Neil.

Guy Bates Post has succumbed to the prevalent urge to speak the lines of Shakespeare, and announces that he will do so in the fall, retiring from the movies to seek the footlights again.

De Wolf Hopper, who has devoted the season to singing here and there in the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, proposes to do "Wang" again next year. What, one wonders, has become of his plan to leave the stage flat and go in for the lyceums and the Chautauquas?

"Hitchy Koo 1923," supposedly abandoned when they took it away from the Garrick, may reëmerge shortly in New York. If so, there will be some more or less extensive changes in its cast.

Mr. Savage's revival of "The Merry Widow" is in a fair way to equal or surpass the longevity record of the original production. It has been enriching its owner's coffers for two seasons now, and has its engagements all booked up for a third.

"For Tomorrow We Lie," the first effort of M. G. Candy, a young Englishman, has been bought for Mr. Woods. "I didn't need it," explained the man who attends to such matters for the producer, "but it sounded so good I had to buy it." So that's one thing more to expect.

Will Morrissey will invade New York soon with a show which he calls "Newcomers of 1923," the idea being that no one in the cast is known on Broadway. They suspect, in the east, that it is the "Hollywood Follies," with which Morrissey occupied the Playhouse here last summer. It probably isn't.

and Princess Borghese at her studio.

Still they come. All the eastern stars who have homes in Hollywood are planning to stay here for the season. Will Rogers, Frank Keenan and his wife, Mrs. Hayakawa, and Jean Acker are this week's list of arrivals. Mrs. Keenan and Mrs. Hayakawa, with Mlle. Nazimova, entertained disabled veterans Monday afternoon.

Nazimova will make a monthly donation of a huge cake for the veterans.

Agnes Ayres, who is back from New York, said that Bebe Daniels looked jealous when she got on her train for California. Miss Daniels and Miss Ayres are close friends.

Jean Acker, the first wife of Valentino, went to Catalina to see her friend, Grace Darmond, who is on location there. Miss Acker will play Los Angeles billed as "Mrs. Valentino." She said she only saw her ex-husband once in the east, and then they didn't speak.

Mock Marriage "Realistic."

The mock marriage of Anna Q. Nilsson and Lieut. Harry Watson of the U. S. air service at the military ball at the Ambassador hotel was staged so realistically that the groom received presents from old time friends. They didn't know the present Mr. Nilsson is, named Gunnerson. Joseph Swickard acted as father to the groom, William Desmond officiated as minister, and Wallace Reid Jr. was ring bearer.

Miss Nilsson wore an exquisite gown of white velvet and a long string of pearls. The ball was a benefit performance, under the auspices of the Disabled Veterans of the World War and the Big Sisters league.

We Want a Man who has and can sell ideas

AN unusual type of salesman—executive—probably with chautauqua, lyceum, lecture, or concert course experience—is sought as District Manager for a national distributing organization which will market non-theatrical motion pictures in an original way.

The position calls for character, organizing ability, and success in developing and directing a loyal and efficient sales personnel. A facility for meeting people also is important.

A married man with a family, who is between 30 and 40 years old, thoroughly familiar with this territory, and seeking a permanent, congenial connection in which he can grow, will find this a most attractive opportunity.

A salary of $5,000, plus a substantial bonus, is offered. The position will be open between August 15 and September 15, when District Sales Offices will be established in this and five other important centers.

For a personal interview write a letter stating fully your qualifications.

'Pleasant Journey' Finds 'Our Gang' at Its Funniest

director! He knows kids! He knows dogs, policemen, conductors, monkeys, bachelors who don't like children, and maiden ladies who do. I suspect him of being the biggest kid of the caboodle himself. [Mr. McGowan, please answer.]

If the "Our Gang" comedies keep on being as funny as they have been up to date, we can snap our fingers at some of our resting comedians who have taken our money and whom we now suspect of being inclined to turn us down.

See you tomorrow!

KICK KORNER

Its Object—Objection
Wants His Movies Straight.

Dear Editor: On numerous occasions recently I have attempted to see certain advertised films at some of our large picture theaters, but invariably, before they appeared, I had become tired and utterly exhausted from witnessing a mixture of attempts at opera, jazz, interpretative dancing, and vaudeville.

In Shakespeare's day he was known to have said, "The play's the thing." I'm no Shakespeare, but today I say, "The movie's the thing." But where can you find one? When I crave opera I know where to go; at the Auditorium, in winter, we have the world's best, and in summer we have Ravinia. I would have jazz, I can take advantage of Chicago's abundant supply of cabarets, where I can shake my hoofs if I so desire. And, if my mood so dictates, I can always find a good bill of variety. But, please give me my movies straight. As I find them, they are hashed up so that they resemble a cross between grand opera and a vaudeville show.

If some gluttens for punishment demand a conglamaration of chop suey for their entertainment, why can't the management have the courtesy and consideration to advertise the time when the feature picture will appear?

Sincerely, MARTIN K. ASH.

[Editor's Note: I bet you had a good time writing that letter.].

Raises Cudgel for Rodolph.

Dear Corner: Why don't we see more of such actors as Lloyd Hughes, Ralph Graves, Johnny Walker, and especially Richard Dix. I saw Mr. Dix in his first picture and ever since then I have been an ardent Dix fan. Also give us more of Henry Hull, the boy who played the part of John Fairfax in Griffith's "One Exciting Night." I had my ideal man and when I saw Henry Hull—low and behold—my ideal man came to life.

Stop picking on Rodolph Valentino—he is one of the world's best moving picture actors, as any one can tell you who saw "Blood and Sand." These little flappers who go around bemoaning the fact that he died in the end should visit a brain specialist without delay.

In Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin Hood" there were some bad spots. I am sure Robin Hood never jumped and skipped as did the agile Doug.

I am sorry that we see no more of Marguerite Clarke—one of the sweetest and wholesomest actresses the screen has known. Harold Lloyd has finally been recognized—he is our leading comedian today—possessing that rare spirit of fun loving youth—without which Chaplin has become a "has-been."

Here's to the Corner—long may it flourish. ANONYMOUS.

[Editor's Note: And here's to you! Keep right on writing what you think—you keep your typewriter keys so clean!]

Only One Kick—but Vigorous.

Dear Miss Tinée: Having averaged three movies a week for fifteen years without ever having made a kick of any kind, may I intrude into this column to the extent of registering my first, and I hope my last, complaint?

Granting me that favor, here goes. I think "One Exciting Night" was terrible, rotten, annoying. Before going any further I don't expect everybody to agree with me but I do feel that many will and I am somewhat surprised that another section of this department included this picture among the monthly best some time ago. As a rule, I quite agree with your selections.

To be explicit. Why does Griffith imbue his actors and actresses with St. Vitus dance? From the earliest days of the Gish girls he has made his performers jerk through feet of film in a manner to give the audience nervous prostration.

Did any one ever see the entire roots of trees torn out of the ground during a storm? The scene in which the colored man standing in the doorway is lifted into the air together with the shack I realize was comedy, but I don't believe Mr. Griffith, intended the great storm scene as such. However, be his intentions what they may, he certainly succeeded in presenting about as ridiculous a storm as any one could wish to witness. One of the subtitles conveyed the information that the picture was a mystery and a great deal was left to the imagination of the audience. It certainly was a mystery and my imagination is still trying to conceive how that picture ever got by. And our local movie house, which seldom charges over 25 cents—that was all they got for "Bella Donna" (a good picture)—charged 33 cents for "One Exciting Night."

In conclusion, let me say that in spite of what others may think, I am good natured and tolerant. But Griffith has always given me a pain which I managed to keep inside until O. E. N. convinced me that Barnum was right. Thanks. JAKE.

Editor's note: Have a heart! Mr. Griffith puts out high brow pictures and loses all his money. Then, to please you—and get it back again—he comes forth with "One Exciting Night"—and you carry on like this! Pity a poor producer!

Doug Has at Least One Friend.

Dear Editor: I wish to make a kick against kickers such as the "Deadly Dragons." These bright [?] people made a statement that Doug Fairbanks could leap over chairs and wall, but that he could not act. That is absurd. He is not only a wonderful actor, he is a genius. Anyone who has seen his "Robin Hood" should be ashamed to make such a statement. He is as perfect in the sad and romantic portions of the story as in the lively and carefree. And I beg on my knees, that you will print a picture of him in the rotogravure. D. F. A.

Editor's Note: Arise! It shall be done. [Sometime].

Astonishing Values in Dainty Summer Dresses

Fifth Floor—Dearborn Street

As each summer day leads into the next it sees a vaster number of the season's most charming dresses arriving as fast as express trains can bring them from the eastern fashion center—and each day sees scores upon scores of them passing on to the hundreds of women who have found from past experience that here they can not only choose from almost bewildering assortments, but that they can save such sums of money as are hardly to be expected upon really desirable dresses. And the new shipments that have arrived for tomorrow are equal in beauty and attractiveness to any that have been opened this season. Included are

Dainty frocks fashioned of embroidered linens, ratines, Rodier cottons, eponge, gauze, imported checked velours, French ratines and in so many other new and summery fabrics that to count them all would be almost never-ending. Every wanted color, every wanted style feature, every wanted trimming conceit is here to choose from as well.

It is a showing that, regardless of how many dresses you now have, you will want to see, for amongst such a vast profusion of frocks there will be one or more that will seem to have been made for you alone. The values are exceptionally worthy, since few of these charming dresses should sell for less than $16.50. All sizes, 14 to 44, for women and misses. Choice Monday..

Surprisingly Beautiful Dresses at $6.75

Another newly arrived collection of tub frocks that will catch and hold the fancy of women who want the maximum of summer style at a minimum price. Wherever one dips into this splendid assortment one is sure to find a real surprise, for the fabrics are so dainty and the fashions so pretty that $6.75 is really an exceptionally low price to ask. There are

Tissue gingham dresses, frocks of figured voile, silk embroidered and dotted voiles, linen and ratine. Color assortments are almost unlimited. Each pretty style is worthy of individual description, but there are far too many even to make a beginning.

Crisp, summery dresses that have all the attributes you expect to find in garments that sell for as high as $10 regularly, but regardless of actual worth, our cash and volume-buying rule enables us to offer you your unrestricted choice of the entire group tomorrow at.....

Most Important Silk Underwear Event

Third Floor—Center

It is an important event, because it has been in the making for several months—because it has gathered a host of the daintiest of silken underthings any woman would want to wear—and because it offers such values at the very beginning of the summer season as one must usually wait until far along in the year to obtain. Women who appreciate the finer kinds of apparel will purchase plentifully.

Foot Comfort Week--Dr. Scholl's Appliances to Help Rid You of Foot Ills

—Fourth Floor—Center—

This is the week that you can find foot relief—and quickly—here. It is a week devoted to discovering and remedying those foot afflictions that sap your energy, fray your nerves and keep you from enjoying both your business and your recreations.

It may be a case of bunions or of corns, callouses, weak ankles—or the more serious condition of broken down arches. In any case you can learn this week of a means to remedy the fault—a means that has proven its merit through its country-wide adoption—Dr. Scholl's Foot Appliances.

Arch gently supported and body's weight equally distributed by Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer. Light and springy to wear. Eases feet, body and nerves.

Let our experts examine your feet under our special Foot X-Ray Machine. It will reveal the true condition after which we will fit a Dr. Scholl appliance scientifically to relieve the trouble.

No two feet are exactly alike, and no two foot conditions are exact duplicates. Each case requires individual treatment—and we recommend the Dr. Scholl appliances because they are made to meet every type of ailment. We can fit you to a Dr. Scholl Comfort Foot Appliance that will give you a new idea of perfect foot ease.

1,300 Winners in $10,000 Movie Contest Come from Many States

Final Awards; 70,000 Tried to Identify Stars

With the announcement this morning of the 200 winners of $10 prizes and the 1,100 winners of $5 awards, THE TRIBUNE closes its $10,000 movie contest.

In the large number of enthusiastic contestants, in the quality of the picture sets which they submitted, in the widespread interest which was aroused, the contest was highly successful.

Many of the contestants guessed the names correctly, but assembled the sections incorrectly. A great number failed in guessing the last three pictures correctly and a greater number in cutting them properly. Out of the 70,000 sets received not one was perfect.

The first prize winner's set came nearer to perfection than a set submitted by any one else. This fact, together with neatness, made the set eligible for first prize.

Following are the names of the $10 and $5 prize winners:

Vaudeville Wit

RIALTO.

"While traveling through the South one Sunday morning, I paused and watched a congregation of darkies playing crap. One darky had no money, so he was obliged to be a mere spectator. Unable to withstand this torture he turned to one of the darkies and said 'Lend me a dollor, will you?' 'I'm very sorry, Rastus,' the player replied, 'but I can't oblige you, as this is my very last dollar.' Rastus said nothing, but watched the player lose the throw and the dollar, then he spoke again: 'Go on, lend me a dollor, will you?' The other took off his hat, dug out another dollar and put it down, saying: 'Suro, enough Rastus, I would lend you a dollar in a minute, but this is my last one.' He threw the dice again and lost. He rolled down the cuff of his trousers, got another greenback and said: 'Really, Rastus, this is positively my last dollar.' He put it down, rolled the bones again and lost. Rastus, who was watching closely all the time, turned from him with disgust and said: 'You just keep on with them bones, they'll make you tell the truth.'"

"When Rastus worked in Texas he asked his boss if he could take a day off, so he could call on his gal in Fort Worth. The boss refused. Rastus pulled out a razor and said: 'I've got a gal in Fort Worth, Texas, a mammy in heaven, and a good daddy in hell, and I am going to see one of them today.'"

"Once while strolling along the banks of the river I came across old Rastus, 'when I catch the one I'm Rastus fishing. 'Hello,' I said, 'How after and five more, I'll have six many fish did you catch?' 'Well,' said fish.'"

OPENING A LOVELY SEASON

GRAZIELLA PARETO.

[Copyright: Underwood & Underwood.]

This Spanish coloratura soprano made many friends when she sang at Ravinia last summer. She will begin next Saturday night to repeat the process, opening the new season as Violetta Valery in Verdi's opera, "La Traviata."

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

THE NATURE LOVER.

How many times have I been told
That sunrise is like molten gold,
And I should rouse from out my bed
And see the sky in glory spread,
Instead of lolling soft and deep
And wasting dawns in foolish sleep.

How many times have I declared,
As to my evening couch I fared,
That in the dawn so clear and cold
I would these weary limbs unfold
And take this slumber loving frame
To see the sun arise in flame.

Then came the mornings cold and clear
And in the pallid east and drear
The sun climbed slowly up the sky
For somehow it had heard that I
Would come and watch it rise that day
And it was extra gay, they say.

But, O, it looked in vain for me
And will through all eternity—
The sun may tint the morning air
Eight thousand tints for all I care;
It has to rise at dawn, I've heard,
But that's too early for this bird.

Fer or Agin' the Movies? What Say?

Good morning, Miss Tinee: Just to tell you that I like your good morning, and hello every time you begin the column, gosh it just makes me feel as though I've got one friend at least, and there's such an air of friendliness about the whole column that one just can't help think that you are one of those dear, sweet-tempered souls who are put here on this earth to keep us morbid and down-hearted ones from committing suicide.

Well, as regards movies, I want to say I like the way you make up a list of the month's best pictures. It certainly saves me a lot of money, time and patience, and now I never go to see a picture unless it has your o. k. on it, and I have not been disappointed yet, except maybe in "The Streets of Paris," and I guess that is mostly because I don't like Lew Cody or that Collier fellow (neither one of them are my style). Now that that's off my chest, a word for Emily Fitzroy, the mother in "Driven." Not much for looks, or class, but she sure had a spark of that divine something that mothers have. "Second Fiddle" was good, because that is just what happens in a family where there are two boys. Believe me, I know; I have two brothers, and the little fellow never gets a chance, taking lickings for his brother, and wearing all his old clothes, although to me he has it all over the big coward. "Grumpy" also was very good, and "Toll of the Sea" was a beautiful picture, the scenery and acting and the actors and the story. A bit sad, but, dear Mae, don't those things happen? I know, believe me!

I hope that Rodolph will soon come back to the screen and make some more pictures. Lord knows how we miss him! There can be no other to take his place, though that reminds me, I did like Ramon Navarro, in "Trifling Women." And Pauline Garon in "Adam's Rib." Dear me, why must they grow up? Those darling cute flappers? Like Faire Binney and May McAvoy, aren't they dear? And last—and most important, Pola Negri in "Bella Donna." Wasn't she too delightfully exquisite? And just made you feel so—sorry for her! She certainly is there with the looks and acting, but that Baroudi, how I hated him! Seems like all he ever did was make love to the women and throw them down for the next one, the scoundrel! Gee, but that picture was good. It will stay in my mind a long time. And please tell that man who don't like you to say good morning that I like it and I would also like to heave a rock at him, he makes me mad! I can't see any one hurting your feelings like that! But don't mind him, just keep it right up. Gee my fingers are tired.

MARIANNA.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

SOMEBODY: Well, Person of Mystery, what shall I do with the dime? Consider it as a good luck piece—or cross somebody's palm with it and find out what's really going to happen? Thanks for your pleasant, merry little message.

LEONARD: I loved reading the letter you inclosed. You were nice to be so thoughtful.

DAVID D.: We sent your letter onward to its destination. Curiosity killed a cat—but it was such a TRICK letter—was all of it praise, or, wurra, wurra, all of it blame? Don't answer me if you don't want to—but what WAS in that letter?

S. W.: Address Irene Rich, care Robertson-Cole, Hollywood, Cal. Y'wekkum.

P. R.: With all my heart I thank you!

TARZANA: Mrs. C.nningham turned your letter over to me. You're a dear!

MUSKEGON: I wish you'd have a letter writing spell like that often. You're so nice. Keep right on with your single blessedness and I'll see that no one hurle a "How to Win a Man" letter at your head.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

HERE IS A BREATH OF ARABIA.

Seristara.

Seristara is oriental in her moods and her thoughts, even though her parents have dwelt in France for over a thousand years. She is mystic. She does not like bare, bald facts, but prefers to be awed. She likes to look at marvels, and feel her insignificance. She wants to be little and helpless in body, but her spirit craves power through psychology and charm. She enjoys that power. The spirit of the Arab, from whose country has come more than half of the philosophy of the world, is strong within her.

For ten centuries Seristara's people have been aliens. They have forgotten their language, their traditions, their very race itself. All that they know is that they are different. Why, they do not comprehend. But blood, stronger than memory, reveals her heritage.

Look at her eyebrows. They are the pride of the Semitic race. Her mouth is gentle, and yet it conceals fire. Her moods can flash into furious anger and jealousy that will burn and consume her being.

Her people are scattered over the face of the earth. But the spirit of the Orient still lingers in them. If you would understand the nature of the East, cultivate Seristara.

In Babylonian days they set up images of gods and goddesses in the temples. Whose face do you think was that of the great Queen Goddess Ishtar? Why, none other than Seristara's.

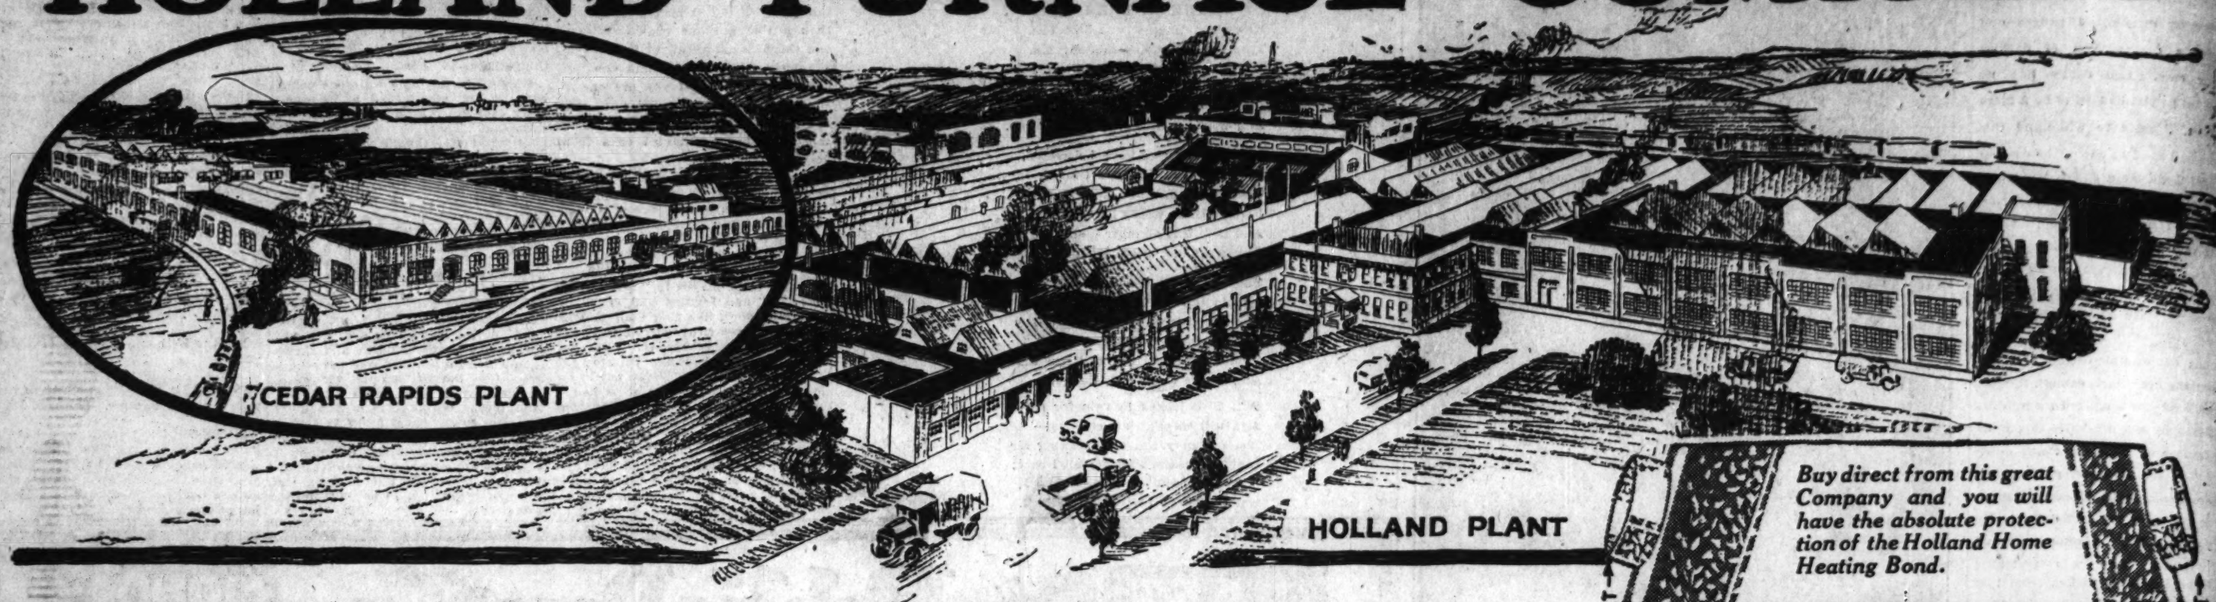
HOLLAND FURNACE COMPANY



World's Largest Installers of Furnaces

IT HAS taken only 16 years for this company to attain its present position in the heating industry. And, broadly, there is just one reason for it. The rapid growth has been due to the general policy: Think of the Customer First.

This famous Holland Policy has meant not only a quality furnace at a moderate price, but the best in heating engineering, the finest of installation, and a Guarantee Bond that protects our customers just as we ourselves would want to be protected. Also "to think of the customer first" even meant the easy payment plan for those who desire it.

It is much easier to buy a Holland Heating System than many people have been led to suppose. Don't get the idea that the Holland is only for the rich man's mansion. The rich man doesn't select the Holland because he expects it to be high priced or to be exclusive. He selects it first because he wants the best he can get, regardless of price, to make all the rooms Clean, Comfortable and Healthful.

The Holland Warm Air Circulating System hasn't won its preference in the hearts of home-owners by skimping to meet competitive prices, or by using inferior materials, or by permitting guess-work installation.

There was a chance for someone to fight a battle for a few years to prove that real value in warm air heating was as much desired by the public as in anything else. This Company chose to fight the battle—to fight it alone—and the confidence that the public now holds is the splendid reward.

Great factories, one organization responsible for every individual heating system completely installed, efficient advertising and selling—economy all the way through—has made the moderate price. All of which means much to the Largest Installers of Furnaces In the World.

Today, with the Holland Furnace Company competing only with itself, there is more reason than ever to "Think of the Customer First." No man or set of men who have won leadership in any industry would be content to fall behind, when they know positively what it is that gave them their prominence and responsibility.

If you are not already depending on a Holland System for health and comfort, this is a very good time to get information from the Holland Man. Why not call him up today (the one in the Branch nearest to your home). You will not be obligated in the least. See the alphabetical list below.

FREE BOOK

"The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive new book—a guide you should have in furnace buying.

Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today. No matter how many furnaces we make, their installation depends entirely upon the number of trained men available.

Look at the list of Holland Service Branches printed at bottom of this page. The Holland man in your city will gladly give you valuable information on home heating.

Dandelion Plague Pesters Europe as Well as America

By Mme. X.

SAID the owner of one of the largest, most beautiful, and conspicuous country places near Chicago, last Sunday, when the writer found him in company of his head gardener digging up some of this year's vigorous crop of dandelions:

"If there was any one I hated and loathed and to whom I would do deadly injury, I would wish on him a big place like mine." He lifted a flushed and perspiring countenance and looked as if he really meant what he said. And yet the very thing that he was doing was undoubtedly giving him an appetite for his midday meal and might even contribute to a good night's sleep. He was not complaining about the dandelions; it was the care and responsibility of such an extensive property and the difficulty of getting anything like adequate labor to keep it in condition that inspired his remark. He semed in earnest, even to the extent of accepting the offer of the author of this column to exchange his royal estate with its Italian palace and vast grounds for her Hayloft with its six by fifteen flower bed..

The "swap" was not completed, however, so we are still enjoying that freedom from care which is the happy lot of the humble and obscure, while he is escaping from the burdens of too many possessions by having, with his wife, sailed for Europe yesterday, leaving the rest of the dandelions to sow their seed and extend their greedy roots in every direction. This year's plague of dandelions, by the way, has not been confined to this part of the globe. Even from far away Switzerland comes word that never have they had dandelions before in the quantities which have devastated their velvety lawns this summer.

The season for blossoms, though somewhat belated, is even more lovely than usual this year; probably, like all late blooming, it is the better for its retarding. Mrs. Walter Brewster's garden on Green Bay road in Lake Forest is a delightful example of a garden of radiant bloom. One after the other her fruit trees and flowering shrubs, apple treees, lilacs, bridal wreath, syringas, honeysuckle, snowballs, and their ilk have come out in greater abundance than ever before. She has her garden divided into months, each of the garden months having its own inclosure with the blooming of that particular division of the year concentrated there.

MRS. IVON S. PIETERS.
[Raymor Studios, Ltd.]

MRS. CHARLES WILLARD McGUIRE.
[Koehne Photo.]

Three attractive early June brides were Mrs. James Clark Irwin Jr., Mrs. Ivon S. Pieters, and Mrs. Charles Willard McGuire Jr., all of whom were married on Saturday, June 9. Mrs. Irwin, formerly Miss Constance Root, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kimball Root of 5480 Hyde Park boulevard. She and Mr. Irwin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Irwin of Newtonville, Mass., were married at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Church of the Redeemer.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Thomas Stewart of 1244 Astor street, became the bride of Ivon S. Pieters of Chicago at 8:30 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's church.

The wedding of Miss Frances Mary Snyder, daughter of Mrs. Frank Leonidas Snyder of Chicago, formerly of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Charles Willard McGuire Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McGuire of Glencoe, took place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at First Presbyterian church, Chicago.

It is an original and amusing idea well worked out.

Pond "Mirror" in Front of House.

The most effective feature of the Brewster place is a large, irregularly shaped pool or pond which lies in front of the house, mirroring it and the dense foliage which grows on its shores. There a flock of wild ducks as well as some home ducks lead their simple lives. The effect as one enters is unusually attractive. To one side of the circular driveway a quaint little house with a fenced in front yard shelters now a tribe of Cairn terriers, though it was originally built as a playhouse for the Brewster children, Sarah (now Miss Sarah Brewster) and Edward.

In the rear of the place a goat tethered to a tree near the lovely vegetable garden gives that touch of the truly rural which this interesting animal never fails to impart to the landscape. I don't know why more people with country estates don't adorn them with goats. There is something suggestive of the great god Pan and all his attendant satyrs and fauns in the sardonic expression, the half concealed and meaning smile of this most interesting of quadrupeds. Who was the English great lady who, in that era fifteen years or so ago when the world talked much about the simple life, felt that she had achieved it by having only maids, by serving dinner at half past 7, and by having a goat tethered on her front lawn, the last being the capstone to her whole structure of simplicity? I've forgotten her identity, though not her mission in life, which was to encourage in all of us a passion for the simple life. Where is that cult now?

Always mindful of wandering Chicagoites, this column was interested to hear the other day of two young adventurers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, who late last winter undertook to traverse Africa from Cape Town to Cairo, a feat that not many travelers have performed. They have accomplished it, or part of it, as they are now in Paris and plan to return to this part of the world in July. The story of some of their adventures has come as far as this P. P. P. When they reached the source of the Nile, where the great river empties out of Lake Victoria over the mild and unexciting Falls of Ripon, the Goodspeeds planned to go by boat from there up to Egypt. Owing to the fact that the waters of Cleopatra's river were unusually low, the many cataracts which bestrew its course made it unnavigable. The Goodspeeds, therefore, had to foot it from its head waters to Gondokoro, the last port where the steamers from the north can dock. They marched ninety-six miles in five days, which, in an equatorial region, through jungles and heavy underbrush, was a fine piece of sprinting.

In the course of their trip from south to north they had some capital big game hunting and bagged, according to my informant, elephants, hyenas, lions, and other of the famous fauna of the dark continent. They met Mr. Goodspeed's mother, Mrs. Wilbur F. Goodspeed, in Paris on her way home from a trip around the world.

She started out from Chicago a few months ago with Mrs. C. K. Pomeroy and another friend to encircle the globe, but soon after she got on the steamer she developed whooping cough and was immediately put in quarantine and never allowed to leave the ship during the whole tour. She would not have been permitted to land in any port with a contagious disease, and if she had succeeded in so doing she would not have been admitted again on board ship for the same reason. It was an unfortunate enterprise from Mrs. Goodspeed's point of view. One does not like to be quarantined at any time. It gives one a sense of ignominious exile. But it is much more disagreeable to be shut away from your kind on board ship than when you are on land.

Dudleys on Way Home.

Speaking of wanderers; Dr. and Mrs. Dudley, who, with their two daughters, spent last winter in Peking, are in New York now on their way home to Chicago. Miss Helen Dudley is in London, where she has many friends, while Miss Katherine Dudley is with the Roy McWilliamses in France at their villa at Bidart, near Biarritz.

Also in England is Miss Genevieve Carpenter, where she is the guest in London of Mrs. Benjamin Guinness. Miss "Jinny" Carpenter (as her friends know her) will be presented at court. For all the writer knows she may have been already; but I know that it was part of the plans for her stay over there that she should have this experience. Mrs. Guinness, who used to live in New York, where her house with the two white roosters on the newel posts of the front steps were one of the features of aristocratic old Washington Square, is a prominent figure in the London great world. She is noted on two sides of the Atlantic for her originality and real "chic." Her entertainments are always unique and gay. She has only the most interesting people to be had, celebrities of all kinds at her house. So that charming young woman, Miss Jinny, is bound to have a quite especially interesting and worth-while time there.

Other wanderers on foreign shores this summer will be Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis. Mr. Aldis sailed last week for France and Mrs. Aldis will join

Short Course—Good Pay for Every Graduate

We offer you a highly skilled training in the remarkably short time of 5 to 7 weeks with a position immediatey thereafter—a position where you begin at an average of $20 per week, where the work is ideal, where you are permanently independent and where there are many unusual avenues of advancement.

Become a Specialist in 5 to 7 Weeks

So many new COMPTOMETERS are installed every day, and so many operators are promoted that we receive an average of over 225 requests per month for operators. These positions are permanent, because operators are always in demand. That means steady employment and steady advancement for you—the reward of the specialist.

Business experience is not necessary but girls with some High School education are preferred. The work is easily learned, the course is short, the tuition fee is very small, and we make no charge for assisting our graduates to positions. Call at the school or phone principal and ask for particulars.

him in July when she sails for Naples, where he will meet her. They will spend some time in Florence, where they will occupy Horace Oakley's villa on the slopes of Fiesole. Never was there a more hospitable owner of a lovely villa than Mr. Oakley. He is only able to visit this former abode of medieval abbots for a few weeks in occasional springtimes. The rest of the twelve months when he can find an artist, a writer, a composer, or any other creator or student of the intangible things of the mind and imagination he offers such a one his charming home on Via Boccaccio with its excellent housekeeper, automobile, gardener, and chauffeur, and above all its adorable view of the city of flowers, its towers and domes and the distant Campanile as the central fact, against the background of purple tinted mountains and the silver ribbon of the Arno winding through the middle distance. Isn't that a royal gift to offer a poet, a playwright, a painter, or a scholar? At night the ghost of Boccaccio wanders in the walled paths below the windows, while slow-pacing Dante, himself, may even be seen haunting the shadows on his way to the not far distant Medici villa or to the one now occupied by Miss Mary Nixon and Miss Sheldon in whose garden he used to sit under a wizened little myrtle tree, gazing across to Florence and Giotto's tower.

Others who have enjoyed Mr. Oakley's hospitality are Mrs. Mason Bross, Mrs. Henry Gilbert, and Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schwill.

Mr. Oakley was prevented from making his proposed trip to his Florentine home this spring by the situation in the Chicago Symphony orchestra, he being the only member of the board of trustees who was here and in a position to cope with it at that time. That it was so adequately managed was largely due to his wise handling of the matter at issue, which was, if you remember, a question of the sizable advance in pay which the musicians' union had decided was to be asked this coming season. Concessions on both sides secured for the Chicago public their symphony concerts next winter.

Fairbanks Depart for Summer.

With Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank leaving Chicago for Europe last Friday and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman departing for southern California this coming week, the last vestiges of Chicago's strenuous society world will have gone from this clamorous city, and it will be left to semi-aquatic summer. Mrs. Fairbank is going on to her daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank's, graduation from Radcliff. Miss Fairbank, who is to be one of next winter's debutantes, is leaving this institute of learning, one of the highest in scholastic standards in the country, covered with honors. She is not only an unusually clever young student, she also has a charming singing voice; she excels in athletics, and is extremely "easy to look at."

The Fairbanks are sailing—all of them, including Monsieur, Madame, Mademoiselle, and the two lively sons, Kellogg, Jr., and "Benny"—on the Orduna, of the Royal Mail Packet service, next Saturday from Boston to be away until autumn. Mrs. and Miss Fairbank will remain abroad until November, leaving the male members of the family to return to Chicago in September. Miss Fairbank will be presented to society early in December at a dance at the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer and their four children are setting forth for Europe on the same day that the Fairbanks do, though by a different ship. Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour sailed yesterday from New York to spend ten weeks or so abroad motoring about England and France. Others whose gaze is turned towards the east with the castles, cathedrals and other memorials of the past etched on their horizons are Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Peabody and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strobel, who are planning to take motor trips in England and France.

Tales of wonderful bargains to be found in the way of furs, jewels, rich fabrics and rare art objects continue to come from travelers in Germany. Perhaps it is lack of habit in buying choice and costly articles, but to the writer there is little tempting in the thought of such profiting from a nation's intolerable disasters. It is small wonder that the Germans are resentful and view often with ill concealed dislike the foreigners who swarm over their disturbed land, animated chiefly by a desire to get more than their money's worth.

Travelers who have recently returned from England have brought to the notice of this column an institution which for originality and practical value would be hard to match in this country. It is called "Universal Aunts, Ltd.," and is composed of what the Britishers would call "impecunious gentlewomen." These I. G.'s offer to do "anything for any one at any time," and the alphabetical list of what they propose to do for an otherwise helpless world includes sixty-seven varieties of assistance from "Advice in all emergencies" to "Xmas and birthday gifts suggested and chosen." The Universal Aunts undertake any commission at any time, as one of their announcements under the letter U says. They "escort children to doctors, dentists, etc."; they provide people for every office from bridesmaids to pallbearers; they write letters to lonely people overseas; in short, there seems no activity connected with this complicated machinery of life which our civilization has developed that they are not competent to handle, and all under that delicious name of "Universal Aunts, Ltd." No American's life in London is complete without a Universal Aunt. This sounds like an ad, but is only prompted by a certain unique and rather touching quality in the scheme which to the student of causes and effects shows a country overcrowded with single, unattached and unprovided for women. It would not be easy in this prosperous country of ours to offer such unlimited service from such a superior class of labor, for these Universal Aunts include many highly educated, well born women, whose companionship would be a privilege for many an impressionable young American whose tongue had not learned the niceties of our beautiful and oft mishandled language.

English in Need of Polish.

I wish that some of those Aunts could be transplanted to this country to steer us into the channels of correctly pronounced and enunciated English. It is one of the most obvious defects of our outward appearance, this slovenly use of speech. Money and all it buys cannot overcome the impression produced by a nasal voice uttering incorrect phrases composed of badly pronounced words. Even the best of morals and the most unselfish of dispositions do not compensate for this lack of culture when it comes to the question of companionability. Chaucer, Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Milton, Cowper, Wordsworth, Shelley, Keats, Tennyson, Browning and all the rest of those great ones bequeathed to us the most flexible, expressive and beautiful language mankind ever evolved from the jibbering of apes, but we Americans are not using it to its best advantage. We are not employing enough words, and what we are using we do not use rightly or articulate with the proper accent. This untidy way of speaking goes all through our various machinery of life and is especially evident among the teaching class. There may be an effort on the part of those who give instruction in schools and colleges to correct, when needed, the manner of speech of their pupils, but if so this writer never heard of it.

MRS. HUBERT J. SULLIVAN.
[Koehne Photo.]

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. John Corcoran of 6442 Glenwood avenue of the marriage on June 6 of their daughter, Mary, to Hubert J. Sullivan. The wedding took place at St. Ignatius church and was followed by a reception at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Nations rise and nations fall, but one thing goes on forever and that is the mating of the young. Even in soviet Russia there is still love, though whether it is sanctified by the marriage ceremony or whether the bolsheviki do not believe in this ceremony reports differ. But here we have lovers and weddings and all the gayety that goes with this most important of all human institutions. Next Saturday is the date set for the marriage of charming Miss Hollis Louise Letts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crawford Letts, and George Frost McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. McLaughlin. The marriage will be celebrated in the lovely garden of Green Hedges, the country place of the bride's parents on Green Bay road in Lake Forest. A purple gowned monsignor of the Roman Catholic church will perform the ceremony and the reception that will follow will be held on velvety lawns and amid blossoming splendor.

That same day and the day following the postponed flower show will be held at the Gorton school in Lake Forest. This is being organized by the Lake Forest Garden club and the North Shore Horticultural society. It was postponed on account of the cold rains which have delayed the gardens so much in their flowers and fruits that this week-end there threatened to be nothing to show the public. The only change in the original problem is in the substitution of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley's lovely place on Green Bay road for the McLaughlin place, which was withdrawn by its owners because the wedding of their son on Saturday afternoon would absorb all the energies of not only the owners, but of the flowers, too.

The holders of tickets to the show can, besides visiting the exhibit, also go through the places of the following Lake Foresters: Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow, Mr. anad Mrs. George A. McKinlock, as well as the Kelley estate. The latter has never before been thrown open to the public. Its especial feature is a delightful open air theater, whose stage with its green hedges and effective background of dark cedars is reflected in a mirroring pool that gleams between it and the little semi-circular amphitheater.

MISS HENRIETTA SHANE.
[Peyton Strauss Photo.]

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Henrietta Shane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Shane of Kansas City, Mo., to Julian H. Kramer, son of Mrs. Sadie Kramer of the Chicago Beach hotel.

Ravinia Opening Saturday.

Next Saturday night is the opening of the Ravinia season, when the north shore will turn out en masse to witness the first performance of this new company. The program promised for the summer is particularly attractive. In the first place, to a Chicagoan who has attended the civic opera productions for the last two years the fact that Tito Schipa is to be the leading tenor of the troupe is reason enough for going often to Ravinia. When the writer listens, as she does, each morning to the liquid melody that pours from the quivering throats of a couple of wrens outside her window it always reminds her of the perfect song notes that Schipa sends forth in his great rôles.

There is a quality in a lovely Italian singing voice which sets it apart from all others. The Italian throat is often constructed to open wider; the back of the mouth often offers a more perfectly arched sounding board; the vocal cords are often strung more correctly, with the result that Italian voices have a more completely liquid and melodious timbre than the voices of other nationalities. I do not mean that Italian voices are as a rule better than others, but they have a peculiarly sweet and delicious quality that delights the sense of hearing in the same way that the singing of birds affects one. It is a national characteristic, and often have I, when in Italy, lain awake nights listening to passing singers whose rich notes have filled the darkness with heavenly sounds rising from the gardens of Naples or the narrow streets of Florence or from the winding canals of Venice, voices whose owners are and will always remain unknown, who sing as the birds sing, for the pure love of singing. So sang Campanini, so sang Caruso, so sing Galli-Curci and Schipa.

In thus emphasizing a personal predilection for Italian voices it is not intended to overlook such well known artists and favorites as Florence Easton, Graziella Pareto, Elisabeth Rethberg, Josephine Lucchese, Ina Bourskaya, Marion Telva, Margery Maxwell, Leon Rothier, Virgilio Lazzari, Desire Defrere, Giacomo Lauir-Volpi, Armand Tokatyan, Morgan Kingston, Vincente Ballester and all those other stars who turn summer nights into melody, poetry and color for the dwellers in that part of the world.

It is not out of place to quote at this moment a phrase of that matchless mistress of the English language, Edith Wharton, in her newly begun romance, "New Year's Day," in the Red Book. Of her heroine and the latter's lover she writes:

"They sat side by side, in the meditative rigidity of fashionable persons listening to expensive music."

There is less rigidity among the listeners at Ravinia than elsewhere, because in the twilight of a summer evening many a genuine music lover creeps out to enjoy melody and romance in the semi-darkness of that pavilion where smoking is not only allowed but encouraged—that is, for the men who attend. I have never seen a woman puffing her cigaret there, I wonder why not.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent either of the bride or bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

The marriage of Miss Loretta Mc Ellin, daughter of John McEllis of 4056 Wilcox avenue, to Richard E. Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Francis Murphy, took place on June 1 at St. Mel's church. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will be at home after July 15 at 1360 Greenleaf avenue.

BUILDING FOR BETTERMENT.

The modern social order is unsatisfactory to good men and women, whether rich or poor. As a result, there is a steadily developing research for remedies which is far more prolific of good results than revolution, war or anarchy.

There are those who are impatient because the millenium is not brought about in a minute, but all good building, whether it be for civic betterment or the construction of a skyscraper, must be relatively slow.

Good building in the civic structure will produce an increase in health, peace and happiness for all of us, and there will be a larger measure thereof for future generations.

Bad building will make it worse for the citizens of today and of many tomorrows.

Believing that such admonitions do not fit them, there are too many who show no regard for the present, let alone the future.

Think it over.

INSECTS

PARASITES ARE PICKY.

LAST year the bodies of two insects were corked up in a two dram vial. One was a honey bee, the other was a tiger beetle. Both were aerial creatures, both died by suffocation with carbon dioxide, and both were treated just alike after death. Yet the bee developed a thick coating of furry mold about her carcass, while the tiger beetle simply dried up and became a mummy. The mold did not touch him. This reveals one of the most interesting angles of insect life, and, incidentally, of the reasons for death of all creatures. Insects have special diseases, just like people.

The mold which killed the honey bee was a special parasite of bees. It attacks this species of insect, and probably no other. In the normal course of events, the sick bee would have crawled into some out of the way corner of the hive and would have died there. After death the mold would have matured and cast its spores, infecting other bees and spreading the disease.

The two dead insects. The bee is covered with a parasitic mold.

Parasites are delicate organisms. There is little of the strong and brutal to them, but much that is guile and calculating insinuation. A parasite falls upon its victim in his weakest spot; never where he is well prepared.

The body of the tiger beetle was not fit soil for the mold. A scavenger mold, such as grows on decaying matter, would have seized both carcasses eagerly and covered both alike. But for the parasite, it was bee meat or none.

Human beings have specialized parasitic diseases, too, and even races are particularly liable to certain sicknesses. Tuberculosis and measles are as deadly as smallpox to South Sea islanders, while Mongols are little affected by them. On the other hand, blacks can live in a degree of filth in their native haunts that would kill a white man, for they have much greater resistance to septicemia.

European observers state that Alpines have a natural power of resistance to trachoma that is not shared by other races. Nordics are liable to alcoholism, a disease of the nerves, more than any other race.

But the parasite, in being so picky of its victim, lays itself open to destruction. A well directed quarantine against infectious diseases will isolate the parasite, and starve it to death. This is the way infectious diseases are fought in both bees and humans.

Shielded Wrath.

"I can't understand," said the judge, "how a tomato could possibly give you that black eye, no matter with what force it was thrown."

"Well, your honor," replied the plaintiff, "you see, the tomato was in a can." M. G. B.

Surely, Surely!

She [from the city]—What is that odor from those fields?

Farmer—That's fertilizer, ma'am.

She—For the land's sake!

Farmer—Yes, ma'am. G. P.

The Thought Paramount.

Hill—When is your daughter thinking of getting married?

Father—Constantly. C. T.

Edgar Himself.

The darky knocked at the back door and asked for a job.

"What is your name?" inquired the housewife.

"My name's Poe, ma'am," he rejoined.

"Poe, eh?" she said. "I suppose some of your family worked for Edgar Allen Poe?"

The colored man looked his surprise and struck himself a resounding whack on the chest. "Ma'am," he said with grandeur, "Ah is Edgar Allen Poe hisself." D. H.

Might Be Same at Home.

He was a head master and his name was Key. He was trying to interest his boys in manners and customs abroad.

Talking on Spain, he said: "Now, in Spain a man who attains eminence is not called 'Sir,' but is given the title

'don.' If I went there, for example, I should be called 'Don Key.'"

And he wondered why they laughed!

R. W. B.

Cheap Energy.

"They say he's a regular dynamo."

"Yes, everything he has on is charged." M. A.

Delayed Opportunity.

I strolled over to the park to see a ball game between two colored teams. Turning to a little colored batboy, I asked:

"What's the score, boy?"

"Fotto two ta nuthin'," he replied. "Ma side is out in field."

"Is your side losing?" I asked.

"Losin'. Why, man alive, we ain't bin ta bat yet." B. C.

Matter of Habit.

"Phwat was the last card Oi dealt ye, Mike?"

"A spade."

"Oi knew it. Oi saw ye spit on your hands before ye picked it up." K. M.

Hard on the "Thermometer."

A woman noticed that the French nurse in giving the baby her morning bath, would plunge the child into the tub without first testing the temperature of the water. Frightened lest the baby would some day either be scalded or badly chilled, she suggested to the nurse that she ought to use a thermometer. "O, no, madame," replied the nurse, "I have ze better way, when baby turns red, I know ze water eet ees too hot, when ze baby turn blue, I know ze water eet ees too cold." L. R. A.

Lacteal Arithmetic.

"Why are you so late with our milk this morning?" an old lady inquired of her milkman.

"Well, you see, mum," he answered, "it's like this. The law allows us 25,000 bacteria to the gallon, and you wouldn't believe how long it takes to count the little beggars." R. J. S.

Painful Interest.

Arriving home from the party, Friend Wife took off her hat and slammed it on the floor. Then she confronted her husband. "I'll never take you to another party as long as I live," she fumed.

"Why?" he asked amazedly.

"You asked Mrs. Jones how her husband was standing the heat."

"Well, what of that?"

"Why, her husband has been dead two months." E. H. S.

Home to Roost.

"Bertie," said mother sorrowfully, "every time you are naughty I get another gray hair."

"My word!" replied Bertie, "you must have been a terror. Look at grandpa!" J. N. S.

Take Your Word for It.

George was going through the motions of a deaf mute until his girl grew impatient and said: "What are you doing?" He—"I'm telling you a funny story!" She—"Why don't you tell it?" He—"It's too funny for words." M. M.

Your last year's fur coat is out of style today

The New Silhouette is the thing

STYLE is the predominant feature of this year's fur coats.

When you come to try on, and see the willowy, svelte, straight-lined body of this season's long and proper garment, as well as the hip-fitting short afternoon coat, you can readily understand why we state that your last year's fur coat is out of style today.

WHAT'S NEW?

Lengths ranging from forty-eight to fifty-three inches are the wanted ones and are governed by the height of the wearer.

The short afternoon coat should extend only to the point of the hip to be right for proper length.

The new sleeves are entirely different from what you have seen in the last three or four years, also the cuffs.

You will find four or five new, stylish, beautiful, wonderful and becoming collars for you to select from.

New trimmings, such as Kolinsky, Mink, Viatka Squirrel, are the wanted, good looking and smart ones.

You will try on many coats to decide that which is most becoming to your individual characteristics.

Never was the style so complimentary to Chicago's women as it is this Fall.

We will take your old garment, which has served you well for a number of seasons past, and cut it over in our workrooms to one of these proper, wanted and up-to-the-minute garments.

Prices today are the lowest for the entire year, even lower than August.

Our workroom is filled up with EXPERT FURRIER MECHANICS, who can do this work expeditiously, and in a manner that makes you a lasting and satisfied friend of this old reliable fur house.

In some instances your coat, perhaps, will only need eight or twelve inches in length, but whatever is required, our expert fur salesman will advise you honestly, conscientiously and for a saving in each and every instance.

Come in tomorrow and give us an opportunity to show you what this service means, and how economically we will make your old-style coat look like a new one. You will be pleased with the Bishop service, so do not delay. Later in the season prices are higher.

We can arrange for Fall delivery if desired.

Discuss Problems of Deafened at Convention Here

By Kate Webber.

PROBLEMS of the deafened will be discussed at the three days' convention of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing, opening tomorrow at the Congress hotel. Leaders of hard of hearing work from twenty-two organizations in this country and Canada will be in attendance.

The Chicago League of Hard of Hearing, of which Mrs. A. L. Drum is president, will be host to the delegates while in the city. Maj. Harold Hays of New York will give the opening address tomorrow morning. Other speakers will be Miss Annetta Peck, New York City; Earl E. Eubank, professor of sociology of Ohio State university; Drs. George A. Shambaugh and J. Gordon Wilson of Chicago, Dr. Gordon Berry of Worcester, Mass., and Dr. Karl A. Menninger of Topeka, Kas.

Dr. James Kerr Love, who will come from Glasgow, Scotland, to attend the conference and who is with Thomas A. Edison on the honorary board of managers of the federation, will be the principal speaker on the second day. His topic will be "Classification of the Deaf and Deafened Children from the Medical and Educational Standpoint."

Miss Gertrude Torrey of the Chicago league will be chairman of the conference devoted to education and Miss Valeria McDermott of the Chicago league will have charge of the session on employment and rehabilitation, vocational studies, and scholarships.

Other speakers will be Dr. Max Goldstein, on "The Handicaps and Correction of the Deafened Child"; Dr. Norval H. Pierce of Chicago, on "Value of Otologic Examinations in State Schools for the Deaf"; "Problems of the Deaf as Revealed in School Examinations and How to Meet Them" will be discussed by Dr. Franklin W. Bock of Rochester, N. Y.; "Medical Treatment of the Deafened Child," by Dr. Joseph C. Beck of Chicago.

Elmo Calkins of New York, Mildred Kennedy of Boston and Miss Josephine Timberlake of Washington, D. C., will discuss educational problems; Dr. Harry E. Mock of Chicago; Miss Estelle E. Samuelson of New York, and Mrs. B. C. Bowen of Toledo, will speak on "Employment and Rehabilitation." Wednesday will be devoted to the annual business meeting and election of officers with a round table discussion on welfare work and a session on lip reading in charge of Miss Mary McCowen.

The executive committee of the Chicago League of the Hard of Hearing includes Mrs. Charles Fuller, Mrs. Edith Flory, Mrs. B. F. Horsting, Mrs. Louise Steiner.

The members of the advisory board are Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Frederick Latimer Wells, Miss Harriet Vittum, Miss Rose L. Dickinson, Miss Emma D. Knox, Theodore Dickinson, Peter A. Mortensen, the Rev. John Timothy Stone, W. R. Abbott, Richmond Dean, D. F. Kelly, Norman D. Fraser, Judge C. N. Goodwin, Orpheus M. Schantz, William Neil Jr., and Revillo F. Fuller.

Mrs. Frank K. Hoover is a member of the committee of the Young Women's Christian association which has for its aim the maintenance of a camp in Michigan where Chicago business girls may enjoy healthful, happy, and inexpensive outings. Mrs. Hoover recently gave to the camp, known as Forest Beach, a new recreation hall.

The North Oak Park Woman's club, of which Mrs. George R. Eaton is president, had its beginnings in the desires of a number of young mothers who met in the evenings while the men of the house looked after the children and home duties. Through the perseverance of these few women the club has grown to a membership of 140, and has for its aim the study of the arts, the Bible, hygiene, Americanization, and domestic science.

Mrs. A. L. Drum, president of the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing, will give the welcome address tomorrow morning at the opening of a three day convention at the Congress. Delegates from twenty-two organizations will be in attendance. Dr. George Shambaugh, Dr. James Kerr Love of Glasgow, Scotland, Dr. Harold Hays of New York, and Dr. J. Gordon Wilson will be among the speakers.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulsified."

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Y. W. C. A. Camp to House 1,500 Girls During Summer

FOR some 1,500 Chicago business girls dreams of summer vacations will come true this year at Forest Beach camp, the Y. W. C. A. camp at New Buffalo, Mich., which will start its sixth season on June 23, according to announcement made by Miss Grace M. Dudley, chairman of the Y. W. C. A. camp committee.

The girls will crowd into two vacation weeks enough fun, exercise and out of door good times to last through the next fifty weeks of work at desk, typewriter or counter. The camp accommodates 150 girls at a time in its cottages, "Big Bear," "Middle Bear" and "Brown Thrush," and in the groups of tent houses that cluster on three wooded points of land overlooking the lake. It is open to any employed girl, whether or not she is a member of the Y. W. C. A. The cost of a week's outing is just enough to allow Forest Beach to be maintained as one of the self-supporting departments of the Y. W. C. A.

From the first call to "morning dip" to the final "lights out" at 10 o'clock there is never a dull minute in the program of swimming, hikes, out of doors sports, beach parties, hayrides, and nature study, although for those who need rest more than any strenuous activity there is always the chance to escape to the beach or woods or the seclusion of a hammock and a book. The forest beach committee has been at work supervising the task of house cleaning and getting camp ready to welcome the first delegation of girls on the 23d.

Millhurst, the Y. W. C. A. girl reserve camp on the Fox river, near Plano, Ill., will open on July 2. Millhurst was formerly an old mill on the river's bank, which was purchased several years ago by the association and remodeled into an ideal vacation spot for grade school, high school, and younger business girls. The camp is the special property of the Y. W. C. A. girl reserves, but is open to any girl under 20. Mrs. George F. Brown Jr. is chairman of the Millhurst committee, and Miss Sue Weddell, metropolitan girl reserve executive, will be camp director, assisted by a group of counselors to lead in athletics, nature study, swimming, handcraft, and horseback riding. A feature of Millhurst this year will be a camp store, managed by the girl reserves, which will sell ice cream cones, chocolate bars and similar camp necessities. All proceeds from the store will be devoted to the pledge of $500 made by the Girl Reserves to the Y. W. C. A. budget fund.

Registrations for both Forest Beach and Millhurst may be made at the office of the camp register at Central branch, 59 East Monroe street.

Camp Hammond, the only camp for colored girls in the vicinity of Chicago, will be open from July 15 until Sept. 3, at North Hammond, Ind., under the auspices of the Indiana Avenue branch of the Y. W. C. A.

MISS ELLA MARIE WILLIAMS.
[Chambers Photo.]

Miss Ella Marie Williams will play the rôle of Alice in "The Witching Hour," to be given next Sunday afternoon at the Studebaker theater by the department of dramatic arts of Rosary college.

MISS IDA GORE.
[Moffett Photo.]

Miss Ida Gore was elected first vice president of the Sunbeam league at its annual meeting, held recently. The league devotes its efforts towards charitable work, which includes providing kindergarten instructors for children's wards in hospitals.

CLUB NOTES

The Woman's Association of Commerce will give a dinner tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Union League club. Frank Emerich will speak on "Pittsburgh Plus," and there will be discussion regarding the present day building costs and housing conditions.

Mrs. G. Liedtke of 7142 Crandon avenue will be hostess on Friday for an all day industrial meeting of the Hyde Park branch of the Oakhaven auxiliary.

A reception for the principal and teachers of the Shakespeare school will be given on Tuesday at 3:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association. There will be a program of drills and music and an exhibition of the pupils' handiwork.

A card party for the benefit of St. Anne's day nursery will be given on Tuesday afternoon at the Garfield Park refectory.

St. Catherine's high school auxiliary will give a luncheon on Saturday at 1 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle for the members of the graduating class.

A lecture in Russian on "Russia of Today; Lights and Shadows," will be given by M. Guidany on Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Woman's City club.

The June tea of the Illinois Women's Athletic club will be given this afternoon from 4:30 until 7 o'clock.

MRS. GERTRUDE ALDEN NEELY.
[Biron Photo.]

Mrs. Gertrude Alden Neely is president of the Midwest chapter, Alden Kindred of America, which will hold its eleventh annual reunion on July 4 at Lincoln park. Plans have been made for addresses and a program of general attraction.

Birds

A black poll warbler.

THEY FLY BY INSTINCT.

WHEN morning dawned the woods were filled with flocks of black polled warblers, flitting like living shadows from light to light, where the sunshine came streaming through the leaves. They had come in the night; in another day they would be gone, flown on northward.

Black polls, frail little birds with bones no larger than straws, can fly better than the best of man's airplanes. Every spring they migrate from South America to Canada and every autumn they fly back. The distance is from 5,000 to 7,000 miles. Some fall by the wayside, but many make the journey.

Black poll cross the gulf of Mexico at one flight. For twenty-four hours on end they are in the air, ceaselessly beating their tiny wings guided by an unerring instinct. They follow their uncharted courses through the air until they arrive safe at their destination.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

$4,000,000 Outlay to Push Lutheran Enterprises Urged

THE Missouri Synod Lutheran church, with 1,000 delegates and officials present, will meet at Concordia college, Fort Wayne, Ind., beginning next Wednesday and continuing in session ten days.

The president of the synod is the Rev. F. Pfotenhauer of Chicago, who will read his message and appoint the various committees on Wednesday afternoon, following devotional services in the First St. Paul's church, the Rev. J. Miller, pastor.

Petitions have been received asking for an appropriation of $4,000,000 for missions and colleges for the next three years. No petitions have been received for changes in doctrine or principles, but over 200 filed ask for changes in methods to improve world wide work.

The Missouri synod was organized in Chicago seventy-six years ago with twelve congregations. The synod now has 3,073 pastors, 3,430 congregations, and 1,041,514 souls. There are 989 ministers engaged in missionary work. Chicago is now the strongest center of the synod and an effort will be made to permanently locate here the residence of the president. At present the foreign home missions of the synod, comprising Europe, South America, Australia, and New Zealand, are operated through a board located in Chicago. On next Sunday a missionary rally will be held addressed by Prof. W. H. T. Dau, St. Louis, Vice President F. Brandt, St. Louis, and the Rev. A. Burgdorf, Chicago.

Archbishop Mundelein will officiate today at 11 o'clock at the dedication of St. Christopher's Catholic church, Midlothian.

The Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of Hyde Park Baptist church, will preach Aug. 5 and Dean Shailer Mathews of the divinity school of the University of Chicago will preach Aug. 12 at Park Avenue Baptist church, New York. Park avenue church recently dedicated a magnificent church edifice. It is the church attended by the Rockefeller family.

The Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D.D., pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, Detroit, a former president of Northwestern university, will preach the baccalaureate sermon today at 3 o'clock at the university gymnasium, Evanston.

The Rev. Merrell E. Boulton, pastor of St. John's English Lutheran church, Maywood, Ill., will celebrate today the silver jubilee of his ordination to the ministry. He is a graduate of the Chicago Lutheran seminary and served pastorates in Goodhue, Minn., Mishawaka, Ind., and The Dalles, Oregon, before coming to Maywood.

A bazaar will be held on the grounds of St. Frances of Rome Catholic church, Austin boulevard and 13th street, beginning next Saturday and continuing over the Fourth of July. The proceeds will be for the erection of a new school and church, ground for which will be broken between the dates of the bazaar. The parish has only been established three months, and the Rev. John L. Kelly is pastor. Thomas Jones, vice president of the Baker State bank, is general chairman of the bazaar committee, and Mrs. Frances Seidl is the general secretary.

The Rev. G. C. Whimsett, LL. D., pastor of the South Chicago Presbyterian church, Exchange avenue and 91st street, announces that he will speak at 8 p. m. today on "The Mexican in Our Midst." "There are," says Dr. Whimsett, "4,000 Mexicans in South Chicago. Our church is holding classes in English for them and promoting Americanization work. It is a new problem for the community, and we invite the cooperation of all local business and professional men."

The commencement exercises of St. Cyril's college will be held tomorrow at St. Ambrose auditorium, 47th street and Ellis avenue. Archbishop Mundelein will preside. There are forty-six in the graduating class.

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the Luther League of Illinois will be held next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the People's English Lutheran church, 110th and State streets, the Rev. Ira W. Troxel, pastor. A pageant, "Christ in America," will be given Saturday evening. The Rev. Oscar Blackwelder, Roanoke, Va.; the Rev. M. J. Bieber, D. D., Minneapolis, and the Rev. W. T. Nicholas, D. D., Springfield, Ill., will be among the convention speakers.

THE REV. JOHN B. SCANLAN.
(Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo)

The Rev. John B. Scanlan, pastor and organizer of St. Dorothy's parish, 78th street and Eberhart avenue, will celebrate tomorrow the silver anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Father Scanlan will be in attendance at Niagar university, from which he was graduated in 1898. Father Scanlan's relatives and friends will attend an anniversary mass at Brooklyn, N. Y. Father Scanlan was ordained by Archbishop Feehan in Chicago June 18, 1898. He was appointed assistant at St. Charles Borromeo church, where he remained for seventeen years. On June 16, 1916, he was appointed by Archbishop Mundelein to organize the parish of St. Dorothy's, where he has remained as pastor since. A new combination church and school was built and first mass said in the new structure in November, 1917.

Announcement is made of an outing and picnic on Labor day, Sept. 3, under auspices of Holy Name society at North Chicago. A similar gathering last year was attended by thousands. The announcement is made by the Rev. Daniel Byrnes, director of the organization, through the Holy Name office. All general officers of the archdiocesan union are expected to be present.

The Rev. Edward Archibald Thompson, D. D., pastor of the Union Congregational church, Quincy, Ill., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Congregational church of La Grange and expects to enter upon his duties Sept. 1. Dr. Thompson is a graduate of Alma college and the Yale university divinity school and a post graduate student of Edinborough, Scotland.

The Drama League of America will have a course in religious drama in Chicago Aug. 26 to Sept. 1.

Dr. John Timothy Stone will make the opening address tomorrow at 3:30 at the Illinois Presbyterian conference combined with the annual meeting of the synod and synodical at the Monmouth college campus, Monmouth, Ill. On Thursday evening Henry C. Wallace, United States secretary of agriculture, will speak on "Our Country." Prof. John H. Coulter of the University of Chicago will conduct a study class on Friday on the subject, "Scientific Thinking for Young People." Chicago pastors and national church leaders will be on the five days' program, which is the first attempt to combine the synod with a conference on popular subjects of church life and work.

The Rev. F. S. Fleming, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues, will sail next Saturday from Boston on the SS Scythia for England to be absent until September. He will be a delegate to the Church congress which meets next month in London. Following the congress he will attend a series of lectures at Oxford university. Mr. Fleming's trip abroad was made possible by gifts from his parishioners in appreciation of his unusual service in church erection and debt paying.

Desplaines, Ill., campmeeting under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church will open July 4. On Sunday, July 8, the sermons will be by Dr. George R. Grose, president of DePauw university; Greencastle, Ind.; Dr. George Elliott, editor of the Methodist Review, New York, and Dr. W. R. Wedderspoon, pastor of St. James' church, Chicago. Prof. Edmund D. Soper of Northwestern university will give a series of addresses at the evening meetings. The Rev. H. Clifford Northcott is chairman of the program committee.

The woman's summer school of missions under the auspices of the interdenominational committee of the central west for missions will begin tomorrow at Winona Lake, Ind., continuing one week. Mrs. H. L. Hill, N. Y., will lecture on the study books and Prof. George L. Robinson, Chicago, will conduct the Bible study. Missionaries and lecturers from several denominations will be present.

St. Mary's mission church at Techny, Ill., said to be one of the finest Catholic churches in America, having twenty-two altars, each one named for a pioneer in the mission field, will be dedicated today by the Very Rev. William Gier, S. V., who gives his blessing before departing for missionary work in South America. The church is in charge of the Society of the Divine Word.

ZOOLOGY

He once roamed the site of Los Angeles.

THERE ONCE WERE LIONS HERE.

In Pleistocene days there were lions in California. They were not little cats, either, but huge, fierce beasts, stronger than a Siberian tiger, and one-third heavier than the biggest African lion. Bones of these beasts are found in the La Brae asphalt pit, in Los Angeles.

In those days California had a much greater Asiatic cast than it has now. There were peacocks in the underbrush. Whether it is a coincidence or not, no one knows, but peacocks and huge cats are always found together. It is true in India today. In former times it was true over most of the northern hemisphere.

The range of the lion is greatly restricted now and that of his near relative, the Asiatic tiger, is dwindling, too. There is little anatomical difference between lions and tigers, save that lions have manes while tigers have stripes. It is not known exactly how the California lions were marked, but as the climate there was semi-desert, it is assumed that they were tawny.

When the Greeks came into Greece, about 3,000 years ago, there were many lions in the forests of Thrace. The kings of Mesopotamia greatly enjoyed lion hunting, which they pursued in horse drawn chariots. There have been no lions here for 2,000 years.

Big felines are now decidedly out of place in the world. Their strength and their ferocity earn for them the fear and hatred of a weaker muscled but infinitely more cunning and implacable enemy, man. But most particularly, man has curtailed the range of the cats by cutting off their food supply.

Range, present and past, of lions and tigers.

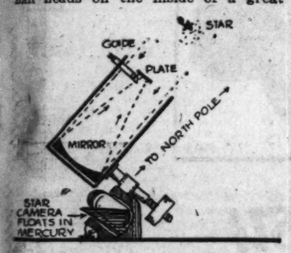
ASTRONOMY

A LIKENESS OF THE SKY.

CELESTIAL objects that no eye can ever see can still be photographed. The human eye sees things in a tenth of a second or less. All the view that it will ever see is recorded in this time. Subsequent vision may enlarge the number of details remembered; but it does not increase the amount seen. Rather the contrary is true, for an eye grows tired after long use, and sees less and less.

Star cameras have exposures two or three nights long. An ordinary snapshot camera has its shutter adjusted for a tiny fraction of a second, and even a time exposure seldom takes more than a second or two. But a star camera is uncovered, and is exposed from dusk to dawn.

The stars appear to whirl about the earth. They actually stand still, and it is this globe which spins. They seem to move as though they were nail heads on the inside of a great hollow sphere, pivoted on the poles, and whose equator intersects our horizon at the east and west points.



Mounting of a star camera.

Star cameras are adjusted to automatically follow the stars. Once the sights have been set, the astronomer does not need to worry about the major details of following, for the machinery takes care of that. He sits at the eye piece, hour after hour, keeping some star continually on the cross hairs. To do this he has two control wheels. One makes the telescope drive fast; the other slow.

When night settles down and all the light is out of the sky, astronomers come forth to work. The shutter over the slit in the dome roof is rolled back, the driving mechanism of the telescope started, and the great glass swung over to the east, where the object to be photographed is rising. A plate is slipped in place, the cover is drawn, and a suitable guide star found and identified. Then the shutter is opened, and the photograph begins to take.

Hour after hour, the astronomer sits at his glass. From time to time he shifts the position of his observing chair, for the glass is so large that it turns in a wide arc as it crosses the sky.

Morning comes. Before the first streaks of gray light glows in the east, the shutter is closed tight. The astronomer calls it a night, and goes home.

The next evening, he repeats the exposure. He resets the star camera most accurately upon the guide star, so that its image will fall exactly upon the guide star, so that its image will fall exactly upon the dot exposed last night. Another night of watching passes. Perhaps days of rain intervene. No matter, the stars remain the same. A third exposure is made, and perhaps a fourth.

Then the plate is developed. The visible stars are of course greatly overexposed. But between the stars, so faint that to our eyes it seems like empty nothingness, faint nebulas appear.

The whole region of the Milky Way is filled with nebula. The running gossamer band we see is really only the brighter part of it. Far on each side, lying in strange shapes, are ultra-telescopic star fields and clouds of nebula, so faint that only a star camera can reveal them.

How black nebula hides stars.

Women's Work The World Over

Mrs. Florence Thompson of New York is perhaps the only woman bricklayer who is an expert in her line. She learned her trade from her husband, who conducts a bricklaying school in New York. She recently laid all the bricks for a new home of her own.

When Queen Mary of England travels by train she will not allow a speed of more than fifty miles an hour to be made.

For the first time in hundreds of years the rules of the courts of Japan, China, India, and Egypt were broken recently when Judge Jean H. Norris, New York's only woman judge, was allowed to occupy the judicial bench of those countries.

Though she has risen to millions from comparatively poor circumstances, Mrs. Henry Ford, wife of the noted automobile manufacturer, has never been a social climber and much prefers to devote herself to her husband, their son, Edsel, and the latter's two children.

Miss Lulu Shaw, recently installed as mayor of Crandon, Wis., is the first woman in that state to hold such a position.

Mme. Milada Bondy of Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, is now in this country for the purpose of making a study of women's organizations.

Foot troubles need no longer sap your nervous energy

This week you can find relief easily, quickly, here at our store

The pain of those poor aching feet—how you long to get rid of it! For not only is the constant irritation distressing, but, as physicians well know, it saps your nervous energy too.

This week, from the 16th to the 23rd of June is your chance to get genuine relief from foot ills—without even a change in your usual style of footwear. You can learn this week the scientific way to real foot comfort through the help of the well-known foot authority, Dr. Wm. M. Scholl.

It may be that your arches are breaking down. You know the danger signals—intense weariness of the feet upon the slightest exertion, shooting pains like rheumatism in the feet or legs, weak, turning ankles, cramped toes, tender corns; callouses or bunions. Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazers and Arch Supports, as applied to each individual case, correct these symptoms by gently supporting the bones and ligaments, increasing the circulation, and stimulating muscular action until the strength of the arch is restored.

Since no two foot conditions are the same, each case requires individual treatment, that is, an adjustable arch support. Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Appliances are fitted to each individual foot condition.

We are one of 20,000 shoe and department stores throughout the country with men trained in Dr. Scholl's methods. We can fit you with the Dr. Scholl Appliance or Remedy which your particular trouble needs.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads relieve corns quickly, safely, by removing the cause—friction-pressure, and healing the irritated surface. Price, 35c a box

Crooked, worn-down heels? Dr. Scholl's Walk-Strate Heel Pads correct this condition, even up the body weight, and preserve the shape of the shoes. Price, 40c a pair

Arch gently supported and body's weight equally distributed by Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer. Light and springy to wear. Eases feet, body, and nerves

NAPOLEON ONCE SAID

"A Foot-Sore Army Is an Army Half Defeated"

When our Boys went into the war the Government ordered over one million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet, to make their shoes comfortable and help them on their long marches.

This was regarded as the "last word" in scientific outfitting, and emphasizes the testimony of millions of people who use Allen's Foot-Ease for the quick relief of Corns, Bunions, and Calluses, and for Tired, Aching, Sweating, Smarting, Tender Feet. It takes the friction from the shoe, rests the feet and makes walking easy.

At Night, after excessive dancing or walking, sprinkle Allen's Foot-Ease in the foot-bath. Those who use Allen's Foot-Ease have solved their foot troubles. Sample package and a Foot-Ease Walking Doll sent FREE. Address ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, La Roy, N. Y.

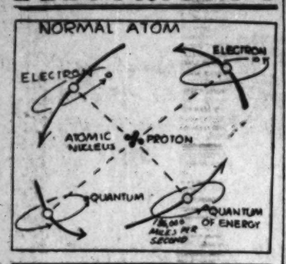
ELECTRICITY



Plan of the radiation of energy.

ENERGY HAS WEIGHT.

THE physical sciences today are advancing by leaps and bounds, faster than ever before in the history of the world. Old ideas are everywhere being overturned, and new facts are revealed almost daily. Chemistry is completely upside down, now that the full significance of radio-activity and the transmutation of elements is beginning to be realized. In physics the composition of matter and electricity has been discovered. Newtonian astronomy needs modification. Matter and energy have been shown to be different forms of the same thing. There is seldom more than standing room when lectures on the physical mathematics of Einstein are given, thus attesting that students and serious-minded persons everywhere realize that a profound revolution is occurring in our modes of thought.

Einstein in 1921 pointed out that inertia is not a property of matter, as had always been supposed before, but of the energy in the mass. A cannon ball has the power to knock a house to pieces by virtue of the energy imparted to it by the powder in the gun, rather than because it is of iron, and is flying and heavy. The more energy there is imparted to a body; the more powder there is detonated in the gun, the greater is the inertia, and consequently destroying weight of the ball. It seems strange that old-time mathematicians never realized the true significance of mass, matter, energy, and inertia, but the fact remains they did not.

When you impart energy to a body you actually increase its mass, for the energy is really so much more matter added.

Einstein gives a formula whereby any one can compute the rise of inertia as energy is added to a body. If the amount of energy added be called E, he says, then the increase of inertia will be E divided by the square of the velocity of light, 186,000 miles per second. The increase is slight for the large clumsy motions of ordinary mechanics, but in radio-telephony, applied electricity, chemistry and astronomy, it becomes an important factor, and an engineer specializing in these branches cannot disregard it.

Einstein further says, and all modern physicists agree, that the velocity of light is a fundamental value in all matter. It appears that particles of energy rotate about atoms in small electrical circuits with the velocity of light. Should anything happen to break up or disturb the atom, some of the quanta are loosened and they go flying off, whirling as they travel. This produces light, or streams of radiant energy traveling 186,000 miles per second, and seeming to have a wave motion.

Evolution

POORLY PLANNED LEGS.

DINOSAURS' legs were of the usual active terrestrial type, shaped like an "N" on edge. In order to gain power for the talonlike toenails, heavy muscles had to be located low down on the foot. This materially aided in giving the solidity to the hind legs which the upper structure demanded, but it must have seriously hampered the beast's activity.

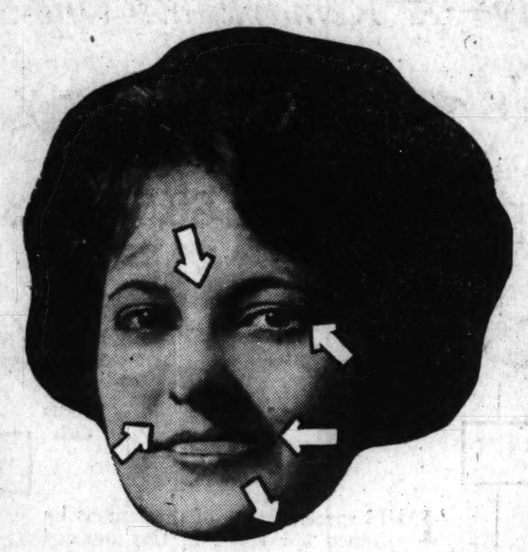
No More Wrinkles!

Amazing Domino Treatment Smooths Them Away Like Magic



A WONDERFUL new discovery now makes wrinkles entirely unnecessary! No longer need women fear the little telltale marks of time which rob them of their youth and charm. For science has found a quick, easy and inexpensive way to smooth away every tired line, every laugh wrinkle, every deep frown mark.

With this new treatment it is almost as if a magic wand were waved across your face, banishing every line and wrinkle and restoring the firm, youthful freshness of the skin.

Removes the Cause

This new discovery is based on a simple natural principle. There is no tedious massaging, no painful electrical treatment, no harmful lotions. This new treatment is entirely different. Instead of merely treating the symptoms, it gets right at the cause of wrinkles. By removing the real cause in a natural and harmless way, the wrinkles and lines vanish almost before you realize it.

Watch the Results!

You will scarcely believe your eyes when you see what wonderful results this new discovery—called Domino Wrinkle Cream—can bring. Even after the first few days you will find that your face has grown younger looking. Not only your friends, but yourself, will be astonished at the new youthfulness your skin quickly acquires.

Domino Wrinkle Cream besides banishing wrinkles contains certain marvelous ingredients which soften and whiten the skin, molding it into a new, smooth, firm surface.

Guaranteed to Remove Every Wrinkle

Domino Wrinkle Cream is guaranteed to banish each and every wrinkle, no matter how deep seated it may be, and the $10,000 deposit in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia backs up this guarantee. If within ten days you are not more than satisfied with the improvement it brings you, your money will be instantly refunded, without question.

Get It Today

Surely, nothing will do more to ruin one's whole appearance than unsightly tired lines or wrinkles. Yet there is no longer any excuse for them. For Domino Wrinkle Cream will quickly rid you of every wrinkle—or it costs nothing.

In spite of its marvelous qualities and costly ingredients, you can get a full size package of Domino Wrinkle Cream at good drug and department stores everywhere at a very low price. Domino Wrinkle Cream is a natural preparation—and works always. You won't have to wait long for results, either. So get it today. Remember, results guaranteed, or you pay nothing.

Watch the Lines Disappear

No matter how long you have suffered the humiliation of wrinkles—no matter how many preparations you have used without results—you will be amazed and delighted at how quickly Domino Wrinkle Cream banishes every line and furrow, leaving the skin soft, clear and wonderfully smooth. No tiresome massaging—no unnecessary bother of any kind. Before retiring, simply apply a small quantity of this marvelous cream to the wrinkles to be removed, pressing it gently into the skin. In 30 minutes remove the cream, take your mirror and note the results. You will be amazed at the improvements shown even after the very first few treatments.

Lines formed by arching the forehead or frowning can now easily and quickly be removed forever.

Tiny lines around the eyes (crow's feet) mar your natural beauty. This new treatment will soon banish them.

Laugh lines and chin wrinkles are often mistaken for marks of age. These, too, can now be painlessly and effectively smoothed away.

Freckles— Dissolve Them With New Cream

Amazing New Discovery Goes Straight to the Little Pigment Spots and Dissolves Them—Almost Over Night. Also Softens, Nourishes and Beautifies the Skin.

NO longer need you despair as you look at those disfiguring little brown spots. No longer need you be a slave to hat and parasols, or fear to get into a bathing suit.

For the new Domino Freckle Cream is GUARANTEED to banish every freckle. Unlike many other creams and lotions, which merely cover up the spots, the new cream removes them in a gentle, natural way.

You simply apply it at night before retiring, like any ordinary cold cream. No bother and no muss, but the action is almost magical. Even on the first application the lighter spots disappear, and within a few days every mark and blemish vanishes. Not only does it leave the skin spotless and milk-white, but softer and more beautiful than ever before.

How It Works

Science tells us that freckles are simply stains made by the action of sunlight and wind on certain sensitive skin cells, called pigment cells. Persons with very fair skins have very few of these cells, so that the stains come in spots instead of in a general tan.

The specialists of Domino House have at last worked out a simple solvent for these little brown stains. Just as milk neutralizes and dissolves an ink stain on your white dress or snowy cloth, so the new Domino Freckle Cream quickly dissolves and removes the freckle stains, leaving the skin fair, clear and milk-white.

Guaranteed to Remove Every Freckle

Domino Freckle Cream—triple strength—is absolutely guaranteed. A deposit of $10,000 in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia insures the return of your money on request if you are not delighted with the results. Costs only $1.00 for package lasting many weeks. Sold at all good drug and department stores. Get a package today.

Permanent Wave Effect

Now Quick, Cheap and Easy

YOU have always longed for soft, fluffy, curly hair. And now—at last—you can have it! For science has perfected a wonderful new liquid which, when applied to the most stubborn hair, gives it a beautiful permanent wave effect, making it wonderfully curly, delightfully soft, gloriously wavy.

It is called Domino Curlette. Nothing just like it has ever been known before. No occasion to do away with your tried and tested method of kids or silk curlers. But Domino Curlette is something more, something different, something entirely unique. Use the same old kids or silk curlers if you wish, but before doing so moisten your hair with just a few drops of Domino Curlette—and behold! A miracle of beauty will have been performed. Not only you but your friends will be astonished at the sudden, beautiful transformation in your hair.

A Marvelous Beauty Discovery

A so-called "permanent wave" costs about $25 and sometimes lasts four months, often less. But now you can have what we consider a far more beautiful wave—full of life and fluff—and you can have it now for $1.00.

Just think what this means! No more costly fees to hairdressers. No more sitting for hours undergoing the tortures of permanent wave methods. For in your own home you can now quickly acquire charming wavy hair that your friends will always envy.

Natural—Not Artificial—Waves

No matter how straight, dull or unmanageable your hair may have been, just one application of this wonderful discovery will make it fall in soft, glistening waves and natural silky curls. It gives the most lifeless hair a new entrancing luster. Only one application will keep your hair wavy and in curl for a week or more.

"Permanent wave" methods often kill the natural luster and life of the hair, and produce waves too artificial looking to be beautiful.

But Domino Curlette contains the very elements needed to make your hair naturally wavy and curly. That is why it always adds a new charm to one's appearance.

Money-Back Guarantee

Domino Curlette is sold at good drug stores and department stores everywhere—at the amazingly low price of only $1.00 for a bottle lasting many weeks.

So that everyone may try this new discovery, we are making this special introductory offer. Get Domino Curlette today. Try it. Then if not more than delighted with the beautiful wavy hair it gives you, your money will be instantly refunded. The money-back guarantee is backed by a special deposit of $10,000 in the Producers & Consumers Bank of Philadelphia, so you do not risk a penny.

Good-Bye Gray Hair!

Science Shows How Any Man or Woman Can Now Quickly Restore Hair to Its Own Original Color

Tru-Tone, the marvelous new scientific discovery, quickly restores the true, original color to gray hair. It is not an ordinary dye, or stain, or tint. It is pleasant and simple to use—none of the muss and trouble of ordinary color restorers.

It makes no difference whether your hair was black, brown, blonde or auburn. Tru-Tone works equally well, making your hair appear exactly the same as it was before it had even a trace of gray in it. It makes no difference how gray your hair is—Tru-Tone will restore it, and no one need know you are banishing your gray hair if you don't want them to.

Wonderful for Thin, Falling Hair

It was only after extensive research and experiment that Tru-Tone was discovered. It is just a clear, pure liquid—almost colorless. It contains tonic properties that stimulate the natural growth of the hair. Tru-Tone, therefore, not only restores the natural color to your hair, but makes it thick, glossy and beautiful at the same time. You can use it with absolute confidence knowing that it cannot possibly discolor the hair or harm it in any way. Our guarantee of absolute satisfaction is backed by a deposit of $10,000 in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia.

Already Tru-Tone has banished gray hair for thousands of others—and it will do the same for you. Remember—it restores to gray hair its exact, original, youthful shade. Money instantly refunded if not more than delighted.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALL AMBITIOUS SALESMEN NOW EMPLOYED.

Ambitious men—to you I direct this advertisement. When I say ambitious men I don't mean "wishers." I mean real money-men filled with real ambition, who want real success in a big way—men who realize real success does not come like a whirlwind overnight, but by steadily going forward in the right direction. The real ambitious man worships the Goddess Success. To her he will sell himself body and soul. To gain her favor he will work day and night, if necessary, suffer privations, and offer many self-sacrifices. To this type of man I may have hope that there are many of them in Chicago; real success is awaiting them.

If you are one of the real ambitious type, you are now employed. Ambitious men are never idle. That your present occupation does not offer the possibilities that your definite aim in life demands is certain, or you would not be reading this advertisement. Many an ambitious man is marking time in a position offering scant possibilities for the future, but hesitates to make a change because of the uncertainty of any new business.

To you I have an unusual proposition to offer.

For 12 years I have watched the material progress of this business and the remarkable advancement made by many men in this business.

I therefore write you from the viewpoint of a man who from intimate contact knows exactly what the conditions are.

I know the business opportunity in this company from three definite angles.

In the first place, I understand it from the man's point of view. I know what the inside picture is and can vouch for the sincerity and fairness of the organization.

In the second place, I know what the men themselves think of it, which, to you, is more important.

And finally, I know the opportunity from the selling experience, which is best of all.

Now, let me tell you seriously about this proposition. We are constantly attracting real salesmen to our organization. We believe that the best way to break into this business is to devote a few hours a night, two or three nights a week, in your spare time until you have convinced yourself that the opportunity would warrant you making a permanent connection. We will give you the same personal co-operation that is given our permanent salesmen. You will not be required to canvass. You will be required to call upon three or four prospects a week, who have written us in response to our advertising. If you sell one a week, your earnings for your spare time will be over $200 a week. Several of our part time men are now earning in excess of $50 per week.

In addition to having real ambition, you must have real selling instinct—ability to sense constructive selling points and express them effectively—in the way that is possible only for a man of character and integrity.

You must have vision and believe in the wonderful growth of Chicago.

I have seen many men who possess these qualifications join this organization, in making it possible for the thousands of Chicagoans to own their own homes, and advance to important and lucrative positions. I have seen them make rapid progress in short periods of time.

These men are here in this organization now. You can meet them personally. They will tell you themselves what their experience has been. They will tell you of the substantial profits which their commissions have brought them in their spare time. Their success should challenge your interest.

You are primarily interested, and rightly so, in your own business success. There is no question about the bigness and genuineness of this opportunity. It reaches out to every part of Chicago, everyone must have a home to live in. It is wholly a question of whether you place upon yourself. This I want to say very earnestly to you: If you have backbone enough and if you have backbone enough after working all day to tackle this proposition in your spare time, make it your business to come to our office Monday evening at 7:30 promptly, where our entire plan of operation will be outlined in full at a special lecture. Put yourself to this trouble, and I will take to that responsibility of promising you that our meeting will be worth the trouble.

IN CHICAGO AND ALL LARGE CITIES

We are adding to our forces a number of resident, stout hearted, well built men to set up salesmen, in Chicago and in all the 50,000, and over, cities of the U. S.

We want men who can qualify themselves to win in interviews with the active, successful men in all lines of business and professions.

If you are put on the job, ten words sent into the prospect's private office will get you inside and in right. We have five leads for you.

Once inside, you will have a genuinely interesting contract to explain, and to close. The profits are limitless for you.

We have no merchandise nor any of the old-time and admittedly tough propositions to sell. You will bring good nature to the buyer and a real hearing.

Tell us why you deserve to be added to our forces. What, in time, your experience has been, and your age.

Give us a brief word picture of the sort of man you are, your address and phone number, if you have one, so that an interview will be arranged. Address H C 421, Tribune.

THE ADMIRAL,

On Lake Michigan, 909 Foster-av., ½ block east of Sheridan-rd., offers you a rare opportunity to enjoy the fullest comforts of living during the hot summer months.

Ideally located on Lake Michigan, in the heart of Chicago's North Shore residence district, with its large Italian garden, hundreds of feet of pergolas and walk, together with every advantage of summer sports, with the theater and shopping district but a few minutes' ride by motor bus, elevated and nearby car line. A magnificent new hotel of spacious apartment homes of 2, 3 or 4 rooms, beautifully decorated and everything furnished, including silver, linen, china, gas, electricity, laundry, refrigeration and maid service. A definite departure in apartment hotel arrangement, where one may enjoy the intimacy of a distinctive home. The main and private dining room and roof garden on 11th floor afford a beautiful panorama of the lake shore. Further information and descriptive booklet phone EDGEWATER 5060.

The Admiral cuisine is unexcelled for quality and service. Our dining rooms are particularly suited for banquets and parties.

BUILDERS, BROKERS, ARCHITECTS! CONSIDER THIS

Why is the North Michigan Avenue District—East, the Best?

Because it is bounded by N. Michigan-av. and Lake Shore drive. The choicest property nearest the loop. Strengthened by adjoining a great industrial center. The building of the Furniture Exchange, the largest building in the world, will provide thousands of out-of-town buyers for Streeterville Hotel sub-district. Now the improvements of great office buildings on Michigan-blvd.—housing thousands—will bring incalculable buying power. This is the lowest priced property in the world. I have a large vacant corner for sale. Think of it! Only $15 per square foot. This corner maintains the highest building loan security in the market. Full commission to brokers. Address H M 403, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—SUBURBAN—NORTH.

"RAVINE FOREST," northern limits of Lake Forest and southern limits of Lake Bluff; a tract of 90 acres, heavily timbered and traversed by a picturesque ravine unequaled in beauty on the North Shore. Many of the lots have ravine frontages of 150 to 500 feet.

The subdivision is laid out with roads winding through the forest. The lots have a frontage of from 100 to 1,000 feet, ranging in price from $3,000 to $35,000, and are restricted in such a way as to appeal only to the purchaser contemplating high grade improvements.

City water and paved streets are now being installed, and the new Sheridan-rd., which passes through the property from east to west, will have a 30 foot concrete pavement.

The subdivision is but a short walk from the Lake Bluff station on the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad and but a short drive from the Lake Forest station, affording excellent suburban service, with fast trains. The Chicago & North Shore Electric Railway has a station within 800 feet of the west line of the property.

Suburban office on the premises at the corner of Sheridan-rd. and Edgewood-rd., northern limits of Lake Forest.

Skokie Heights

In Glencoe on the North Shore—35 Minutes
from Madison-st.

These sites are situated in one of the North Shore's finest residence districts and in an environment of unusual natural beauty.

The land is very high and partially wooded with fine old forest trees—it is perhaps the most unique artistic development of the North Shore.

The lots average in width 100 feet; in depth, 200 feet.

The prices range from $65 to $100 per front foot—from five to ten thousand dollars per lot, which is less than prices obtained for property almost immediately adjacent.

Skokie Heights is situated in Glencoe between Skokie and Green Bay Roads, just north of the corner of Skokie Road and Bluff-st.

Motor directly to the office on the property or to our Glencoe office on Park-av.—opposite the Northwestern station, or come via North Shore Electric or Northwestern railroad, or to make appointment phone

REAL ESTATE—SUBURBAN—WEST.

I HAVE SEARCHED A YEAR

for the ideal location; that is, a spot where I could build my home and rest assured my family and I would be protected against any undesirable elements.

I realized that to find this environment I must go to the suburbs. But I found that in most suburbs the transportation was so bad during certain times of the day that I would have to wait sometimes as long as two hours for a train. Any ideal place must have transportation. I wanted a place where I had protection against a foreign element; where no shacks, flats, or apartments could be built; where street was exclusively restricted as to cost of home; where a building line had been established; where all my neighbors would be of the type with whom I would be proud to have my family associate.

In short, the summing up of my "ideal location" means: First, flawless transportation; second, real environment, and, last but not least, the location and price must be such that if at any time I should want to sell I would realize a substantial profit.

After looking for more than a year covering every section of Chicago and suburbs, I have found my ideal location. It is one of the best suburbs. It is west of Chicago; it has transportation that is unsurpassed. The journey to Chicago during the day is less than 15 minutes. Evenings only 6 or 7 minutes.

This ideal location was formerly owned by Judge Elbert H. Gary. This most beautiful estate has been divided into several choice, restricted home sites. These are the finest residential lots ever offered to the public. They have improvements, are not in the middle of a prairie, have beautiful homes all around them, and are to be offered to Americans only, who appreciate these ideal locations. You may never have the opportunity again to find a home as desirable. If you will answer this ad I will be glad to send you further particulars without obligation on your part. Address F D 1851, Tribune.

AUTOMOBILES—GASOLINE.

USED CARS AT THEIR REAL VALUE

Prices on used cars offered by us are based on their REAL value, not on the amount allowed for them in order to meet competitive bids.

We do not accept used cars in exchange for our new ones, but agree to sell the used car for the owner, providing he will accept its real market value.

We charge 10% to the customer for this service, 5% of which goes to the salesman making the sale and 5% we retain for advertising and overhead expenses.

Need we explain further, or is it perfectly clear to you that on the above selling plan the used car can be bought at a price that has been predetermined as being fair to both the buyer and seller by a reliable firm who of necessity must guard the interests of each alike, also not forgetting that you both are customers of this house and we are as much interested in one as in the other?

BECAUSE

Without either our plan would not be possible.

We MUST sell new cars to make money.

We MUST aid the new purchaser to dispose of his old car.

We MUST guard each interest for the reason that the used car buyer of today is the new car buyer of tomorrow, proven by the fact that a substantial number of the new cars we sell each year are sold to people who originally bought used cars from us one, two, or three years before.

FORMER OWNER

The reason former owners of used cars never fail to sell their cars at their real market value is because they have found that in so doing we can sell them more NEW automobiles on this new plan, for the money asked than they can buy elsewhere in our class.

We have deducted the cost of handling the used car from the cost of the new car list price.

CHALLENGE

No manufacturer or dealer can equal our new motor car values in our class unless they adopt our selling plan or a similar one.

BEWARE

Of the individual or firm that attempts to criticize or pick flaws in this new selling plan—second, it is economically sound, is the greatest owner benefits and is based on business sanity.

There are other good values offered on this page. We do not have the only ones.

BUT

Ask yourself this question: Are you competent to judge used car values? Or are you safer in relying on our judgment, knowing that we are not forced to sell you used cars that carry over-allowances on the new ones?

The price asked you is the same price asked your neighbor.

One price to all.

They're real values.

Bird-Sykes

20 YEARS ON MICHIGAN-AV.
2215 Michigan-av.

Paige and Jewett

WHEN BIRD-SYKES SAY:
"REBUILT"

They do not mean merely "shined up," "tightened up," and "tuned up." "REBUILT" in the Bird-Sykes shop means actually dismembering such units as engine, transmission, rear axle, and other vital parts and completely rebuilding the same, using new parts where necessary.

Coach work, which includes removing body and fender dents, re-covering worn tops, repairing and fitting of curtains, also upholstery, etc., is accomplished by experts in our shops.

Every "Bird-Sykes" Rebuilt car is given a high grade paint job. Every "Rebuilt" car is thoroughly tested to meet our rigid standard and is guaranteed by Bird-Sykes. If anything turns up unsatisfactory within a reasonable time Bird-Sykes Co. will make good without cost to purchaser.

MOON COUPE, 1920 MODEL—This is probably one of the smartest appearing Coupes of its type to be found in Chicago. It is painted in a rich two-tone dark Arizona Brown and with its nickeled radiator shell, headlamps, and disk wheels presents the snappy finish and freshness of a new car. Equipment consists of 2 spring bumpers, cowl ventilator, heater, tilting wheel, motometer, and like sun visor, automatic windshield cleaner, stop light, spare wheel and tire. This is a real buy at our price of $1,950.

PAIGE TOURING—A roomy, luxurious, full 7 passenger Paige 6-55 Touring Car that has been "BIRD-SYKES REBUILT" and has had a burn-off paint job; 5 very good cord tires, spring bumper, motometer, and cap; coach condition all. Continental engine; easy riding, flexible rear springs. Utterly easy to drive. Power tire pump, lock, etc. You can't duplicate this quality merchandise at this price. $675.

BUICK SEDAN, 5 PASS., 1920 MODEL K.—This car is in excellent condition throughout and has been repainted in combination Blue and Black. Looks "new." Coach condition A1. Upholstery excellent. Has spot light, spring bumper, 5 good tires, etc. A dependable light 6 cylinder Sedan such as this cannot be duplicated at our price of $900.

MITCHELL COUPE, 1920—Car presents a new appearance. Just had a burn off paint job; dark blue. Has been chauffeur driven and has had little mileage. Coach condition 100%. Bargain at $625.

DURANT SEDAN, 1922—First class condition throughout. Has only been driven 11,000 miles. Original paint excellent. Upholstery very good. Well equipped, cord tires, spring bumper, motometer, stop, signal, etc. Price $925.

STUDEBAKER, '22, LIGHT 6, TOURING. In first class condition throughout. Original finish 100%. Has bumper, 5 excellent cord tires, motometer, stop signal, etc. Top and upholstery in excellent condition. Economical, easy riding, easy to operate. Excellent value. $675.

MAXWELL, 1922 TOURING. In excellent condition throughout. Original paint good. Upholstery shows little or no wear. Has good tires, bumpers, motometer, spotlight, sun shades, etc. Car shows good care. Excellent value at $550.

JEWETT TOURING 1922, LATE MODEL—In new car condition throughout. Painted in new Jewett Sport Blue and equipped with 5 excellent cord tires, bumper, automatic windshield wiper, built-in lock, tools, etc. We give you the satisfaction and service the purchaser of a new Jewett receives. Bargain $900.

PAIGE "66" LAKEWOOD. Full 7 passenger Touring, 1921. Buffed aluminum windshield, low hung body. Refinished in Japanese blue, with black radiator, fenders, and chassis. Mechanically it is "BIRD-SYKES REBUILT" and guaranteed. Completely equipped, excellent cord tires, spare, bumper, windshield wiper, motometer, and cap. Coach condition like new $1,275.

MAXWELL TOURING LIGHT 5 PASS.—In unusually fine condition throughout. Recently repainted a Dark Blue. Has an excellent set of tires, bumper, etc. Top and upholstery excellent. A lot of real service in this car at the bargain price of $150.

FRANKLIN SIX SERIES 9-B TOURING. This late style 5 passenger touring was turned in by original owner at a low mileage. We have made all necessary mechanical adjustments and it is in first class condition. Refinished in Royal Blue with gold stripe; and equipped with excellent cord tires, wheel lock and lifting wheel, 2 snubbers, 2 spring bumpers, power tire pump, automatic squeezee, lock, and tools. The purchaser of this car will have easy riding, and also the unmatched quality of design, materials, and workmanship used in the Franklin $1,250.

FRANKLIN SIX SEDAN, LATE 9-B. This very latest series Franklin Sedan will give you better service and satisfaction than any new or used car selling anywhere near this price. Its 6 cylinder air cooled motor and chassis construction give you flexibility, riding qualities, and gasoline economy that are positively unsurpassed. It is highly suitable for the woman who drives her own car, and is by far the most practical all year car yet developed. The upholstery, coach, and mechanical conditions are positively like new. Newly painted in the new Beige. Excellent cord tires, wire wheels, 2 bumpers, automatic windshield cleaner, power tire pump, electric carburetor heater, stoplight, etc. We are offering it at $1,750.

MARMON
SPECIAL BARGAINS.

Marmon 4 pass. sedan, 1921 model. This car is equipped with special new custom built Graff body, painted Rolls Royce Blue, renewed and guaranteed. This is one of the smartest appearing cars in the city, luxuriously upholstered. It is equipped with brand new cord tires, wire wheels, shock absorbers, motometer, bumper, etc. Specially priced.

Marmon 7 pass. sedan, 1920 model. This is one of our special renewed cars with the same guarantee as new. This car came to us from the original owner in exceptionally good condition. It is upholstered in standard broadcloth. Equipped with 5 excellent cord tires, wire wheels, shock absorbers, etc. An ideal touring car for all kinds of weather. Big bargain at our special sale price.

Marmon 7 pass. touring, 1923 model. This car was delivered very late in the season. Equipped with front bumper, new tires, motometer, shock absorbers, winter sides, wood wheels, tire cover. The car looks and runs like new. This is the ideal touring car for your vacation this year. With the wonderful riding qualities of the Marmon you can chose your own roads.

Marmon 7 pass. touring. While this car has not been renewed it is in excellent mechanical condition, newly painted and will compare favorably with any new car. You can't get greater value or better performance in any car. You must see it to appreciate its value. Rare buy. Specially priced, $1,000.

Cadillac 7 pass. touring, 1923 model. This car has only been driven a little over 5,000 miles, and is like new in every respect. To one who is in the market for one of these sturdy cars, here is your opportunity to get a real bargain, as this car will be sold way below list price.

Hupmobile touring, 5 pass., 1922 model. Here is a specially equipped car that cannot be duplicated in Chicago at the price; special equipment includes spotlight, stoplight, 2 bumpers, spare tire, spring covers, nickel barrel head lamps, seat covers, motometer, trunk rack bars, clock, cutout, etc. This car is in the best possible condition mechanically, equipped with practically new cord tires, excellent paint, at a bargain price.

Jewett coupe, 4 pass., 1922 model. Here is a car like new in every respect, driven very little by the original owner, and can be bought way below new car prices.

Mitchell touring, 5 pass. In excellent condition mechanically, good tires, newly painted. At a very low price.

Hudson 7 pass. limousine Model 12-0. This car has been handled carefully on the boulevards of Chicago by the original owner, and is in very fine mechanical and coach condition. It will make an excellent private car, or is a bargain for taxicab use; $1,100.

Packard 4 pass., 4 door touring, 1916 model. Here is a car that received excellent care from its original owner, has not seen a great deal of mileage, and will give a good account of itself for years of service. Sale price, $350.

Packard 7 pass. limousine, 1917 model. Owned privately and used very little. In the best possible mechanical condition. Our history of taxicab service this car cannot be duplicated at the price. Special sale price, $600.

Cadillac 57, 4 pass. coupe. In excellent mechanical condition; good paint, good tires. This car, like all of our used cars, will be sold regardless of cost, and is an excellent bargain at our price of $1,000.

PACKARD

RENAULT TOWN CAR. This is a very late importation and has seen little service, having been driven only 11,000 kilometers. The body is of French design and manufacture being produced in the Renault's own shops. The equipment includes front and rear bumpers, spotlight, heater, extra wheel, tire etc. This smart little Town Car can be purchased for less than one-half its original cost. $2,500.

APPERSON TOURING, 1921 MODEL. This high class 7 passenger touring car can be purchased at a marked saving in price. It is in good mechanical condition, well equipped throughout, and should render satisfactory service for a long period of time. $500.

PACKARD TWIN SIX TOURING, MODEL 1-35. This particular car is considerably above the average condition. The motor and chassis have been thoroughly overhauled. The top, upholstery, and paint are like new. This would make an ideal car for a long summer's tour, and is a value which we can highly recommend at $600.

PACKARD TWIN SIX LIMOUSINE MODEL 2-35. This would make an ideal car for taxicab service as it is in first class coach and mechanical condition and has ample carrying capacity. This particular car has always been in private service and well cared for at all times. It is specially priced at $750.

PACKARD TWIN SIX PHAETON MODEL 3-25. This is our 5 passenger Sport Car and is identical in looks with the present series Twin Six. We have made all necessary mechanical adjustments and the purchaser is assured of long and continuous service. It is painted in very attractive shade of Dust proof Gray and exceptionally well equipped with tires. We advise an early inspection, as the price is only $1,250.

PACKARD TWIN SIX TOURING WITH CALIFORNIA TOP. This particular car cannot be distinguished from new in any detail. It has been thoroughly overhauled, repainted in dark Packard Blue, all enameled parts baked, etc. A remarkable saving can be effected in this car at our price of $2,250.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

NEW RIDING CLUB BUYS A SITE ON NEAR NORTH SIDE

Will Open Next Fall with Horse Show.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago's newest social and sporting organization, "The Riding Club," tentative plans for which were published recently, yesterday purchased a site on the west side of McClurg court, extending from Ohio to Ontario street, on which a $600,000 club house is to be built. The total investment in land and building will be more than a million dollars.

The new club will open next fall with a horse show which it is expected will outrival anything of the kind the middle west has ever seen. The various polo clubs around Chicago are planning the organization of an Indoor Polo league with a regular schedule of games every week, to be held in the new Riding club. In addition there'll be weekly "music rides," an equestrian feature Chicago has never had, exhibitions, horse sales, etc.

To Be Finest in Country.

At present Chicago is the only large American city which hasn't a high class riding club. The new organization will have the largest, most modern and best equipped building and the finest exhibition ring in the country.

Plans have been drawn by Architects Rebori, Wentworth & Dewey for a fireproof structure of the old English type, with half timbered effect, which will be completed within six months. It will have a riding ring 305 feet long and 130 feet wide, with balcony around it. There'll be stable accommodations for 500 horses; a clubroom, a lounging room, locker rooms, showers, etc.

Five Classes of Memberships.

Five classes of memberships are announced. The first will be a bond membership costing $1,000, which gives the member a $1,000 bond, which is negotiable, as well as a membership for life without initiation fees or dues. This class of membership will be the only one with voting rights and the only one with a share in the equity.

The life memberships rank next and will cost $500, but will have neither voting power or ownership in the property. Resident memberships will have a $200 initiation fee and $100 yearly dues. The junior memberships will cost $100 annually, with no initiation fee. It has not yet been decided about the nonresident membership fees.

Preference in the allocation of stalls, use of riding hall and tickets for all horse shows, polo games, music rides and other entertainments will be in the order of and according to the class of membership.

Seventeen on Board of Directors.

Col. Robert R. McCormick is president of the new club. Other members of the board of directors include: John Hertz, Earle H. Reynolds, Prentiss Coonley, O. W. Lehmann, William Wrigley Jr., John R. Thompson, Samuel Insull, Charles McCulloch, Joseph T. Ryerson, Leonard Florsheim, John Borden, Joseph M. Patterson, Harold Foreman, Martin J. Quigley, Albert B. Dewey Jr. and Frank R. Warren.

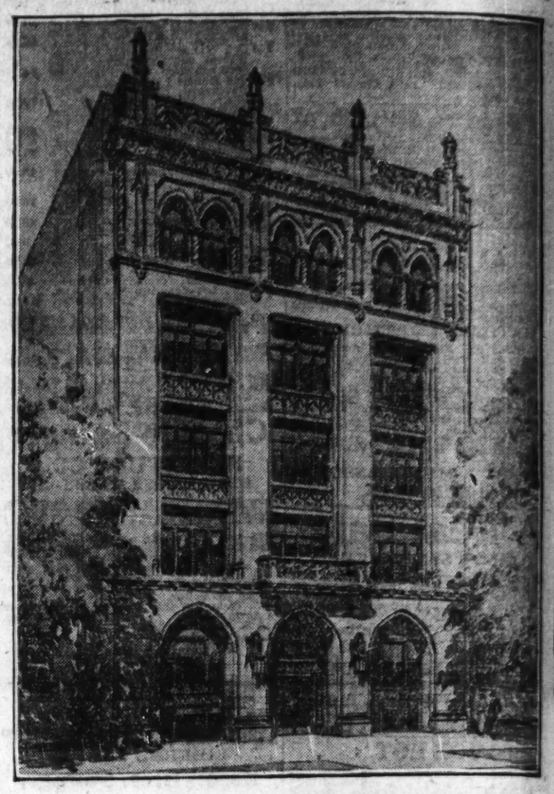
The site fronts 218 feet on McClurg court and 305 feet on both Ohio and Ontario streets. The 109x105 at the northwest corner of McClurg and Ontario was bought from the Seymour estate and the balance from the Miami corporation, controlled by the Deering estate. Hedberg & Bistor and Charles J. McKenna represented the buying syndicate, which is headed by Mr. Hertz, Mr. Lehmann, and Col. McCormick, and Winston & Co. represented the Miami corporation.

L. M. Newgass of 112 West Adams street, telephone Randolph 4140, is in charge of the membership application blanks of the new club.

Here's Newest Thing in Chicago Clubdom

Above is the latest thing in Chicago clubdom, "The Riding club," to be built on the west side of McClurg court between Ohio and Ontario, from plans by Rebori, Wentworth & Dewey. It will represent a total investment of more than a million dollars. More is told in a nearby column.

Ad Firm to Build on North Side



The Standard corporation of Chicago and New York has bought the three story fireproof building at 220-224 East Superior street from Vera C. Devine, who purchased it a few days ago from Huyler's for $65,000, and will rebuild it into a five story structure. Above is the design by Ivar Viehe-Naess & Co. It will be of Indiana limestone. Work will begin shortly with the idea of having it completed by fall.

The Standard corporation is an advertising concern with offices at 1540 East 53d street and in the Continental and Commercial National bank building. It will use the entire new building with its various units, consisting of the Standard Advertising company, the Breath of the Avenue organization, the Retail Review organization, and the Store Magazine organization. It supplies art and advertising services to retail stores throughout the United States and Canada. Recent expansions have been made to include the publication of store magazines in conjunction with large department stores. The upper floors will be used for the corporation's own art studios. The cost is placed at $250,000. The site is 59x125.

CHAIN STORE CO. LEASES FAMOUS 'CRYSTAL ROOM'

Former Stillson Cafe to Be Remodeled.

Charles A. Bond, at one time mayor of Columbus, O., and now president of the Bond Clothing company, which has stores in several of the large American cities, came to Chicago a couple of weeks ago, looked over several sites for a local establishment and then rented what was formerly one of the best known restaurants in the city. He has leased the former "Crystal room" of Stillson's restaurant on the second floor of the Hartford building and also two stores on the first floor on Madison street. The term is said to be ten years and the total rental approximately $650,000.

The bond company has retail stores, all on the second floor, in Cleveland, where its main offices are, New York City, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cincinnati, Columbus, Louisville, Toledo, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Akron, Youngstown, and Lorain. It has a tailoring plant at New Brunswick, N. J.

The lease covers the entire second floor of the Hartford building, with 8,250 square feet of net floor space. The two stores on the first floor have a total frontage of twenty-seven feet and forty feet of depth.

The store at 55 Madison has been occupied for the last eighteen years by Henry P. Epstein, retail jeweler, who is retiring from the jewelry business. The store at 57 was the entrance to Stillson's and the marble stairway leading to the former Crystal room will be used by the new tenant as an entrance to his salesrooms on the second floor.

W. D. Cousin, manager of the Hartford building, represented Harry C. Moir, owner of the Hartford, and Arthur G. Levy of Mark Levy & Brother represented the lessee. Holabird & Roche will design the proposed alterations.

PLAN $500,000 Y. M. C. A. FOR THE AUSTIN DISTRICT

The Austin department of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., has purchased a site at the northeast corner of Central and Race avenues, 155x201, for approximately $55,000, and within a year or so will build a $500,000 Y. M. C. A. building to contain a large dormitory, gymnasium, swimming tank, cafeteria, etc. A $550,000 fund is to be raised and already $300,000 of it has been secured. No architect has yet been engaged.

De Met to Open Candy Shop in Garland Building

De Met & Co. have leased a 16x76 store at 64 East Washington street, in the Garland building, for seven years from June 15, and will open a candy store about July 2. Robert White & Co. represented the lessee and Miss C. C. Cramer the Wabash & Washington trust.

Lamp Manufacturers Rent Chicago Avenue Buildings

The Expert Wood Turning company, makers of floor and table lamps, has leased from Joseph Downey the three story and one story buildings at 2952-60 West Chicago avenue, at Sacramento, containing 45,000 square feet, for ten years at a term rental reported by Naumann & Steuer, brokers, to be $130,000.

Building Permits

Nineteen building permits for a total valuation of $467,000 were issued yesterday, among them being the following:

6044 Armitage-av., one story brick building drying kilns for lumber; Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co., owners; M. C. Schwab, arch.; J. L. Fyfe et al, masons; Bulley & Andrews, carp. 80,000

Brokers' Notes

Padden Brothers and Boyd & Huhnke announce the consolidation of their firms and the formation of a new partnership, to be known as Padden, Boyd & Huhnke, the partnership consisting of Thomas E. Padden, Roger J. Boyd, and Maximilian E. Huhnke. The new firm will do a general real estate brokerage business as in the past and will continue to operate offices at 3309 and 3503 North Crawford avenue.

P. E. Niles, formerly sales manager for H. O. Stone & Co. for many years, has opened an office for real estate investments in the new Chicago Temple, suite 819. His telephone is State 7403.

Edward Singer & Co., Inc., have opened offices in the Harris Trust building and are doing a general real estate brokerage business. Their phones are Central 8830-31-32.

With the opening of an office in Highland Park last week and an office in Evanston last month, Heinsen & Clark announce that they now have five offices. William H. Overton, secretary, is in charge of the new Highland Park office, at 520 Central avenue. George C. Clark, vice president, is in charge of the Evanston office. Archie W. Plant, president, continues head of the Wilmette branch. Paul Heinsen, treasurer, is still in charge of the Winnetka branch, the original office of the firm.

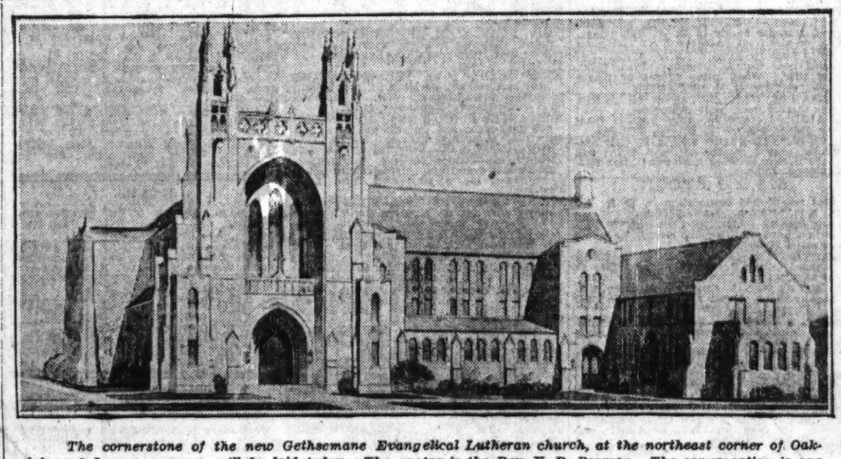
Gethsemane Evangelical Lutheran Church



The cornerstone of the new Gethsemane Evangelical Lutheran church, at the northeast corner of Oakdale and Lamon avenues, will be laid today. The pastor is the Rev. V. R. Pearson. The congregation is one of the oldest in Chicago, having been founded in 1870 at May and Huron, where it has been until the Ogden avenue extension forced it to move. The new building was designed by the bureau of ecclesiastical architecture, of which Adolph A. Hanson is ecclesiologist. It will be of brick with stone trim, and will cost a total of $175,000. At present only the parsonage, community center, and sexton's quarters will be built at a cost of $100,000, and will be completed by fall. The community center will have a gymnasium, showers, kitchen, Sunday school rooms, etc.

EDGEWATER CHURCH SELLS CORNER AT A PROFIT OF $65,000

Uptown churches seem fortunate in their real estate investments. Of course the outstanding example is the North Shore Congregational church, which bought the southwest corner of Sheridan and Wilson for $14,500 in 1901 and has refused offers as high as $600,000. Some brokers say $800,000 has been turned down.

Now the Edgewater Presbyterian church is getting itself into the limelight with a deal which, if made by an individual, would be talked about for months. It purchased the northeast corner of Bryn Mawr and Kenmore, which is part of a site for a proposed new church, from Walter Ahlschlager, architect, a year ago for $60,000. Mr. Ahlschlager had bought it a few years before for $45,000.

The church has now sold it for $125,000 to Fred Becklenberg, who contemplates erecting a twelve story bachelor hotel, to cost over $1,000,000. The church is planning to sell the rest of its site, at the northwest corner of Sheridan and Bryn Mawr. It has bought 125x150 just south of the present edifice on Kenmore, between Bryn Mawr and Catalpa, improved with a flat building and a residence, for $91,000. These will make way for a large community center and eventually a $500,000 church will be built.

New Subdivisions

The forty acres bounded by State, Wentworth, 121st, and 123d has been sold for a reported $120,000 cash by Edward F. Shellaberger of Dekalb, Ill., to the Chicago Title and Trust company for an undisclosed purchaser. It is reported that the new owner will at once develop and improve the property. The seller was represented by W. K. Young & Bro. and the buyer by Louis R. Carf & Co., with Myron J. Friedman associated.

Harry Schuler has bought from John O'Connor of Hoyne, O'Connor & Hoyne, attorneys, for a reported $60,000, the O'Connor tract on Sheridan road, Ravinia, fronting 800 feet on Sheridan road and 800 feet on Range Line road, containing over six acres, commencing about 546 north of the county line road and the Lake Shore Country club. Mr. Schuler will retail the property into seventy-five and 100 foot lots. Mark Levy & Brother represented Mr. O'Connor and Perry Ulrich represented the buyer.

Beg Your Pardon

In this department last Sunday there was a building permit incorrectly reported. It should have read 4250-52 Keystone avenue, three story brick, six apartments, M. Sullivan owner; J. Mallinger, architect; Mole & Son, masons; A. Mallinger, carpenter. The original permit was supplied to THE TRIBUNE by the City News bureau.

NEW CO-OP FLAT CONCERN FORMED BY CHICAGOANS

The coöperative apartment house idea, long successful in New York and other eastern cities, is gradually getting under way on a fairly large scale in Chicago. The Andridge company is the newest organization in the field. Those interested in it are D. F. Anderson and R. R. Cowie of Anderson & Cowie, builders, and W. J. Hoppe and Frank H. Anderson of the Hamilton Bond and Mortgage company.

The projects announced by the Andridge company involve expenditures of over a million dollars. The first building to be offered for sale on a coöperative basis will be "The Andridge" at Ridge and Church, Evanston. This building, from which the company gets its name, will be completed Sept. 1. It contains forty-eight apartments of three, four and five rooms.

Other buildings under construction include the Maraine, eighteen flats of five rooms each, at Maple and Crain, Evanston; eighteen apartments, four, five and six rooms, at Austin and Randolph, Oak Park, and thirty-nine flats, three, four and five room units, at 7710-18 South Shore drive. The offices of the new Andridge company are in The Tribune building.

CONVENTION CRAFT OF REALTORS TO STOP AT CANADIAN PORT

"Capt." J. Soule Warterfield of the good ship North American announced last night that 350 passages had been booked for the national realtors' convention on his vessel, and that only seventy-five remained unsold.

The North American will sail from the Municipal pier next Saturday at 2:30 p. m., daylight saving time. There'll be a reception on the pier for an hour before leaving held by the Oak Park real estate board.

The principal port to be visited on the trip, according to several Chicago realtors, will be Perry Sound, Canada, where two hours will be spent. There'll be an all day stop at Charlevoix, Mich., on Sunday, with golf, motor trips and other entertainments supplied by the local chamber of commerce. Cleveland will be reached on Wednesday morning.

The boat will be used as a hotel during the convention. Coming back there will be no stop at Perry Sound, despite the appeals to Capt. Waterfield by most of the male passenger list. There'll be a half day stop at Mackinac island. A daily paper is planned for the trip. The North American will arrive in Chicago on July 3.

START WORK ON $500,000 HOMES

Leonard F. Hammel and Max Loeb of the Loeb-Hammel Realty company, recently bought for their personal investment two pieces of vacant on which they have started the construction of forty-two brick bungalows and one twelve flat building, involving an investment said to be $500,000. Andrew Sandgren is architect.

In Albany Park, the block bounded by Central Park, Carmen, Drake, and Argyle, has been resubdivided into thirteen lots. The north branch of the river cuts the tract. Work is now under way on twelve bungalows. On a large triangular lot facing the river the twelve flat building will be erected.

In Norwood Park, the block bounded by Nettleton, Navarre Newburg and Neola, has been subdivided into thirty lots, on which brick bungalows will be built. All of the Loeb-Hammel homes will be completed by fall.

BUYS HYDE PARK GARAGE.

Julius Wolf has bought the garage property at the southeast corner of Harper and 56th, extending through to Lake Park avenue, for a reported $65,000, through Callistus S. Ennis & Co. Mary Elizabeth Ingals was seller.

PLAN 1,000 SEAT SUBWAY HALL IN ART INSTITUTE

To Be Built at Once if Bids Are Fair.

Plans have been drawn by Howard Shaw for an underground extension of the Art institute, north from the present building, just east of the Michigan avenue sidewalk. Bids will be asked shortly and if prices are at all reasonable work will start at once.

There will be a large hall, to seat at least 1,000, which will care for the many large gatherings of students which Fullerton hall, with its 400 seats, at one time accommodated. Of late years, however, when visiting artists of note have been invited to speak before the art students it has been found difficult to arrange space for the listeners. Likewise, many outside organizations which sought accommodation in the Art institute for lectures and concerts, were told Fullerton hall was the best that could be done.

A large stage is planned for the new hall and an entrance on Michigan avenue, at Monroe street, is contemplated. This will enable visitors to concerts and lectures in the new auditorium to enter and leave without going through the main entrance of the Art institute.

The new addition will be partly underground, the same depth as the present low level wings at the northeast corner and the southeast corner of the main building.

News of the Architects

The firm of Spencer & Powers has dissolved the partnership formed in 1905, Horace S. Powers having become junior partner at Lansing, Mich., in "The Warren S. Holmes - Powers company." Robert C. Spencer will succeed to the practice of the firm of Spencer & Powers at their old location in the Tacoma building, 5 North La Salle street, under his own name. The telephone is unchanged—Franklin 0070.

BUYS GOLD COAST RESIDENCE.

Mrs. Floyd J. Semple has bought the three story gray stone residence at 1312 Ritchie court from the Palmer estate, through T. J. Fleming of Ross & Co., for a reported $30,000.

PAYS $525,000 FOR SHERIDAN BDWAY. CORNER

Edward M. Bertha yesterday bought the vacant at the southeast corner of Sheridan, Broadway and Montrose, fronting 245 feet on the latter, 218 feet on Sheridan, 242 feet on Fair Oaks and 52 feet on Broadway, for a reported $525,000, subject to $280,000. He has no definite plans for improvement owing to building conditions. Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann & Levinson represented the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for the seller.

$215,000 Paid for Business Block at Oglesby and 71st

The northwest corner of Oglesby and 71st, 127x100, improved with ten stores, nine flats and three offices, has been sold by Edwin J. Wolbach, represented by Murray Wolbach, to Peter Metos, represented by Tutules & Dignan, for a reported $215,000.

"What's wrong here?"

Don't let diapers irritate your baby's skin

Wash them the safe way that keeps them soft and comfortable

To keep diapers from irritating

To prepare diapers for washing: Soiled diapers should have all solid matter removed immediately and then be put to soak in cold water. If diapers are simply wet place them in a covered pail and let them soak in cold water until you are ready to wash them.

To wash diapers: Whisk two tablespoonfuls of Lux into a thick lather in a tub of very hot water. Let diapers soak for a few minutes, then dip them up and down, pressing suds repeatedly through them. If suds die down add more Lux. Rinse in at least three waters. Boil diapers once a week, using one tablespoonful of Lux to a gallon of water. Rinse thoroughly.

No matter how carefully you bathe and powder your little baby—if his diapers are washed with harsh soap—his tender skin will suffer.

Sometimes you wonder why he is cross and fidgety. He is all sweet and clean, yet that little fretful cry shows that something is wrong.

Very often it is just because you've washed his diapers with soap that is innocent enough to look at—but too strong for his soft, tender flesh.

The diaper rash that is the source of such severe suffering to babies is caused by this very thing—washing their diapers with harsh soap.

Keep your baby's diapers soft and comfortable. Wash them in pure, safe Lux suds.

Won't cause diaper rash

Lux won't cause diaper rash. There is no free alkali in it to cling to little garments—no harmful ingredient to inflame your baby's sensitive skin.

Cut out the washing directions given here. Follow them whenever you wash these important little garments that mean so much to his comfort and happiness.

Use Lux for his soft woolen shirts and bands, his petticoats and dresses, his diapers and little socks. Lux is safe for all the clothes that touch his tender skin.

Send today for booklet of expert laundering advice—"How to Launder Silks, Woolens, Fine Cottons and Linens." It is free. Lever Bros. Co., Dept. 83, Cambridge, Mass.

THE POLE VAULT, one of the most picturesque events of the track and field meet. The movie camera shows Charles Bickmore of Huntington Beach, Cal., competing in the great "prep" meet at Stagg field. Bickmore went over 10 feet and qualified for the final, but failed to score any points. His form is excellent except in the fling-away. He has not mastered the finishing twist, the arch which adds inches to the vaulter's record.

In his first trials in the east Barbot loafed along at fifteen miles an hour, speeded up to ninety miles, and soared up 2,000 feet, all on about one pint of gasoline. The Chicago Tribune brought M. Barbot to America with his machine.

KNOCKOUT WHICH CROWNED FRENCH WAR HERO as world's featherweight boxing king. Eugene Criqui watching Referee Appel count the fatal ten over Champion Johnny Kilbane in the sixth round of their fight at New York. A right smash to the jaw knocked from Kilbane's head the crown he had worn for eleven years. Twenty-five thousand spectators saw the title taken from America.

The Jungle's Mad Laughter

Blue Ribbon Fiction

by WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

Eerie Cries in the Mojave Desert Had Turned Spook's Hair White; Again in the Wildest Brush of India the Weird Something Pursued the Camera Hunter.

THE Indian rains had held off past their time. Peb Vanish's little motion picture outfit from the States was still in the jungle near Kowhaddin, but ready to move into an old dakbungalow as soon as the monsoon struck. Tom Hilliard, who painted wild animals for a living, had recently joined the outfit. On a certain night of still heat his cot and that of young Vanish were close together under the stars, with little covering but their insect curtains. In the thick lower dark these two chatted. Spook Powell, Peb's assistant, had not yet turned in. They could see him in the candle light through the open flap of the mess tent, his close cropped white head bent over an American magazine just in today with an installment of a story he had been talking about for weeks.

"How old is Spook?" Hilliard asked.

"Not thirty yet," Peb answered.

"I've been waiting for you to tell me what turned his hair white."

"It happened in the Mojave desert, but I can't tell you what. Something that laughed——"

"I took it for granted that you two knew all about each other," the artist said.

"No. Spook and I weren't thick until after his hair had turned," Peb went on. "I knew him, but not close. One day he came into Skyline, California, where I was with an outfit on location. That was the day I saw his hair was white. Also, he was jerky and nervous. Eight months before his hair was brown and we had called him 'Henry.' . . . It was a long time before I ventured to ask what happened out there in the desert to burn up the roots of his hair. All he said was 'Ik, ik!' waving his hand in front of his nose."

"I've heard Spook say that the farther he got from the Mojave the healthier he felt." Hilliard reflected. "Also I recall his remark to the effect that he wouldn't cross the Mojave again in a Pullman train. What did you say about laughing?"

"Spook's white hair has got something to do with that," Peb added softly. "On the day we landed in Calcutta we saw an Englishman in a billiard room who got started laughing and couldn't stop. What struck me more was how the laughing got on Spook's nerves. He looked as if he'd like to put a bullet through the stranger. You know how up and dressed Spook is when good hard nerve is required. Don't it make you wonder what laughed out there in the Mojave?"

Hilliard had always been interested in wild animals. He had come to India a second time to paint them in their own habitat. Weeks ago at Dalkangra he first heard of the remarkable picture sets Vanish's outfit was getting in the virgin hunting grounds near Kowhaddin. He had journeyed thither, and presently he realized he was in danger of forgetting his life work in his intense and growing interest in two bipeds.

The overused word "ace" was all he could think of in relation to Peb Vanish. Merely a light hearted boy; a red checked, exasperating, high school coolness; no strain about the incredible things Peb pulled off; nothing square jawed; no roughneck characteristics, yet Peb's courage began where the old order of courage ended. Spook's nerve was different. Spook used will power. He had never failed in a pinch, but there was the feeling about him, for Hilliard at least, that he had been shocked to the soul, somehow, and that he might fail one day.

ONCE it had been considered a brave thing to shoot a tiger. Not so many years ago Hilliard had accompanied an English hunting party into one of the lower Indian jungles, and had felt that he was taking his life in his hand—with an arsenal of guns to draw from and a small army of natives to carry extra pieces. And here in a new jungle these two had spent hours each day exposed to every possible violence of the wild, not a rifle between them, their six-shooters rarely drawn. They had "shot" tiger all right.

Hilliard had seen the pictures, male and female, down by the spring, and a marvelous flashlight which had caught the female in the act of charging the camera. The artist heard it hinted that Spook had half drawn his six-shooter that day as the big lady cat stalked his companion—a most delicate point in the minds of the camera men apparently, just when to spoil a picture to save a life.

Just now they heard a muffled remark of disgust from the mess tent. Spook blew out the candle and joined them a moment later, muttering that he had to wait another month or six weeks for the rest of the story. Hilliard could see his uncovered head shadowed against the whitish blur of the stars and heard Spook's lips add vaguely:

"The forget-me-nots are thick tonight."

Neither answered. Spook stretched out on his cot and with slow, grave care adjusted his insect canopy.

"You wouldn't think it," he went on in a curious muffled tone, "but I studied literature once."

"In the Mojave?" Peb asked in a casual way.

"No, Peb, that was back in Ioway, where you have colds in the head. I went to a literature class every day, just as regular as we go to the water hole now. We were studying Mr. Longfellow's 'Evangeline,' and one day Miss Bean, the teacher, told us to bring in a quotation from that poet and say it aloud in class. Only I had forgotten to do this little thing, and I couldn't say it aloud if I had one. A girl with her neck wrapped up was called on first, and along she rides with: 'Silently, one by one, in the infinite meadows of heaven, blossom the bloomin' stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels.'"

"I'm not feeling very well——" Peb began, his head turned Hilliard's way.

Spook resumed: "Another girl rung a repeat on that quote," he went on. "Then a tough guy in front of her was called upon, and he growls his way through same. I was using up my young nerve by this time, memorizing the verse as it went around the classroom—apparently the only quotation Mr. Longfellow ever screened. Only when my name was called, I was too honest to get it straight, and a panic hit me——"

Spook paused.

"How did you spring it?" Hilliard asked.

"Don't know. Genius like that hasn't worked since. Long about the third try-out that classful was hurriedly dismissed and I was a stranger in the school from then on. Just the same, those lines bit into me like a popular song. I used to catch myself saying 'em in the desert—when it was extra dull—— Say, what in——"

PIERCING squeals had begun from the pen of a young jungle pig—abruptly as one would open a steam cock.

"Sounds as if Lancie had swallowed a scorpion," Peb said, sitting up.

"Ain't he eloquent—just?" Spook drawled.

The whole camp was now astir, especially Mike Lindsay, the pack boss, one of the original party from the States. Peb left his cot saying he would go and turn Lancie off. He made good his word apparently, for the wee boar merely grated now.

Spook yawned audibly and Hilliard was smiling up at the "forget-me-nots" when the crack of a strong branch sounded a little way off over the picket line, simultaneously the scream of a horse, and Mike Lindsay's homely U. S. voice:

"That scenery lovin' son of a vampire bat——"

The rest was lost in the uprooting of picket pins, the thud of hoofs, and a loose pony crashed by, not five feet from where the three cots were placed. Fiends of fear rode that pony, and against the white gleam of stars Hilliard saw a long, low hump on the beast's withers. His scalp prickled, a tightening of skin that slightly lifted the hair. The pony went tearing into the jungle and the sounds died out. Peb joined them presently.

"Looked like a gorilla riding that bay fizzer," Spook said in a husky tone.

Peb didn't answer, but stood looking away into the dark toward the jungle where the pony had vanished.

"Did you say there weren't any gorillas this far north?" Spook inquired.

No answer.

"Before we change the subject, Peb," Spook drawled on tirelessly, "I'd like to ask the relation of gorillas to gents' saddle horses in this man's India. Just that little question——"

"That was a leopard, Spook, or a panther, which is leopard fattened up. He was making eyes at our little pig from the top boards of the pen, but Lancie's squealing drove him off. He made the limb of a tree from the pen without startling the horses and dove down onto the nearest for a ride——"

"That pony was sure doing his part as he went by here," said Spook.

They were back under the nets and silent for some time when Spook said:

"I could weep, Peb——"

"What's the matter?"

"It was so homey. I thought I was back on the banks of the Colorado, down Yuma way. Yessir, for a minute Mike Lindsay had me home again in the desert on the Arizona border. A child in arms, I was, by the old Colorado Maduro — when Mike raised his voice like that. Then the current stopped——"

"Mike saw the leopard jump the pony from the tree. Let's get some sleep——"

"An' I'll never hear the rest of Mike's dear language," Spook complained. "That wasn't a simple declarative sentence——"

"We'll be out after that pony bright and early," Peb suggested sleepily.

"I'm your mournin' dove."

THE jungle dinned as never before. The whole blood drinking world of the dark seemed electrically connected with the fate of the pony. Hilliard figured that at least three jackal packs had converged at a point within half a thousand yards from camp. That hunched shadowy rider persistently poised before the eye of the artist's mind.

He caught himself wishing the pavements of a town were between him and the terrors of the earth; walls of granite and brick between him and the phantoms of the dark.

A while afterward Peb was breathing as one in restful sleep, but there was no sound from Spook Powell's cot.

. . . Some one laughed. Some one had strayed into the jungle, gone mad, and started to laugh! Hilliard saw Spook Powell's hands lift queerly and make motions under the insect net. Then the artist realized that his own hands had come up to his face—that they were tallowy and chilled like monkey's flesh. This was a different fear. Above and separate from the rest of the jungle's din, the laughter was marking his own mind as a violet ray marks a negative. It was loose and leisurely, but had the patience of running waters. It was hungry, hungry for everything under the stars, but it could wait.

Peb Vanish slept on like a child. The picket line had quieted down.

Every fiber in Hilliard's body strained for the laughter again, yet he knew it would wither the soul of him when it came, and constantly he kept thinking of whitened hair, of whitened bones, and the white glare of desert wastes. The laughter vomited forth without inconvenience; it lifted to shrill mirth; it went through the jungle like a call to partake of ineffable sins.

Peb slept on. The horses sniffed a little, but were not over restless. Mr. Pip, the camp's fox terrier, and Lance-Me-Not, the young boar, found no cause for alarm. Hilliard faced the fact that this thing was an ordeal for him alone. Then suddenly he knew better. Though there had not been a sound or a creak from Spook Powell's cot Hilliard knew the white haired one was awake and sharing his fear.

More and more craftily sleep eluded the artist. After a longer silence the laughter bubbled forth again—its psychic effect uglier than before. A low, light, swift sentence from Spook—a light, uncentered utterance, as from one only partially conscious; then the creak of his cot. Spook was slowly raising himself, slowly lifting his netting; as slowly he crawled out. He stood barefooted, bareheaded, face white as his hair—a kind of ashen light from the stars around all. Now he walked stiffly toward the jungle. Hilliard saw, or fancied he saw, the eyes of a man in whom the drive of will power is lost. Was this Spook's old enemy of the Mojave that had caught up with him tonight? If so, it was the enemy of one Hilliard also.

The artist did not stir. He was the last man anywhere to be found molesting another's private affairs, and this had to do with something that Spook had not even told his one great friend, Peb. Perhaps everything was deceptive in this ashen starlight. Perhaps the face that he saw was not a white sublimation of horror. Hilliard let him go, without a call.

As moments passed and Spook did not return the ugly sense of failure awoke in the artist's mind. One quiet word might have restored the white haired one to himself. That quiet word had not been spoken. Hilliard now realized that it was less his deliberacy than the fear of betraying his own fear that had kept him silent. Even now, seconds were passing, as he struggled to get his voice in hand before calling Peb. The name was on his lips—when the laughter sounded again.

A white and utterly weary smile formed and hung around Hilliard's mouth—the —saw the leopard jump the pony from the tree.

smile of a man who has accepted his own failure. . . . Still his mind tried to put off calling Peb Vanish—a score of objections. He even found himself trying to figure what day of the month this was. He saw himself lying out there in the jungle, curiously like a figure he had once helped to take out of a smashed airplane—a man changed to something else, but still wearing the same coat and helmet. He forced out the harsh tone at last:

"Peb!"

"Yes, hello."

Now Hilliard cleared his throat. "Pardon me for calling you—it's the laughter, you know."

"The what?"

"Either I've been dreaming or there's a sort of laughter from the jungle. Can't be I'm mistaken. Feel over in Spook's cot and see if he's——"

"Spook's gone," Peb said quietly.

"Thought I couldn't be mistaken——"

"How long ago? . . . Why, Spook didn't get into his boots——"

"He went in yonder—the way the pony dashed——"

ECONOMY BEGINS AT HOME

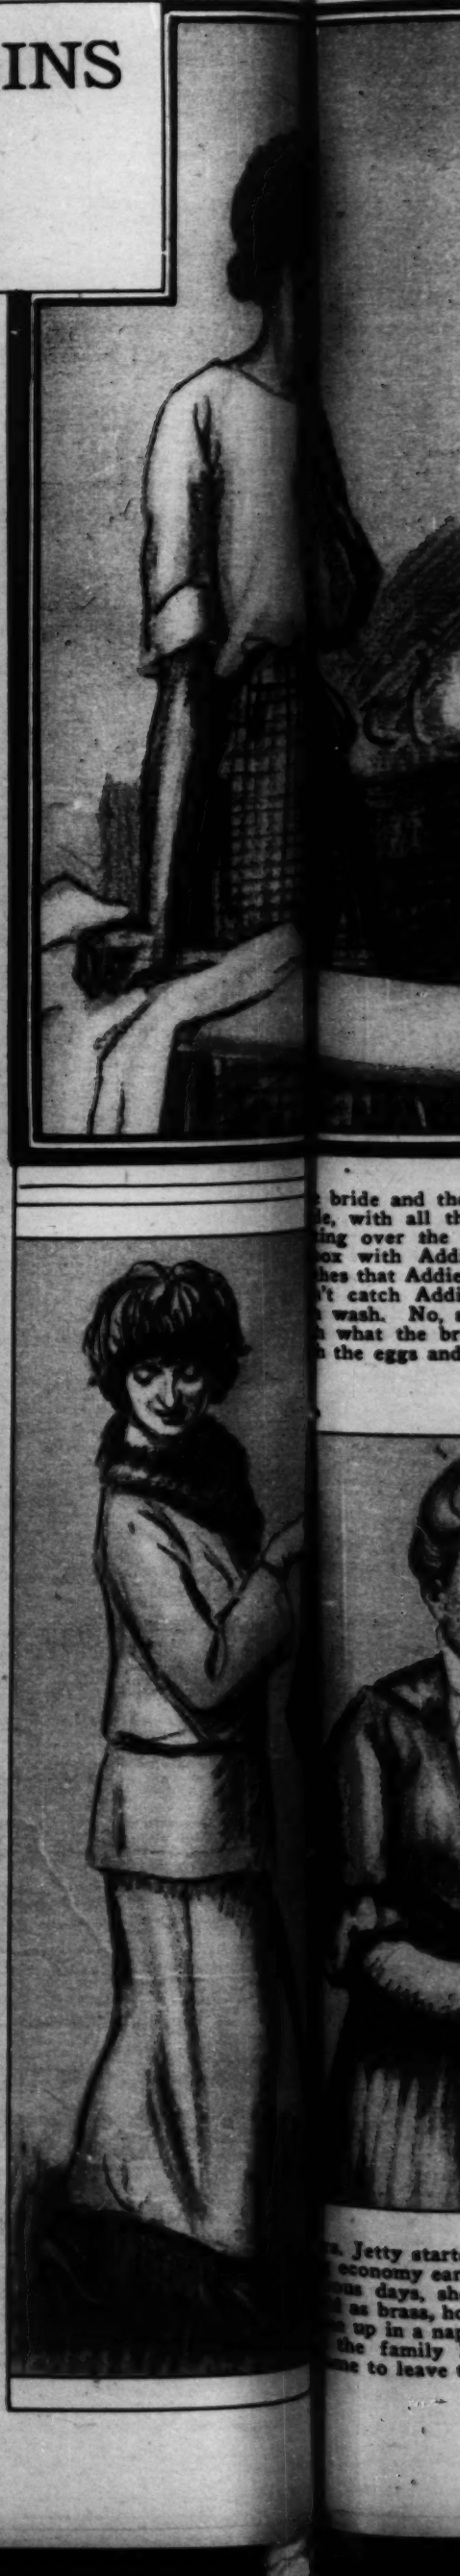
By W. E. HILL

Copyright: 1923: by The Chicago Tribune.

When a person with plenty of money in the background begins to economize, then look for something pretty drastic! There's no telling where they will stop. Here's young Mrs. Swoop who has been praying every night for extra dividends, wondering whether it wouldn't be cheaper in the end to buy a new fur coat instead of having the old one fixed up. Because then, you have a new coat. And fixed over things always look fixed over. So there you are.

The man who economizes his time about to save three minutes on his schedule by making the 9:18 instead of the 9:21 train to town. What he will do with the three minutes is a question.

Another cute way in which many b ight people practice economy is to make use of the telephone when calling on friends. Long distance particularly.



Beautiful lady who economizes in the way of dress hearing something give. Mrs. Wallet knows of a place down in the wholesale hide and hoof district, where you can get twenty-two dresses for what the smart shops charge for just one. They look great when worn for a few hours, and then they fall apart.

Economy may begin in the home, but it often travels far and wide. Take the case of Senator August R. Begg, who is saving his home town hundreds, nay thousands, of the town's precious dollars in the matter of the new macadam road. Senator Begg's great friend, Jerry B. McGiffney, will get the contract at a reasonably low bid, and the papier mache road bed will look great until the first heavy rain.

One of the cleverest ways to economize is to let the doctor's bill go unpaid indefinitely. Observe Mrs. Henry Dougherty, looking intently at nothing in particular when passing the doctor's house.

bride and the household budget. The June , with all the enthusiasm in the world, is over the importance of economy in the with Addie, her precious jewel. (The that Addie is sprinkling are Addie's — you catch Addie sprinkling anything but her wash. No, siree!) Addie isn't a bit taken what the bride is saying about going easy the eggs and butter.

Jetty started in married life practic- my early and late. Now in pros- days, she can't get over it. See, brass, how she's carrying two rolls in a napkin, from the dining room family hotel. It seemed such a to leave them.

Economy in transportation. Aren't you sorry for poor Mrs. Traub, who thought the man in the garage had such an honest face? He said the used car was a great bargain and she, alas, trusted him. Mrs. Traub has taken Aunt Sarah Wickham and two visiting cousins out for a little spin. Five miles out the car refuses to spin, and there's nary a towline in sight.

"What do you 'spose laughed, Mr. Hilliard?"

"Perhaps you'll know when—when it sounds again."

BUT the laughter was slow in sounding again. Hilliard was distracted by his effort at listening. He wanted to justify himself before Peb. He studied this dirty motive in his own mind, unable to root it out in the moral paralysis from the laughter. It seemed more important to conceal his own condition from Peb than to locate their missing companion.

"He can't have gone far," Peb muttered. "He can't have gone far——"

They were both in their clothes now and turned into the jungle at the point where the trail of the pony had torn its way.

"I don't hear any laughter," Peb remarked, after a moment.

Hilliard didn't answer. Peb added:

"It was laughing, you know, or something like that—that put Spook in wrong with the Mojave."

"Yes, you said so."

A shivery chill played along Hilliard's nerves. He kept stretching his lip because there was a twitch in it, like a man who needs a drink. He didn't want young Vanish to see his mouth working like this. They were among the thinned jungle growths now. The stars were paler, as if dawn had dimmed them.

"You don't suppose he was hypnotized, do you, or walking in his sleep?"

"I thought of that—of both," said Hilliard.

"Funny I didn't wake up. Hello—" Peb's voice ended in a chuckle.

A shadowy figure had slid like a part of the dark across the divided density of foliage in front. Its twisted head rocked sideways. Hilliard's tortured mind was shot back nearly thirty years, when as a child on Christmas morning he was frightened by one of his presents—a toy donkey of papier mache, the head of which rocked at him.

If Peb knew what this was that had crossed their path why didn't he say something?

The thing crossed again among the leaves—or another like it. It had a hunch on its back. . . . Because a pony went by hours before with a hunched cat on its withers (Hilliard's mind inquired in the silence) must everything have a rider henceforward?

"It seems to be getting even darker," Peb said in a whisper. "I smell rain. I hate to use the flashlight. It makes your eyes no good without it. He can't be much farther."

Hilliard's thought now was that there had been no laughter. He had been hoaxed by Spook's disease to the extent of imagining it. . . .

If Peb wanted Spook Powell so badly why didn't he call? Why didn't he say something?

. . . One of the creatures seemed moving along beside them, keeping pace behind the leaves. . . . Probably there wasn't anything to it—just part of the hoax, like the laughter. Yet Peb had chuckled at something.

It surely looked like an animal ahead of them now—no cat, twice as big as a jackal—not a wolf exactly. It was up—higher from the ground—stiff legged, as no cat moves.

Water splashed upon Hilliard's face, and the smell that came to his nostrils now was that of a filthy cage. The creature vanished—then up out of the ground, as it seemed, came the bubble and puke of soft laughter.

"O, SPOOK!"

Peb had called at last.

From the right of them among the leaves came a loose answer:

"Huh." Laughter was in that also, but no mirth.

Now Peb shot his flashlight in among the leaves. There was a quickening of pads, and Hilliard, following the ray, saw a hideous object, which proved to be the carcass of the dead pony—before he saw the man. Spook was sitting—yes, upon the ground—rocking back and forth, his bare foot held in both hands.

"What—what are you doing there?" Peb spoke quickly.

There was a sick gulp. The white haired one turned his face away from the ray. "I'm weavin' dandelions, Peb. I got an early start."

"What's the matter, Spook? Why don't you get up?"

"Sprained my ankle."

"Let me see——"

The other made no effort to rise. "Say Peb——"

"Yes."

"Say, Peb," the voice trailed, "did you happen to hear some laughter?"

"Sure."

"You did!"

"Sure, and I heard you giggling back at it. Didn't like it, either."

"I was practicin'. That stuff's hard to get just right. What do they do—laugh with their humps?"

"Come on, Spook. It's going to rain. Hilliard's here. We'll carry you back——"

"There's one now!"

Peb made a spiteful "ff—ff—f—f" with his lips and waved his hands. The creature vanished. "Do you mean to tell me you don't know hyenas—when you see 'em outside of a cage?" he inquired.

"Hyenas?" Spook repeated softly.

"They won't attack a man, Spook. They only follow. They scatter like chickens if you throw a rock at them."

"Do they wear humps this year?" came in the slow, soft voice.

Peb turned sideways to Hilliard with a gesture for help.

They started to lift the other between them, but Spook pushed their hands away.

"Let me get this straight," he said. "Hyenas—what are they doing here?"

"They're keeping the jackals off that dead pony until it gets ripe. They can't eat it green, you know. Lot of 'em around. Thought I might get some flashes of 'em if the rain holds off, but it won't."

"So they're the parties that do the laughing?"

"Sure, Spook——"

Hilliard knew that Spook's hair would be turning now if it hadn't been white already. The face in the flashlight told him that much.

"Hyenas, eh?" Spook mumbled. "I never heard of hyenas in the Mojave——"

"O, I'm beginning to see," said Peb quietly.

"No, there aren't any hyenas in the Mojave," he added, "but I've heard that if a man stays too long out there, the desert gets his goat and then gives him the laugh——"

Hilliard was beginning to understand also. They were walking rapidly now. Spook seemed to have forgotten what he said about a sprained ankle. They reached the open. The starless sky seethed with storm.

SPOOK didn't eat, but went to bed in the dakbungalow where the servants had carried the cots. Hilliard and Peb moved drearily around under cover for hours, very few words between them.

"You can talk, Mr. Hilliard—you go to him," Peb said pleadingly at last. "Talk to him. Tell him anything—to get that look off his face. I never saw him like this. It must be a mark about that laughing. Any kid would know they were hyenas."

Hilliard was facing an ordeal of his own. He let the moment pass without speaking of himself. Apparently Peb had missed all signs of his funk. A little later Hilliard sat down alone with Spook.

". . . It might happen any time!" the white haired one moaned suddenly above the drum of the rain on the roof. "I didn't know I was out there in the jungle until I came up with the pony. I didn't know enough to know it was hyena——"

"I didn't either," said Hilliard quietly.

Spook didn't appear to hear.

"They seem to get you like a snake gets a rabbit—make you part of them with their poison——"

"I didn't know they were hyenas, either," Hilliard repeated in a louder tone.

"You what—you didn't?"

"No," the artist went on. "I took on a new kind of paralysis from that giggling. It stirred up every yellow streak I've got. I watched you leave your cot and go in there barefooted and I couldn't call to you—for fear, if I let my voice go once I couldn't stop bawling——"

Hilliard saw Spook's sick face rise from the cot and push toward his—light of heaven in the eyes that had been hopeless a moment before.

"It got you—got you, too? And you're not naturally a cur——"

The white and weary smile was back upon Hilliard's face.

"I'm afraid I am, Spook," he said, carefully. "It got me. It's got me yet—so much so that I'd like to pull out of here. But there's no good in that. It's myself I'd like to run away from—not hyenas or the rainy season in an Indian jungle. I've got to live with myself. That's the trouble. Rather, I've got to live with something I've found—found wanting in myself! And the worst of it all is I've got to tell Peb."

Spook sank back with a smile. "I feel as if I was going to live," he said.

Mrs. PARAMOR by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Blue Ribbon Fiction

THE PRINCIPALS IN THE STORY

MRS. PENDLETON WAYNE, young and beautiful, an author engrossed in her work, but still fondly in love with her husband,

PENDLETON WAYNE, successful lawyer of forty. He is bored with wife, Nelly, and enamored of

JULIET WETHERELL ("Jill"), who is characterized as a girl seeking a wealthy marriage by

PERLEY REX, a society philanderer. Rex, resting in his club, unexpectedly comes upon an old friend,

PETER GRANVILLE, who has been adventuring in China and other lands. Granny is an old admirer of Mrs. Wayne.

THE HOLBROOK ANNISONS, Beth and Hal, a shamelessly old fashioned couple, still in love with each other and happy, although married.

On their wedding anniversary Wayne takes Nelly to the Tanglewood Country club for dinner. Rex takes Granville there. Granville tells her he has never ceased to love her. Jill arrives. Alone with Wayne, she draws from him a promise he will divorce Nelly and marry her. A storm has extinguished the club's lights, but they flash on again just as Pen crushes Jill to him, kissing her passionately. Nelly witnesses the embrace. She pleads with Jill to leave Pen to her, but Jill answers: "A woman who can't hold her husband doesn't deserve to have him." Then Rex takes Jill by storm and she marries him, jilting Wayne. Two years later Rex and Jill start home from France with their year old boy. Jill is ill, and Rex becomes interested in a famous and beautiful, but mysterious author, "Mrs. Paramor." Rex discusses Mrs. Paramor with Arnold Pusey, a woman's dressmaker, who aspires to be a reporter for a society scandal sheet.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

Rex Meets Mrs. Paramor.

A SOLITARY lamp in a close shade burned in the main bedchamber of that spacious and heavily decorated suite which was the Illyria's pride and the envy of all her passengers whose means ran not to luxuriousness so sybaritic. Its disciplined glow served as spotlight to a bright head at rest on the pillows of one of the twin beds, a profile sweetly serious if possibly a trace too pale, a subtly modeled shoulder that escaped the neck of a nightdress of which the less said the more descriptive, and arms whose fair and slender symmetry forfeited no allurement because their background was a quilt of rose-pink silk. She who had been Juliet Wetherell lay waiting for her husband. Ostensibly she was reading, but her eyes more often than not were focussed upon far vagues of abstraction instead of the lines of type they tried to follow. The famous Mrs. Paramor would not have been flattered.

Rex was indulging a reminiscent smile when he came in; whereupon the book was discarded altogether. But the smile disappeared as soon as he caught sight of his wife, a look of true solicitude took its place. He went directly to the bedside, bent low, and with all the gallantry of a lover who knows love lives on wooing, touched his lips to one of the hands on the rose-pink quilt.

"Not making out so badly," he summed up an affectionate, shrewd review of his wife's looks—"if looks are anything to go by. If this is what a tendency toward seasickness does to you, dear, you ought to pledge yourself to life on the ocean wave, and give the chanty a new twist—'Every day and in every way I'm growing salter and sweeter!'"

"That's just my artfulness," Jill returned with a little, pleased laugh: "its triumph over nature. Protective coloration . . ."

He wagged a deprecatory head. "Not really?"

But she nodded. "All the same, I'm glad it deceived you. No woman ever likes to look as ill as she feels. Women in love don't dare to."

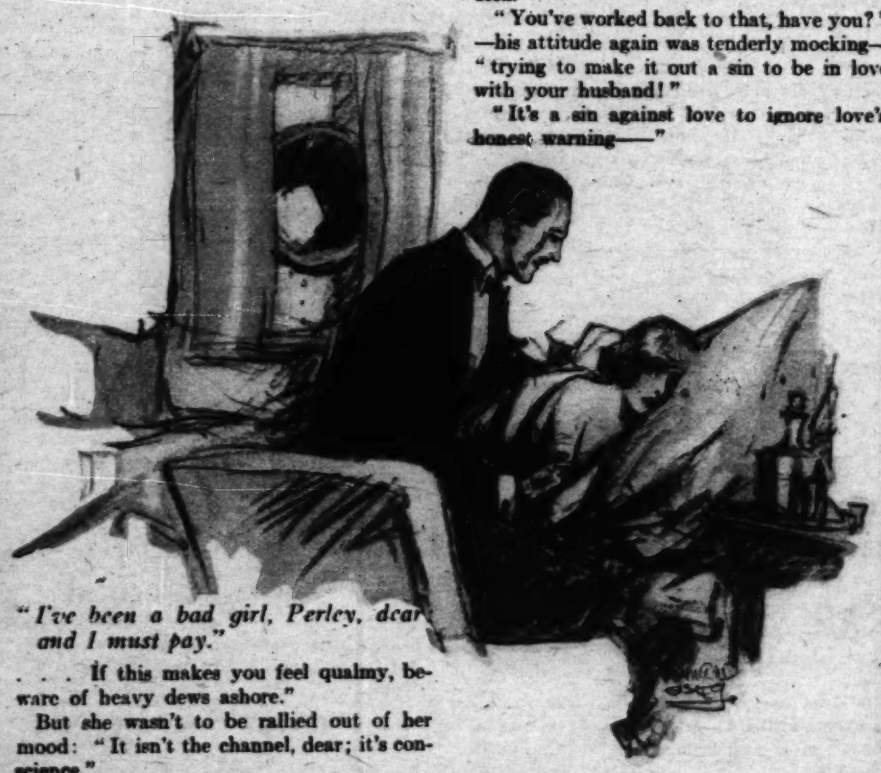
"Seems to be a question in your mind," Rex considered in a mock-critical whim, "whether you're seasick or lovesick."

"Not in my mind," Jill stubbornly averred. "That's the worst of it. There's at least a sure cure in sight for every case of seasickness—terra firma when the ship docks."

"Yes: and the lovesick have to come down to earth in the end, too."

"I know." She nodded again, not so gayly. "I've been lying here thinking about that . . ."

"You must be feeling low!" Rex drew up a chair and sat down, closing a hand over one of his wife's. "And I don't think I've ever known the channel smoother . . . If this makes you feel qualmy, beware of heavy dews ashore."



"I've been a bad girl, Perley, dear; and I must pay."

But she wasn't to be rallied out of her mood: "It isn't the channel, dear; it's conscience."

His laughing comment was ill-considered: "Deep waters, old girl!"

"Too deep," the woman agreed, too gravely. "They frighten me."

"Look here!" He made haste to offer amends with his most sympathetic countenance. "Tell me what's the trouble."

"The same old trouble," she stated simply: "I'm in love."

"Is this a confession or a declaration?" he made believe to wonder.

"As if you had to ask!"

"But I can't see any crime in that to sit so heavily on your conscience."

"It's a crime to be too happy," she soberly asserted—"a crime against nature——"

"Jill! what's the use of being so morbid?"

"I'm not. But I've been thinking." She gave his fingers a gentle pressure. "I've been thinking life doesn't mean us to be as happy as I've been with you, dear; and whenever its intentions are ignored or defied, we know, life relentlessly applies the law of compensation. To every hour of ecstasy its compensating hour of pain. And I've had so much happiness charged to my account these last years—well!" she ruefully laughed, "I don't like to think about the days of reckoning to come."

"My dear girl!" Rex remonstrated with a frown of concern—"this isn't like you——"

"O, yes it is!" Jill insisted. "You only mean it isn't like the girl you married. But you couldn't fairly expect anything else of the woman you've made of her."

Rex had a moment of silence, in a turn of uncommon gravity. "I see," he slowly said—"I see what you mean."

"It's time you did, dear, time you realised how much I've changed. All this while I've been just wax in your hands. You knew that. But what you didn't know was that you were all the while slowly but surely remodeling me. Until today you've got a new woman altogether on your hands, more than a sweetheart merely, a wife and a mother. And Jill Wetherell, the girl you married, lost and gone forever! Only the wrong she did lives on. I've been a bad girl, Perley, dear; and for that I've got to pay . . ."

"O, nonsense!" the man interrupted in a pitch of sincere distress. "Don't say such things——"

"You don't believe me? I'll prove it to you. Do you remember the night you first kissed me? I told you then I adored you. Have you forgotten what you answered?"

"I trust it was something becomingly modest."

"You said—I haven't forgotton!—'That will be all right, too, so long as you don't let me feel you're sincere about it.' And I promised I'd never . . . Jill Wetherell could have kept that promise, the baggage! But you know very well it's beyond Juliet Rex."

"You've worked back to that, have you?"—his attitude again was tenderly mocking—"trying to make it out a sin to be in love with your husband!"

"It's a sin against love to ignore love's honest warning——"

"'Honest!'"

"You were honest with me," Jill affirmed with grave nods, "when you said what you did, that night. You knew yourself then."

He saluted this with an unforced laugh: "And now no more?"

"You've been good so long, dearest," he was fondly reminded, "you've forgotten your failings."

"Wouldn't it be kinder to believe I've outgrown them?"

"Sometimes I do. But tonight I'm not sure . . ." Her fingers tightened on his, her pretty mouth was twisted with anticipative pain. "Perley—I'm afraid!"

"Jill, my dear!" The man shifted from his chair to the side of the bed and took his wife in his arms. "What on earth is there for you to fear?"

She clung to him in silence, trembling, for a little, then sank back to the pillow and entreated him with misty eyes. "Forgive me, dear. I suppose I am silly; but somehow I can't help it. Somehow it's been like living in another world, ever since we were married; it's been so beautiful, so wonderful, so romantic. But now—it's come over me all at once—we're going back to settle down and be prosaic married folk in a stupid world that knows us both too well. Back there, in Italy and France and Egypt, the mere adventure of life in new scenes gave you the excitement a man of your peculiar nature needs. But at home . . . I'm afraid, after the first few weeks, you'll find it humdrum, you'll be casting about for some new thing to take an interest in; and—you'll know me too well to look for it, much less find it, in your own home."

Smiling, she laid her fingers lightly on his lips. "No, dear; don't protest. How can you know?"

"Ask yourself that, Cassandra."

"I have; and the answer is, I know—we both know—the law of compensation can't be cheated. At all events, not for long. The worst of it is—if the worst comes—I'll deserve it. Perley: I've often wondered—however did it turn out with Pen Wayne and his wife?"

"O!" Rex cried in pained impatience—"why rake that business up at this late date?"

"Do you think I ought to forget it? Or could if I wanted to? I couldn't—I can't forget, dear, what that poor woman went through that night I'll have to go through in my turn, when my time comes to lose you."

With the mulish resentment of a man tried beyond delicate dissimulation he contended: "You're never going to lose me."

The woman had the wit not to argue that point; or else curiosity was the keener emotion in her; for she harked back to her question that hadn't been answered.

"How did things work out with the Waynes? Or don't you know?"

"She divorced him, I believe—went to Reno. There was an item about it in the Paris Herald a year or so ago."

"You never told me."

"Didn't think you'd care to be reminded."

"And after that—what became of Mrs. Wayne?"

"I never heard," Rex curtly answered. His eye was caught by the book Jill had been reading, and he grasped at it to provide a diversion. "What's this?" he said, bending to read the title. "Hello! 'Years of Discretion'—eh?—by Helen Paramor."

"You've heard about it?"

"Never before tonight. A hussy who made up to me on deck just now mentioned it."

"'Hussy'?"

"Don't run away with the wrong impression. Its name is Arnold Pusey and it's on its way home to lend tone to the reportorial staff of Town Tattle. If you care to be interviewed, I think I can arrange it."

"Don't be absurd, Perley. What are you talking about? A man or a woman?"

"My guess is, a benevolent neutral. The silhouette, however, is masculine in the main."

"But how did you happen to talk about books to such a creature?"

"Mr. Pusey brought up the subject, if you must know. It appears that Mrs. Paramor, the author, is on board; and he's fearfully bent on getting an interview with her, as well."

"Really?" Jill had a flicker of interest. "I'd like to meet her. I really think she must be a very wise woman. Nobody but a woman who'd been through the mill could have written that book."

"I wish it had never been written, if that's what started you off on tonight's exhilarating train of thought."

Jill sighed, turned her face away from the light, and was silent for a time. Rex got up, half-audibly yawned, and began to unfasten his waistcoat.

"Perley . . ."

"Yes?"

"What is she like?"

"What is who like?"

"Mrs. Paramor. Or didn't you see her?"

Almost too much apathy informed the reply: "Only a glimpse."

"Is she very pretty?"

"O, I don't know. Passably, perhaps. What does it matter?"

"I wondered . . ."

FIVE bells of the forenoon watch, the second day out, saw the Illyria, as ever since leaving Cherbourg, bucking into headseas stiff enough to defeat all hope of her breaking the record on this westbound voyage. And at that hour, with a full gale blowing and rain streaking horizontally between worried, haggard waters and a wintry sky, from which they borrowed their complexion of slate, an able-bodied young woman might have been observed, and wonderingly was by those few in whom appetite for air and exercise survived, briskly measuring the promenade deck with the full, free stride of the post-war English woman; while some six paces in her wake the lissom person of enterprising Mr. Pusey loped, Mr. Pusey wearing a look of peaked determination, as if he might have been a victim of mad infatuation heartlessly disdained.

Disdained he may well have been; ignored he by no means was; as the object o

This dainty vanishing cream scientifically corrects perspiration odor

Comparatively few people suffer daily with excessive perspiration moisture. But nearly everyone is troubled constantly with the disagreeable odor of underarm perspiration.

It is to give effective protection to your personal daintiness that Creme Odorono is intended. Only after exhaustive laboratory research has it been brought to scientific perfection by the makers of Odorono.

Creme Odorono, the delightful new vanishing cream deodorant, is entirely different from any other cream or paste deodorant. In action and composition it is altogether new and scientifically correct.

Used every morning, it gives perfect protection for all day. And it vanishes at once from the skin and is non-greasy! Thus you may use it without danger of staining clothing. Just when you need it most—when dressing to go to a dance or other affair where personal daintiness must be irreproachable!

Soft and smooth, Creme Odorono will never harden or dry up. It is very economical, too; a tube lasts, with daily use, a month or six weeks.

For everyday dependence or for quick, special occasion use to supplement liquid Odorono, you will find Creme Odorono a dependable convenience. So valuable in traveling, too. Ask for it wherever Odorono is sold. Large tube, 25c.

his dogged pursuit presently demonstrated when she retarded her pace in the lee of the saloon superstructure forward, permitting him to overhaul her before he knew it, then all at once rounded on him.

"This thing has got to stop," she convincingly announced, challenging his unready smile with a stare rather inquisitive than angry. "All yesterday you tagged round after me like a mid-Victorian deb that had mislaid its chaperon; and now this morning you're beginning again. What do you mean by it?"

"I'm so glad you asked that, Miss Dracup," Mr. Pusey protested, to all appearances not in the least abashed. "I knew you must have noticed, and I've really been praying for a chance to explain.'

"You've got it now," the young woman stated. She confronted him not on the whole unkindly, but in temperate perplexity; feet well apart, bracing her against the rolling and pitching; hands thrust deep into the pockets of a rough-and-ready overcoat. "I'm listening."

"That is so good of you." The physical Mr. Pusey was swaying like a reed in the wind; but his effrontery was steadfast. erous enough to concede. "But surely you haven't been hounding me like this just to bleat about your broken heart."

Mr. Pusey with the sunniest smile declared: "You are delightful, really——"

"I'm not—I'm trying to bring you to the point. Please be quick: I want to get on with my walk."

"But won't you let me walk with you! We can talk just as well."

Miss Dracup seemed to deliberate for a fraction of a minute. She was a handsome girl with eyes widely spaced, a mouth whose firm cast was seldom softened by a smile, and a habit so self-reliant that it narrowly escaped being aggressive. She consented with a brusque nod, turned, and strode aft at such a pace that Mr. Pusey was quickly constrained to lengthen his own stride.

"You see," he eagerly explained to an impassive profile, "I saw you come aboard with Mrs. Paramor, night before last, and guessed you were her friend——"

"Good heavens!", Mr. Pusey giggled. "However did you find out I was a dressmaker?"

"I've been afraid you might think I was trying to flirt."

"I'm sure," Miss Dracup asserted without a quiver, "you're not that kind of a man."

"How wonderful you are to sense that."

"Rank flattery—no way to get round me. What do you want?"

"I'm just dying to tell you. It's a matter of business, you see."

"But I should think you could see," Miss Dracup incisively stated, "I buy everything ready-made. What little needlework I have to have done I attend to myself."

"O, good heavens!" Mr. Pusey giggled and furiously blinked those shallow eyes of gray. "However did you find out I was a dressmaker?"

"Feminine intuition—you know how it is."

"But I'm not in the dressmaking business any more." Mr. Pusey's mercurial spirits had suffered a sudden slump, his manner was now plaintive and woebegone. "It's too dreadfully hard to get on in it nowadays, it doesn't matter how great a genius you are. It takes a terrible lot of money to set up a salon that will attract the right sort of people; and if you do manage to get them, they let their bills run forever and ever. So I had to give up the dear little shop I had in Paris, last month; and I can tell you, it just broke my heart."

"It must have," Miss Dracup was generous enough to concede. "But surely you haven't been hounding me like this just to bleat about your broken heart."

"Friend," Miss Dracup crisply interrupted, "isn't the right word, because she pays me to travel with her. I am Mrs. Paramor's secretary."

"How splendid! That makes it ever so much easier for me to explain myself."

Miss Dracup turned incredulous eyes on Mr. Pusey: "The deuce it does!"

"I mean to say your being her secretary makes it easier for me to ask you to intercede with Mrs. Paramor on my behalf."

"I might have known," Miss Dracup mildly lamented, "it was somebody else's fatal charms——!"

"O, but I do assure you this is strictly business. I do so want to be the first to secure an interview with Mrs. Paramor."

The ingratiating smile stiffened under the cold interrogation of the eyes that were again trained on it.

"An interview? For publication?"

"Yes, of course! You see, I represent Town Tattle, the great society journal of New York——"

"You don't mean to tell me you left the dressmaking business to shift for itself while you turned journalist for sordid pecuniary considerations?"

"Even a dressmaker must live," Mr. Pusey reasonably advanced.

"Let's not argue about that. . . . Mrs. Paramor makes it a rule never to give interviews to the press."

"O, dear!" Mr. Pusey moaned—"I knew you'd say that."

"Mrs. Paramor doesn't believe in that sort of thing," her secretary explained. "She agrees with me that authors should be read, not heard."

"Then she can't have read many modern authors," Mr. Pusey surmised.

A gleam of something nearly resembling respect momentarily lightened Miss Dracup's regard for him. Nevertheless she competently countered: "How many have you heard?"

"Why!"—Mr. Pusey had now the attitude of one confessing a grievous shortcoming—"do you know?—I never in all my life met a real live author."

"Don't take it so to heart. Most of the real ones are dead."

"How true that is. But Mrs. Paramor isn't, at least. I don't think I've ever seen anybody more gloriously alive. It's just happiness, I presume; she must be happy to be so exquisitely lovely in herself and author of a best-selling novel besides. Really!" Pusey rapturously supposed—"it is a great gift, to be able to write—isn't it?"

"Graft was what Mrs. Paramor called it when I showed her the latest royalty reports."

"What mar-velous humor!"

"Yes," the secretary conceded — "for an American."

Mr. Pusey fairly pounced on this item of information. "Mrs. Paramor is an American, then?"

"I thought everybody knew that. Her work is so thoroughly American in milieu."

"To own the shameful truth, Miss Dracup, I never have read 'Years of Discretion.' But I've found out something to tell the readers of Town Tattle; that is, if you don't think Mrs. Paramor will be angry with you for having told me she's an American."

"Mrs. Paramor has no objection to legitimate publicity concerning her work; and, as I say, her nationality can hardly be considered a secret. But her private life she considers something quite apart from her work; that she guards jealously, to know it is the privilege only of a few dear friends."

"How beautifully you put it!" Mr. Pusey cried. And seeing that Miss Dracup evinced no disposition to reject this tribute, he ventured a step further, thrust a hand into the breast pocket of his coat and produced a neat little leather-bound notebook. "I wonder if you'd mind my jotting down what you tell me in your own words . . ."

"Not at all." A thaw seemed to be setting in; it was almost graciously that the private secretary added: "And any other information you might find useful, about Mrs. Paramor's work, I shall be glad to give you—if I can."

"You are really too good . . ." Six bells sang through the clamor of the wind and found immediate response in the intellectual vibrations of Mr. Pusey. "Beef-tea time," he blithely announced. "Wouldn't you like to make yourself comfy in your deck-chair and let me fetch you a cup? Then I can make my notes with more ease."

"I don't mind."

Miss Dracup's chair stood with her employer's in the shelter of a jog. Mr. Pusey made himself useful, cocooning the young woman in her steamer-rug, and efficiently rounded up the deck-steward with his tray of steaming cups. Miss Dracup sipped and thawed still more evidently, while the young man subsided gracefully into the chair reserved for Mrs. Paramor, and fluttered the leaves of his notebook.

"Half a minute, if you don't mind," he absently murmured. "I've been jotting down questions I want to ask Mrs. Paramor. O, yes! The critics have been practically unanimous in praising 'Years of Discretion.' for its extraordinary literary value," Mr. Pusey glibly recited from his notes—"extraordinary, that is, in the first work of an unknown writer——"

"If it would help you to have me clear up that mystery," the secretary put in, "I know Mrs. Paramor wouldn't mind."

"I'm sure I don't see why you're so good to me."

"Don't make me think that, I might change my mind. . . . 'Years of Discretion' is the first long novel of a short story writer who won her spurs under another name. But it is nothing like her earlier efforts; so the appearance of the name, Helen Paramor, on the title-page, is justified in a way."

"Amazing." Mr. Pusey's dainty gold pencil was active. "And what a perfectly gorgeous nom-de-plume . . ." The pencil rested. "Or is it?"

"Helen Paramor isn't a pen-name."

"Truly not?"

"I don't think Mrs. Paramor would like me to say more. She doesn't wish to be identified as the author of 'Years of Discretion' with the work she did in what amounted to another phase of life entirely." Miss Dracup's gloved hand fell firmly upon that which held the gold pencil, arresting it. "This isn't for publication, Mr. Pusey; but for your own satisfaction, I think it safe to tell you that Mrs. Paramor's life as a short story writer wasn't a very happy one. She wants to forget all that now and, except as Helen Paramor, to be forgotten."

"But of course I shall respect your confidence, Miss Dracup," the journalist faithfully promised. "All the same," he more cheerfully opined, "this is going to be a story! And is it all right to ask if Mrs. Paramor is working on a new novel?"

"Yes; it is nearly finished, but the title is a secret."

"And now that she is returning to America, will she make it her permanent residence?"

"I don't believe she will. She could hardly do so without inviting the renewal of many painful associations. I understand it is her intention to return to France as soon as the business that takes her to America is settled."

"It's Mr. Rex, Mrs. Paramor; Mr. Perley Rex."

ONE page of the notebook was already filled. Mr. Pusey flipped it up, and started to turn another when Miss Dracup's hand again stayed his.

"What is that?" she asked with interest, bending over the arm of her chair. "May I look?"

"O, that!" Mr. Pusey produced a tone rich with deprecation. "That's nothing, just a little sketch I made last night—I couldn't seem to get to sleep for hours, so I turned on the light and amused myself sketching designs for a gown I'd love to make for Mrs. Paramor. You know," he protested, "I just can't help it, it's a sort of a passion with me: I simply can't see a beautiful woman without wanting to dress her."

"I knew it," Miss Dracup observed, intent upon the sketch—"something told me you were different."

Their heads together over the notebook, Miss Dracup and Mr. Pusey had no heed to spare for one who, approaching them not many minutes later, faltered and made as if to pass on, but was lured back by a phrase or two of their confabulation overheard by inadvertence, and paused near by to eavesdrop openly.

"A jade satin bodice," Mr. Pusey was expounding with intensity, the while his pencil amplified the detail of a sketch not at all inexpert—"quite tight fitting, of course—only a blind barbarian would dream of dressing that perfect figure except to reveal it!—with a skirt of jade satin voluminously bouffant and slashed all the way up the front, to show a plain petticoat of silver lamé. The collar a pelerine, something like this, white net embroidered in silver; and the girdle crystal globes on a silver chain, with a stunning clasp of jade right at the rounded point of the bodice. I do hope I'm making you see . . ."

"O, perfectly!" Miss Dracup breathed, as one entranced. "It's too lovely . . ."

"Now I ask you, could anything be better suited to set off Mrs. Paramor's beauty?"

"Nothing . . ." The gaze of the secretary dreamily dwelt for another moment on the bewitching picture thus conjured up. "But is that truly all your own?"

"Well, I like that! I certainly hope you don't think I belong to that gang of high-binders in the Rue de la Paix who don't know how to make a living except by swiping one another's ideas."

Mr. Pusey preened himself a little, as if to signify that no sweeter tempered soul had ever been misjudged. And Miss Dracup, as if completely but not too abjectly won over, begged his pardon: "I didn't mean to hurt your feelings——"

"O, it's quite all right. I don't mind, really. Only, between you and me, I am a bit sensitive because I don't seem able to get a chance to prove what a genius I am at designing women's things. It's sickening to have had to come down to journalism, when all I needed was a little long term credit and somebody like Mrs. Paramor to display my gowns. If I'd only had her to dress in Paris, I can just tell you, I'd never have been obliged to give up my darling little shop."

"Never mind." A trace of the maternal had already begun to color the Englishwoman's attitude, in a tone of much the same indulgence a kindly grown-up might have spoken to a fretful child. "Perhaps your chance will come in New York. Women wear clothes there, I presume, just as in Paris."

"But getting a start is twice as hard—everything's so appallingly expensive. And the real problem's precisely the same: it doesn't get you anywhere to make beautiful costumes if you can't find the right people to show them off. Now, Mrs. Paramor, with all the public attention she's bound to get, and her personal loveliness into the bargain—why! if I could only induce her to wear my creations, I bet you all the women in New York would be on their knees to me inside of a fortnight." Here Mr. Pusey heaved up a desperate sigh. "But I suppose there's no hope; naturally her trunks are full of pretty things she bought in Paris."

"I'm afraid they are," Miss Dracup admitted, in an accent of real regret.

"But what woman ever thought she had too many frocks?" a third voice encouragingly interrupted. "And the one you've just been discussing, I'm afraid, I'd find it hard to resist."

Even Miss Dracup, the religiously self-contained, gave a sharp start. As for Mr. Pusey, what indisputably was glad surprise fairly bounced him out of his chair, like something electrified; while a small squeal, though he did seem to do his best to pass it off as nothing more than a nervous giggle, too eloquently betrayed what must have been his sudden persuasion that for his prosperity at last the very stars were fighting in their courses.

THE author of "Years of Discretion" wore her honors sweetly, the happiness good fortune had kindled in her found expresion in a radiance of warming charm rather than in a chilling glare of self-complacence. She stood quietly smiling down upon the two, by every sign a woman serenely balanced, to whom life in its fulfillment had brought the benison of a heart at peace; a woman of the world, neither callous nor callow, unillusioned it might be, but never embittered, less cynical than sage; a woman of no age, to whose countenance years and the pain inseparable from all living had given character without crow's-feet, whose body they had endued with dignity while yet it retained the supple slenderness of seventeen; finally, a woman of fashion who had studied herself to good purpose and the vogue of the day with discrimination, adapting to her uses rather than adopting what of it in her sight was desirable and seemly.

"I could hardly help hearing, and inasmuch as what you were talking about had to do so personally with me——"

"O, Mrs. Paramor!" Mr. Pusey wasn't one ever to be disconcerted for long. "I do hope you didn't mind——"

"Why should I?"

"Because I've just been praying, ever since I saw you come aboard, night before last, for a chance like this to beg you to let me design you a gown."

"He began by pretending to be a reporter," Miss Dracup dryly advised—"aching to interview you. Now he says he's a dressmaker, dying to build you a frock. Quite likely, inside another ten minutes he'll turn out to be a tenor who wants you to write him a song. But I forgot—this is Mr. Arnold Pusey, Mrs. Paramor."

Mr. Pusey prettily bowed the continental bow of ceremony, heels together, body bent low from the waist, and came up blandly smiling. "Really, you know," he confidently chuckled, "Miss Dracup is a terrible kidder. She makes all sorts of fun of me, and thinks I don't know what she means; but I don't mind at all, because I know, au fond, her heart is kind."

"Nothing of the sort," Miss Dracup contradicted flatly. "You mistake my innate chivalry toward the weakest sex."

"Please!" Mrs. Paramor laughed, with a gay little flutter of hands. "I've no doubt you two find this sort of thing amusing; but I have been hard at work all morning, and now I want to be tucked nicely into my chair and told more about that adorable frock."

Destiny, according to tradition, is always at work. And whether this be true or no, it is certain, at least, that mortal machinations ever and anon ape its methods with telling effect. What happened then, however, may very well have been the work of both in nice collaboration. For at that very moment the Illyria elected to perform a particularly sensuous wallow, with the immediate result that a gentleman, who had sedately been pacing by, lost his footing, or artistically appeared to lose it, performed a few unorthodox but striking dance steps, and wound up the exhibition by wildly floundering into the arms of Mr. Pusey.

"My dear boy!" he breathlessly protested—"I sincerely trust I haven't hurt you. You are quite sure? Because," with great presence of mind he added, "I should never forgive myself if I'd incapacitated you for presenting me to Mrs. Paramor—of course, assuming her permission."

The bow that went with this reference was courtly enough to correct its suspicion of assurance, and drew from Mrs. Paramor a slow, almost a reluctant, nevertheless a consenting inclination of the head, accompanied by a flashing look that was singularly illegible—a glance of apprehensive recognition it might have seemed had that not been manifestly the absurdest of interpretations, since these two had never before that moment met. More singularly still, though it was perceptible no longer than sufficed for the swiftest lifting and lowering of eyelashes, it somehow created an extraordinary sense of tension, by which one of the actors in that scene alone was unimpressed—which, in short, the happy prattle of Mr. Pusey was needed to ease.

"Why! I'm sure I'm only too glad. Mrs. Paramor—Mr. Perley Rex. And Miss Dracup—Mr. Rex. To think that the merest accident should have thrown together the three most interesting people on board—really! shipboard life is wonderful, isn't it?"

"Wonderful," Miss Dracup solemnly affirmed, and got a quizzical glance with the bow that acknowledged her cool "How d'you do, Mr. Rex?" An instructive glance: this new acquaintance, it conveyed, might be as mystified as she was by her employer's curious reaction, but in other respects he was nobody's fool.

"If this happy chance hadn't come about as it did," he proceeded smoothly to profess to Mrs. Paramor, "I should very likely have worked up cheek enough to speak to you all on my own. Not only were my wife and I tremendously impressed by 'Years of Discretion,' but if I'm not mistaken, Mrs. Paramor, you and I have at least one friend in common."

"O?" Mrs. Paramor returned; and unintelligibly gave a quiet laugh—"O, yes?"

It is entirely possible that Perley Rex read in the faint access of color that made her face more than ever delightful to look upon, and in its new illumination with a smile beautiful but baffling, involuntary response to charms of person whose one-time potency hadn't, after all, it was pleasant to infer, wasted quite away in two years of monogamy. If he didn't, his vanity was at its lowest known ebb—even a man unspoiled must have been puzzled to account less egotistically for such signals of emotion flown by a woman whose very name had till now been a stranger's—likewise his manner belied him. Not that it had grown of a sudden presumptuous, only that its moderate uncertainty of the moment past was gone; and now in its subtler nuances it implied, not at all aggressively, more as a thing established, the existence of a rapport, which, if disputed, could have been defended as merely the assertion of a joint interest in a friend . . .

"Peter Granville."

"O?" Mrs. Paramor sounded again a note of lazy wonder as she took possession of her chair and suffered the assiduous Pusey to arrange her steamer rug. "Do you know Granny!"

"Rather! I was right, then, it was Granny himself I saw talking to you on the deck of the tender."

"That was how you knew? Thank you so much, Mr. Pusey. O! must you really run away? But you haven't told me yet about that gown."

Evidently Mr. Pusey saw no profit in denying the sensitiveness of his intuitions. "I know you'd much rather talk to Mr. Rex about your antique friend," he bluntly stated. "Besides, I've already thought of a far more exquisite gown, and I'd love to work it out to perfection before I ask you to pass on it. Another time, I hope, Mrs. Paramor . . . at your convenience. . . ."

"I won't forget."

"What's this?" Rex questioned—"a gown?"

"Mrs. Paramor had been gracious enough to take an interest in a design of mine for a robe de style which she herself inspired."

"But night before last you told me you were a journalist."

"And today he turns out to be a designing baggage," Miss Dracup put in. "You can't trust him."

"Isn't Miss Dracup simply awful? Since she's found out I was once a man dressmaker——'

"Broadly speaking."

"But I don't care. The truth is—and I'm not the least bit ashamed of it—dressmaking's the only thing I'm fit for."

"The last word is your prerogative," Miss Dracup resignedly pointed out—"you've said it."

"It's amazing how many people are constipated and don't know it!"

A prominent physician was speaking.

"It is always amazing to me," he said, "to discover how many of my patients are slowly poisoning themselves with constipation—people who never realize that they are constipated at all."

Everyone knows that the "waste" which clogs the intestines must be removed regularly. If not—it begins to generate deadly poisons that escape into the blood and flood your whole system.

Yet nowadays there are fewer and fewer people who do not suffer from constipation. Our concentrated modern diet lets the intestinal muscles get soft and flabby. They fail to remove the waste completely—a poisonous residue is left in the intestines. Then, little by little, we begin to suffer from all the ills of constipation—premature age, loss of appetite and vitality, skin disorders, indigestion, etc.

Restoring thousands of sufferers to perfect normal health

Medical science knows that drugs and cathartics are useless in getting rid of the trouble—indeed, they actually weaken the intestinal muscles and make matters worse.

That is why so many physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today. Every cake consists of millions of tiny living plants, which soften and increase the bulk of the waste matter, and gently encourage even the weakest muscles to act. Every such action gives the muscles normal, natural exercise—something that violent cathartics and purges can never do—and so gradually trains them back to a healthy, active state.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women are finding in Fleischmann's Yeast the key to freedom from all the evils of constipation. They are learning that a body freed from poisons means such health and vigor as they have never known.

Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active, and that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast, like any other food must be eaten regularly, to secure results. Eat two or three cakes a day—plain, or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep several days in a cool, dry place. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast! All grocers have it.

50% more weather armor than standard shingles!

WHEN storm clouds gather, and lightning flashes across the sky, is your roof armored for the battle?

You can now be sure of absolute protection from rain, wind, snow and the scorching rays of summer sun. A new slate-surfaced shingle has been produced that gives you 50% more weather armor than ordinary shingles. Think what that means in terms of long, hard service!

In the first place, this unusual product, the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle, is 50% thicker than the ordinary kind, and therefore lasts much longer. Incidentally, this greater thickness casts a deeper shadow line that gives life and interest to the roof.

In the second place, because it is 100% stiffer than the ordinary shingle, it remains rigid in the strongest wind and makes the whole roof twice as firm.

Finally, because it is 37% larger than the ordinary shingle fewer are needed to cover your roof. Thus you save 35% in cost of laying.

Beauty hitherto unknown

ON this super-shingle exclusively is used a color in slate hitherto unknown—a rich, weathered brown, found only in the Richardson quarries of Georgia.

It is as beautiful as the russet of November fields, and with use it mellows and deepens to a shade like the thatch of an English cottage.

No stained wood shingle can rival this rare color. You can easily see why when you remember that nature has created it as she does her jewels—by pressing it for ages under mountains of earth and rock.

Weathered brown brings new beauty to the modern home, architects say, especially when it is blended with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red, or black pearl.

Its inner secrets

BUT, of course, the true measure of roofing service goes beyond the color or size of the shingle to the materials in it. As you know, slate-surfaced shingles are built on a base or core of felt impregnated with asphalt and surfaced under pressure with slate granules.

Exceptional quality in these three materials makes the Richardson Super-Giant the finest slate-surfaced shingle produced.

The Super-Giant Shingle—50% thicker, 100% more rigid, and 35% more economical in cost of laying

Take, for instance, the felt upon which depends the very life of your roof. Richardson felt, so architects or roofing dealers will tell you, has for fifty years been recognized as the best. The asphalt is refined exclusively by the Richardson process from the highest grade raw materials. And the flakes of slate surfacing, found only in the Richardson quarries, seal the shingle permanently against weather and fire hazards.

Prove the facts yourself

A SUPER-SHINGLE indeed, when you weigh its points one by one! First—unusual dimensions which give you added roofing protection at ⅓ less in cost of laying. Second—absolutely exclusive color effects. And finally—exceptionally high test standards in its three materials; felt, asphalt, and slate surfacing.

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material, or to your contractor, and ask to see the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle in weathered brown. Feel it, weigh it, measure it, note the rare color. Then compare it with ordinary shingles—the difference will convince you.

Meanwhile, send for our beautiful new color chart showing the exclusive color combinations of Richardson slate surfacing, and containing valuable facts on roofing. Perhaps, too, our booklet, "Roofing on the Farm," can help. Just use the coupon below.

For every roofing need, there is a Richardson product—from Flex-a-tile Asphalt Shingles, to Rubbertex Roll Roofing with Pyramid Kaps. Consult your dealer. If he cannot supply you, write us direct.
